Why Is Torontonensis?

Torontonensis, numbing tome,
Where Themes and Dedications roam,
Pasquale D'Angelic attitudes
And biographic platitudes. . . .

THAT is the indictment of a mere book of record, on whose miscellaneous pages the harassed editor has tried to impose such continuity as he might. We have tried to do more. We have tried to make it more than a book of record—rather, a teeming slice of University life.

One part, the essential part, of University life, has grown merged inextricably with ourselves. The other part, the accidental, pleasurable round of encounters, books, debates, April sunlight, dusky October evenings, initiations, plays, prodigious discussions, will rapidly coalesce beyond detailed recall into a sort of four years' glow, no more distinct than a distant wedding-day rapture. It is this latter side of campus life that Torontonensis should aid us to recall.

For nearly half a century Torontonensis has been seizing and embalming the attitudes, the aspirations, the activities of a host of graduating students, like bridal garments folded away in a linen press to molder until their rediscovery provokes a flood of memories.

We have tried to seize more: more of the real and joyous. And we have tried to avoid embalming it. In as lively a volume as the often intractable material would permit, we have tried by informal pictures, by brittle, stimulating commentary, by exciting layouts, to retain all that was lively and keep it alive and refreshing.

We know we have not more than partly succeeded; but we think we have not altogether failed. In twenty years, in fifty, may this volume of Torontonensis recall memories as priceless, and seem to you as exciting and alive, as it does to us, the editors, now.

THIS FORTY-SEVENTH VOLUME OF TORONTONENSIS IS DEDICATED WITH REVERENCE AND AFFECTION TO
THE HON. and REV. HENRY JOHN CODY
C.M.G., E.D., M.A., D.D., LL.D., D.C.L., F.R.S.C.

Who for thirteen years has embodied the moral idea of the University as President, and whose elevation to the Chancellorship upon his retirement caps fittingly sixty years' distinguished connection with his Alma Mater.

To The Graduating Classes:

FOR probably the last time as President of this University I have the privilege of addressing you in this message. We do not know when or how the war in Europe will close, but we are confident that our just cause will in due course be crowned with success. God will defend the right.

Into what kind of world will you enter when you leave the University? Will it be a hard world or an easy world? After every great global struggle, the period of reconstruction or of improving conditions is inevitably hard. You will need courage, venturesomeness, hopefulness and faith to face this future. May you do this with full confidence and success. Security will never drive out the need of adventure and determination, if we wish to retain or to achieve strength of soul and mind.

You have enjoyed at the University great opportunities and high privileges. You will now think rather of your duties and responsibilities. All we now possess bears the hall-mark of blood; it has been purchased and maintained for us by the sacrifice of others. How can we be worthy of this price paid?

The war has given a fresh demonstration of the value of the university to the state: in days of peace what can Canada expect from her university-trained men? The state should have the right to expect from you:

1. The leadership which ample knowledge and clear thinking make possible.
2. Some service in public life as citizens, even though it be unpleasant.
3. Some expert knowledge in the solution of national, political, social, industrial and educational problems.
4. Some skill in piercing shams, superficial or misleading phrases and slogans.
5. Thorough, honest, hard work in whatever field of life you choose as your own.
6. Integrity of character and conduct.
7. The development of a sense of duty, of moral responsibility.
8. Wise planning for the unity of Canada, on the basis of common citizenship and common responsibility in the building up of a great community of free, intelligent and upright men and women.

May I sum up by asking you to link yourselves to some great causes; to give some definite service to the state and the community; to seek above all things the development of personality—our most priceless possession; to remember with practical loyalty your Alma Mater; to make our country worthy of its opportunities; to fear God and keep His commandments.

President and Chancellor of the University of Toronto.

IT is indeed for me a privilege and an honour to extend to the graduates of 4T5 the felicitations and best wishes of University College. Your welcome to me, your co-operation, your conduct and your academic attainments have made me happy and proud to be a member of no mean company—the Royal College.

You will be told that you are putting forth to stormy seas. That is true. But you will not be daunted. When did Canadian youth evade adventure or dodge danger?

While the storm raged outside, you, in the harbour of the College, have been studying principles of seamanship, equipping your craft, loading them with provisions of knowledge for your busy and leisure hours, fitting their sails and plotting their courses. Now you are about to cast off.

Some fair winds will favour you; sometimes your seamanship will be tested by adversity. If you keep a sharp look-out, you will recognize, and be guided by, the lighthouses, beacons and buoys described by your teachers. The farther from the harbour you sail, the more you should study the charts which are available. On occasion, however, you will be obliged to depend on your own soundings and bearings. You alone must accept the responsibility of piloting your ships, but you need not travel alone. You may appoint as officers of the watch those great souls to whom you have been introduced by your teachers and with whom, through their writings, you have communed. During your voyage, you should sign as members of your crews other intellectual and spiritual leaders. May devotion to duty, steadfastness and courage be emblazoned on the pennants flying from your mast-heads. May you steer always by the pole-star of truth.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE PERMANENT EXECUTIVE, 1945

A Message from the Class of 4T5

TO University College, we shall forever owe a debt, for facilitating an association of students from all walks of life. Indeed, our college has been rightfully named, for universal it is in the most liberal sense. For the past four years we have had the privileged opportunity of studying the liberal arts. More important has been the example of a way of life that we of University College may extend to all as an ideal.

In a non-sectarian college, students of diversified cults, religions, and nationalities have proven how simple it is to forget the differences of their fellows and accept the best of each in order to enrich our democratic way of life. Reviewing our undergraduate days shows us how co-operation, and the understanding of our differences, have made our college outstanding in every field of endeavor.

We can well boast of our achievements in athletics, with the numerous championships added to our college list. We can be proud of the success of our Follies, the friendly spirit of the Red and White, the atmosphere of Parliament. All our great college events resulted from that U.C. spirit and from the ability of everyone to get behind a common cause.

Now that we are graduating into the "University of the World", we can take forward all that we have learned. The lesson we should well remember and teach, is that of a true democratic understanding of all our fellow citizens, regardless of race or creed, in order that we may build a better and happier world.

BACK ROW: T. M. Stitt, Secretary-Treasurer; R. C. Marjoribanks, Treasurer; G. G. McCaffrey, Third Year President; D. L. Goldberg, Fourth Year President; E. J. Michasiw, Second Year President; A. J. Foster, First Year President; F. G. Garner, Secretary.

University College Literary and Athletic Society

ROUND the panelled walls of the historic U.C. Junior Common Room march year after year the gilded names of successive "Lit" Executives. Its slate of officers periodically shuffled from decade to decade, the "Lit" this year made another organizational change, perpetuated on the walls for posterity the title of another brand-new office: that of Publicity Director.

Press-agent for a bewildering multiplicity of College events, Publicist Ralph Shepherd had a hectic year. Leading off the parade was the Soph-Frosh Banquet, traditional climax of freshman initiation, which was staged in the Crystal Ballroom of the King Edward Hotel. Here Principal Smith addressed the incoming frosh, made his memorable division of students into three classes: low and lazy, broad and hazy, high and crazy.

Mopping his brow, Shepherd next plunged into Follies Pressagentry, spread campus-wide the germs of Follies Fever.

Two old events rechristened were additional publicity headaches: the Joint Meetings, which took on new glamour, sported a more highbrow program, as "Red and White Nights"; and the spring Arts Ball, revitalized this year with a Latin motif, an auxiliary rhumba orchestra, and a castanet-clattering soloist, under the name of "Fiesta".

Spurred by a Shepherd-sponsored P. A. System, hordes of Royal Collegians thronged the stadium to see the Red and White team carry off the Mulock Cup from a heavily-favoured School Team. Exuberant, they snatched the famed School cannon, later declared War when School snatched it back.

As the spring leaves bndded, Shepherd took a deep breath, turned to his books. It had been a successful year.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE WOMEN'S UNDERGRADUATE EXECUTIVE

BACK ROW: C. Carew, Secretary; C. Weir, First Year President; R. Margeson, Third Year President; E. Swartz, Publicity Director; P. Flyn, P. & H. E. Representative; R. McCubbin, Glee Club Directors; J. Cleak, Household Science Representative; Marg Strahl, Treasurer; C. MacQueen, Debates; R. McDougal, First Year Representative.

FRONT ROW: J. Ebbels, Social Director; E. Anderson, Fourth Year Representative; Miss. M. B. Ferguson, Dean of Women; Rose Rabkin, President; Mrs. C. N. Cochrane, Honorary President; E. Kennedy, Athletic Director; M. Ferguson, Social Service Director.

University College Women's Undergraduate Association

CELEBRATING this year a shotgun wedding with the harassed but far from reluctant "Lit", the University College W.U.A. emerged from undeserved obscurity, staked a claim with chintz curtains to the southern half of the historic "Lit" offices back of the common room.

A self-governing body to which every U.C. woman belongs by right of enrolment, the W.U.A. holds executive meetings every week of the school year, unites decorously in joint session with the men's organization once a fortnight. Follies, Arts Ball, Red and White Nights, and similar stirring activities enjoy their joint paternal benediction.

The year's first job for the W.U.A. comes with the Senior-Freshie House-party, held at the opening of term to orient the shy freshies, acquaint them with the college and its activities, soothe with tummy-tickling special supper their ruffled reaction to initiation proceedings.

Other activities sponsored by the W.U.A. during the year include the S.C.M., the Women's Glee Club which appears at the Dean's Christmas Party, and the Undergraduate Magazine. A 1945 inauguration was a W.U.A.-sponsored all-undergraduate art exhibit and musicale, which received professional, uncondescending treatment in The Varsity's A.M. & D. columns, nemesis of many a professional.

Nominations held at separate meetings preceded the joint Lit and W.U.A. elections at the end of the year; announcement of election results and the sponsorship of the Graduation Banquet (addressed by Social Work's Dr. Cassidy) brought the governing bodies' joint activities to a close.

YEAR EXECUTIVES

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE MENS' YEAR PRESIDENTS

SITTING: Dave Goldberg.

PICTURED above and opposite are the Year Executives of the Lit and W.U.A., ready at the drop of the hat to scream in chorus that, while parent executives cop the glory, it is they who do the work. Careful survey of more glorified office-holders discloses guarded agreement, eagerness to give the year executives credit for putting into action the increasingly heavy U.C. programmes.

Responsible specifically for all functions or problems pertaining to their respective years, the Year Executives have specific additional duties in connection with the doings of the college as a whole. Year Presidents attend the Lit and W.U.A. executive meetings, accept jobs in the name of their executives for such large projects as the Follies and the Arts Ball.

Roughly, Fourth Year executives are responsible for graduation pictures, Torontonensis material, and the spring Graduation Banquet. The men's Third Year executive keeps its multiple fingers in the Literary Director's multifarious pies; the women's is responsible for the formal initiation of freshies in the fall.

Second Year Executives see to the success of the Soph-Frosh banquet, First Year Dance, take out in such constructive projects their inevitable paternal feeling towards all frosh. Assisting the Social Director with the Follies and kindred activities is another of their specific headaches. The First Year Executive, elected in the first few weeks of the term, is responsible for keeping all its classmates informed and satisfied, frequently serves as a seed-plot for future politicians.

Through the year executives the Lit and W.U.A. receive raucous and often valuable criticism which aids in planning each year's program. Their fingers intimately on the student pulse, the class officers check the main body's inevitable tendency toward oligarchy, help keep U.C. democratic, satisfied.

*Sunt lacrimae rerum, et mentem mortalia tangunt.
Tears haunt the world: man's fortunes touch man's heart.*

YOU will graduate into a troubled world, a world full of grief for its sons who have perished in war and full of fear lest their sacrifice may again prove to have been in vain. Its hope lies in you, who owe a debt both to the past and to the future. We know that you are ready and willing, if need be, to risk life and limb in the cause of justice and freedom with the same gallantry and courage as your immediate predecessors in these halls, but if, as we hope, this should prove unnecessary, your task will be no less arduous or important. Upon you will rest the responsibility for seeing that war does not happen again.

The Roman poet who wrote the line quoted above had a religion of humanity, and in this respect at least may be regarded as a true Christian prophet. Sympathy in suffering and sorrow makes the whole world kin and provides a Christian basis for a lasting peace. You are particularly well fitted to be leaders of public opinion in this field. If there is one common factor in all the diversified courses of a liberal Arts education, it is the development of tolerance and mutual understanding. This is its "core of wisdom."

Public leadership does not necessarily involve the holding of political office. Educated men and women in every walk of life are the moulders of public opinion. It is our confident belief that you will play your part in guiding our country and the world into a wiser and fairer order than it has ever known.

Message from the Graduating Class, Victoria College

SO now we're graduates, each with our sheepskin and our degree—we've written our last exam and struggled with our last essay. We're glad that, in some ways at least, we are prepared for the life ahead of us, glad that all the years of studying are past. Yet it is inevitable that this happiness be mingled with feelings of sadness and regret. We regret the lost opportunities, the unread books, the neglected lectures. We wish we had made time to join that other club or take part in that extra sport. We say goodbye to students and professors with perhaps a lump in our throat, for some of them we shall never see again.

Nevertheless, the class of 4T5 has many happy memories which will linger through the years. In first year there were the Bob practices where we eagerly scanned the faces of our new classmates, and the tug-of-war, redolent with the aromas of used car oil and rotten tomatoes. Then in no time at all, we were high-and-mighty sophomores, looking down more than a little on the innocent freshmen, and wreaking full revenge for the indignities we had been made to suffer. Third year carried us along in the usual whirl of study and play, and then—seniors! How unbelievable that there was no time left . . .

We came to college in a time fraught with strife and anxiety. We sent our friends off to war, and they will not all return. We had to do without many of the peace-time amenities of college life, and yet we feel that we are, perhaps, better able to accept our inevitable responsibilities in helping to mould the world of tomorrow.

Victoria University 1836-1945

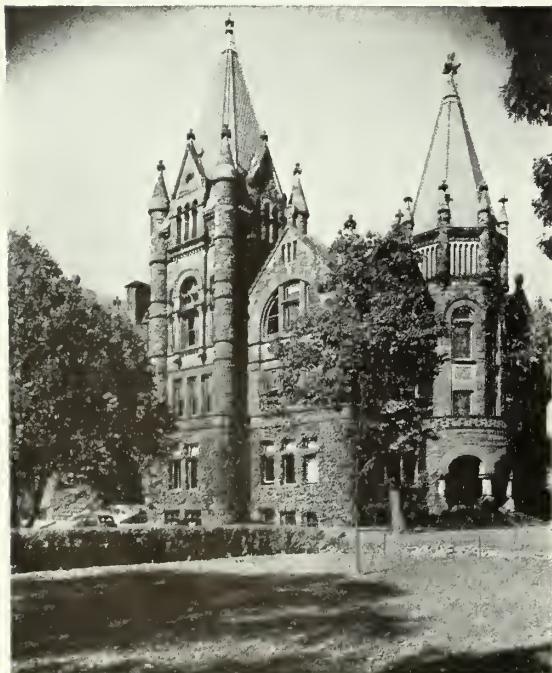

On the Old Ontario Strand

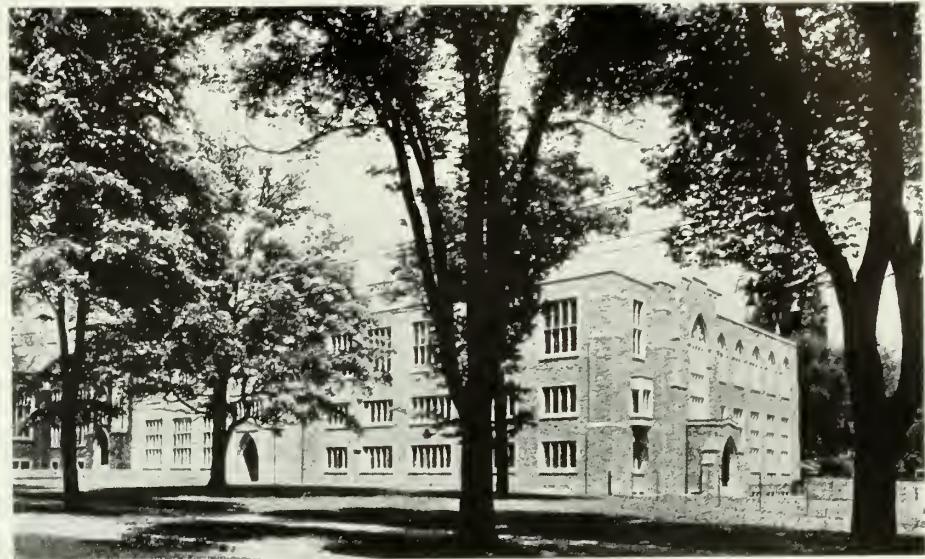

FOR the first fifty-six years of its history Victoria University was located in Cobourg. The Upper Canada Academy was opened in 1836 and on October 12th of the same year the Royal Charter was granted by King William IV. In 1841 the Charter was extended to include degree-conferring powers and the name was changed to Victoria College. The first degree in Arts in Ontario was conferred by Victoria College in 1845 on Oliver Springer.

A Faculty of Medicine was added in 1854; a Faculty of Law in 1860, and a Faculty of Theology in 1871. A department of Science was organized, and Faraday Hall, opened in 1877, was the first building in the province erected and devoted exclusively to scientific work.

In 1884 the name was changed to Victoria University. Egerton Ryerson was responsible for securing the Royal Charter and he was the first Principal of Victoria College in 1841. In 1850 Samuel S. Nelles took charge of the College. Under his wise and far-sighted guidance the work of Victoria grew and expanded as additional faculties were added. Yet for all his foresight, it is doubtful if Principal Nelles could have imagined the proud place Victoria holds today, boasting a registration of 961 students, and federated with the Empire's largest University. The process of that federation and expansion we shall now trace.

Federation With the University of Toronto

The federation of Victoria University with the University of Toronto became an established fact in 1892. Victoria was a pioneer in setting up the system of education by which the provincial university and three independent denominational universities and colleges have, in the course of time through their federation agreements, established the Faculty of Arts of the University of Toronto as it exists to-day.

Since 1892 Victoria University has conferred degrees in Divinity only and her power of conferring degrees in Arts, Medicine, Law and Science has remained in abeyance. From 1892 to 1928 the organization of Victoria University consisted of two faculties, Arts and Divinity. The task of putting university federation into operation and of moving from Cobourg to Toronto was accomplished by Chancellor Nathanael Burwash, who had succeeded Dr. Nelles in 1887 and held office until 1913. His memory is perpetuated in Burwash Hall.

During the difficult war years, and during the period of expansion in 1920-30 when there was a large increase in the number of students and when many new buildings were added, Chancellor R. P. Bowles guided the destinies of the institution.

Growth and Reorganization

Residence accommodation was provided in Cobourg, but for the first eleven years in Toronto, Victoria had no residence for students. The Annesley Hall Women's Residence was opened in 1903. The Birge-Carnegie Library was completed in 1910. Burwash Hall and the Victoria College Men's Residences, the gift of Mr. Chester D. Massey, were opened in 1913.

In 1926 Victoria University received Wymilwood Women Students' Union and Residence, the gift of Mrs. E. R. Wood and Lady Flavelle. Emmanuel College and the Emmanuel College Men's Residences were first occupied in 1931.

Victoria University now has residence accommodation for about 180 women students and about 235 men students.

Church union in 1925 affected both the work and the organization of Victoria University. The Victoria University Act of 1928 provided for two colleges, Victoria College in Arts and Emmanuel College in Divinity. In 1930 Dr. E. W. Wallace succeeded Chancellor Bowles.

Victoria in Wartime

In February, 1941, Principal Walter T. Brown of Victoria College was appointed Chancellor and President of Victoria University, succeeding Dr. Wallace, who had resigned because of ill health.

From May, 1941, until May, 1944, a number of houses of the Men's Residences were occupied, first by members of the R.C.A.F. taking the Radio Technicians' Course, and later by members of No. 1 and No. 2 Canadian Army University Courses.

During the session 1944-45, there are 961 students enrolled in Victoria College and 75 students in Emmanuel College. There are approximately 1300 names on the Victoria University Roll of Service, made up of men and women graduates and undergraduates and former students of Victoria College and Emmanuel College and members of the staff.

On July 1, 1944, Dr. Brown's official title was changed to President and Vice-Chancellor of Victoria University; Professor Harold Bennett became Dean of Victoria College and Professor F. W. Langford, Dean of Emmanuel College.

Victoria College Union

THE Victoria College Union is composed of all undergraduate students in the College. Its executive is elected annually and is responsible for the administration of all student activities, and for the social life of the College as a whole.

The Fall Term opened with one of the largest Freshman Weekend parties in Vic's history, and was closely followed by the 72nd annual Bob, which officially welcomed, in traditional style, the 102nd "best class Victoria has ever seen." The social calendar provided a well-balanced programme of activities for the College year. In the Fall Term two Scarlet and Golds, two very successful productions by the Dramatic Society and Music Club respectively, were supplemented by numerous sporting and class activities, hikes and parties. The Spring Term saw two more Scarlet and Golds, At-Homes of the various clubs and residences, and more class parties. The social year was climaxed by the event of the season, the Vic At-Home.

The federated societies of the V.C.U. presented various programmes to meet the interests of every undergraduate. Through the year six issues of Acta Victoriana were published, and the Debating Parliament presented a splendid series of debates which obtained widespread interest and participation. Both Men's and Women's Athletic Associations capably carried Victoria's colours into every field of sport, and maintained her high standard of ability and fair play. The French Club and Classics Club and the Women's Literary Society report a successful year and increasing student interest, while the Wymilwood Musical Committee sponsored an excellent programme of concerts throughout the year.

Permanent Executive and Award Winners

Link between scattered Vic. classmen and the harassed Alumni Association is the Victoria College Permanent Executive, charged with future organizational headaches in carrying out reunions, dances, banquets, other projects sponsored by the Association.

Partly overlapping with these are the holders of the College Sticks. Elected at the end of third year as the pre-eminent Vic. undergraduates in athletic and non-athletic spheres, the four stick-men and women receive gold Vic pins, cherish for a year historic canes inscribed with the names of previous winners on gold plates. Antiquity of the tradition can be judged from the fact that the names of both Dean Bennett and Mrs. Bennett appear as undergraduate stick-holders.

Women's Literary Society

ITS traditions among the oldest even in tradition-proud Victoria, the Women's Literary Society escapes the sewing-circle taint by extending its privileges to all Vic students, men as well as women.

Aiming to provide an organization wherein each Vic student may find his particular interest, the Society again subdivided itself into interest groups, separately organized, heartily attended, exploiting Vic's famously intimate staff-student co-operation.

Most patently under the casual student's nose through its connection with Acta's dissemination facilities is the Writer's Group, whose coterie of would-be Hemingways and Cathers submit their work to the patient English professors for advice, revision, criticism.

The Art Group carried through a stimulating program of visits to the Toronto Art Gallery, Eaton's Art Gallery, and elsewhere. Feature of the Music Group's activities was a series of illustrated talks by well-known Toronto musicians.

Reflecting currently mushrooming interest in the problems of Jacques and Marie in much-misunderstood Quebec, a French Canadian group was organized this year, spent a successful year studying the social and cultural background of French Canada.

As the society brought its complex season to a close, the retiring executive, their curls unruffled, gracefully wished Miss Coburn and next year's executive "lots of luck for a happy and successful year".

TRINITY COLLEGE

REVEREND F. H. COSGRAVE,

M.A., D.D., LL.D., D.C.L.

IT is my privilege to write a brief message to the members of the Graduating Class of Trinity College. Most of you are leaving our society to face the many critical problems of a disordered world. You have made, I may assume, some study of these problems during your residence with us and you have come to some understanding of them. You know that after the winning of the war must come the winning of the peace and that this means the establishment of just and helpful relations between men and groups of men everywhere. It is only upon a foundation of righteousness that we can build a peace which will be real and lasting.

We believe that with the wider outlook and the freedom from prevailing prejudices which you have gained here you will be able to make no small contribution to the reconstruction of Canadian life and to the effort to make it fit the post-war world. It will be your task especially to overcome the disunity with which we are now threatened. You are qualified to promote an effective understanding between the various groups among the citizens of this country and to further the realization of the ideals of social justice and human fellowship.

We are confident that you will do your utmost both in war and peace to safeguard the liberties of all your fellow-citizens and to assure that justice shall prevail in every relation of life. It is our hope and prayer that your generation may be rewarded by an enduring peace between the nations and between all other groups of men. We send you forth in the confidence you will serve your generation faithfully and intelligently.

Trinity College Board of Stewards

THE democratic instrument of student government at Trinity is the Board of Stewards, which functions as the executive committee of the men of the college, and is responsible to them in the College Meeting.

The eleven elected members represent the three senior years, the graduate students, and the three main student societies: the College Athletic Association, the Literary Institute, and the Review Board of Management. Also associated are the Head of the College, ex officio, and a faculty member who acts as chairman.

Keeping a watchful eye on all societies and transacting all business affecting the Undergraduate body as a whole is the Board of Stewards' dual responsibility.

The Board this year gave active support to the War Services Drive, the I.S.S. drive, the Blood Donor's Drive, and the Typical Co-ed Contest. Specific issues that arose during the year were speedily resolved, clearing the ground for the steady flow of routine matters.

"In the voice of the Board of Stewards", concluded a spokesman, "student government has assumed an enviable and enduring role among the traditions of Trinity College."

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE

B.A., J.C.D.

THIS year's graduating class bears further evidence to the ravages caused to University education by a long protracted war. The men number less than one-third of the classes of a few years ago. Several who would normally have belonged to this class have already made the sacrifice of young and promising lives. These must be assured a permanent claim upon our admiration, our gratitude and our prayers. Many others are serving the Armed Forces in all the battle theatres of the globe and distinguishing themselves by deeds of valour. We pray that they may return safely and soon, having achieved the victory and peace in the cause of which they have freely offered all they possess.

To those who are graduating I would address this admonition: Remember what you are and where you are going. I hope it will be heeded particularly by the women graduates, who this year far outnumber the men. Christian womanhood can and may be the decisive factor in the salvation of the world. The part women play in society is not to be measured by mere competition with men. Those to whom God has communicated to such a large extent His own power of creating and giving life are destined ever to stand on a "borderland between home and society, between abstract speculation and homely reality, between time and eternity." Holding to the rich traditions which your education has placed before you, firmly grounded in your faith and securely poised upon life's realities, you will be able to exercise a strong and beneficent influence upon society.

St. Michael's College

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE, landmark of Catholic higher education in Ontario, has, in the course of 93 years, risen from a small theological seminary to an Arts College of eminent and widespread reputation. Affiliated with the University of Toronto as early as 1881, St. Michael's became a federated college in 1887 but did not begin to function as an Arts College in the University until 1906. In the year 1910, the first St. Michael's class presented its first women graduates. Although St. Michael's was instituted for men only, the college appoints lecturers in St. Joseph's College and Loretto College for the education of women students in the University.

At no other school in this hemisphere can the Catholic student receive the benefits of a highly accredited University coupled with the religious training and joyous brotherhood of a small Catholic college. The system of separate house residents and close companionship with members of the faculty makes St.

Michael's a well-loved home rather than an institution.

Since the beginning of the war enrollment of men students has dropped steadily and last year St. Michael's saw the departure of most of the remaining members of its international element. The ranks of 4T5 have been decimated by the call to arms. But while her sons cover the earth St. Michael's College calls down upon them the protection of her great patron saint and continues to labour among those that are left for the good of the many to come.

WHITE TIES, tails, and evening gowns rustle through lamp-lit Brennan Hall at the St. Mike's At Home, one of the war-time campus' two remaining formals. Earlier in the war, student organizations agreed to keep social events simple, unostentatious, avoid baiting touchy public opinion. With Strachan Hall and Brennan Hall at their disposal, Trinity and St. Mike's were able to hold their At-Homes on campus, remote from public scrutiny, hence remained formal. Sack-coats and sweaters are de rigueur elsewhere.

WYCLIFFE COLLEGE

REVEREND RAMSAY ARMITAGE,
M.C., M.A., D.D.

THE Graduating Class of 1945 goes out to serve in the far reaches of the Canadian Church. It will have its representatives in the Maritimes, on the Prairies and in the North. This is symbolic of the missionary spirit of Wycliffe College which was founded and shall continue that the Word of God have free course.

We shall always remember with loyal affection our Alma Mater. We shall not cease to recall with happy gratitude the years of training and study within the University of Toronto with all its gifts and opportunities. Let us plan that every member of the Class of Forty Five will come back time and again in Alumni Re-union or Refresher Course. As the old Class meets, the story of achievement will grow with the years, for the Field is the World. His Dominion shall be from the one sea to the other and from the river unto the world's end.

Wycliffe College Literary Society

MEMBERS of the Wycliffe College Cabinet yawned, gulped coffee, turned up as City Hall's Big Ben chimed twelve. They had been heart-rendingly informed that difficulty in meeting all members' time-tables compelled the holding of the opening session when theologians are traditionally in bed. So they came, discussed plans for the annual At-Home.

All affairs relating to the Wycliffe student body—with the single exception of athletics—fall to the parliamentary-patterned Wycliffe College Literary Society, whose two-party system of government is designed to develop the administrative ability of its members, to foster public speaking, and to serve the students.

In office at the beginning of the academic year was the Wycliffe United Action Party led by George Doolan, but its defeat on a motion of confidence brought into power at the conclusion of the fall term the opposition Progressive Party. Leadership of the new government was undertaken by C. B. Bourne.

Taylor Trophy debates were keenly contested and stimulated debating interest. The Annual At-Home dinner party in the College, followed by a dance in Hart House was held in late January. Social highlight of the season, At-Home arrangements had been made by Social Director M. Walsh. President Gordon Philpotts headed the Permanent Executive of 1944-45.

KNOX COLLEGE

REV. W. W. BRYDEN
M.A., D.D.

AS graduates of a theological college, your responsibility is distinguishable from that of your fellow-students who graduate from the University classes.

The theological graduate is sent forth primarily to proclaim a Message which is grounded, not in the insight, thought or will of man, but in the Revelation and the Will of God. It is the affirmation that God has actually made known Who He is, alone in Jesus Christ the Incarnate Son, Who was crucified by man, but was raised from the dead by the power of God to live for evermore. It is therefore a message which affirms that apart from this knowledge of God man never really succeeds in knowing himself. To the Christian, man is not just the 'political animal'; nor has the last word been said about him when defined in sociological, psychological or even anatomical terms. Apart from a genuine knowledge of Jesus Christ, men and nations inevitably become 'laws unto themselves'. They become their own disciple and equate their particular 'ways of life' and the corresponding interests with the 'faith once delivered to the saints.' The chaos and anarchy of today is the witness to this fact.

The responsibility of the theological graduate therefore lies in the fact that he is the ambassador of Christ; preaching not himself but Christ Jesus the Lord. To affirm this gospel is not just his privilege but his commission. This does not mean, however, that he may ignore the actual conflict of this life with its palpable injustices which indeed cry out for condemnation. He preaches Christ that men may become more sensitive to the various ills of life may perceive indeed the fundamental cause of these and recognize that no remedy is secure which is not established on the acknowledgment that God is God and that He alone reigneth.

Knox College Association

THE Knox College Association embraces in its membership all students in Theology and those of other faculties who are in residence at Knox College. The objects of the Association are twofold. It seeks to administrate all student activities and to promote the mutual improvement of its members.

Centre House was opened this year for our residents, owing to the conclusion of the Canadian Army course No. 2, thus increasing the membership of the Association. We were glad to welcome again to Knox, the theological students of Presbyterian College, Montreal, all of whom co-operated fully in our activities.

Through its various activities—House, Worship, Social and Athletic, the Association enjoyed an eventful and profitable year.

EMMANUEL

REV. F. W. LANGFORD

B.A., M.R.E., D.D.

IT is a difficult day in which to go out to your ministry. Chaos and confusion are over the entire world. The shape and form in which the world will emerge from this period is not yet known. It is certain that old standards and ideals have been shattered and problems of social reconstruction loom large ahead,—with international and inter-racial ramifications.

What part are you to have in it as Christian ministers? You will doubtless have your contribution to make as educated and intelligent citizens. But your chief part, your distinctive contribution will be as teachers of religion, as preachers of the gospel of Jesus Christ. As we contemplate the new world order for which humanity longs we must remind ourselves that none of the ills of human life are ever finally cured until human lives are changed, until God, with His Gospel of grace and righteousness, has His place in the lives of men.

As ministers of Christ you are set essentially to sound this word and to call your generation to repentance and to sound this word and to call your generation to repentance and to faith and to the enthroning of Jesus Christ at the very heart of our personal and community and national and international life. This has been steadfastly emphasized in every classroom in Emmanuel College, and we trust you will ever be faithful witnesses of that word in the parishes of our Church.

Emmanuel College Students' Society

THE Emmanuel College Students' Society, organization which controls extra-curricular activities of the Students of Emmanuel, is the official body through which student opinion on matters pertaining to College and Church life may be expressed.

The Society works through its committees. The Vice-President's Committee attempts to bring the Church Students in Arts into closer association with the life and fellowship of the College. The Worship Committee arranges the morning chapel services, house worship in the residence in the evening, the monthly Communion Services, and the Fall Retreat. The Missionary Committee promotes Missionary Education and raises money for the Missionary Work of the Church, and this year made a special drive in support of the work of International Student Service. The Residence Committee acts as the official channel for student government in the residence, and arranges for the Musicales.

The Emmanuel College Theological Society in affiliation with the E.C.S.S. promotes weekly noon forums and evening meetings, co-operating in the Theological Colleges Union.

The Spring Banquet to which the Arts Buddies were invited was addressed by Moderator Dr. J. H. Armpur.

The work of the Committees was highly commended. However the Society, and in particular, the executive, felt the absence of the third year, which had graduated from the summer course of 1944. The presence of the third year, with its maturity and experience, would have made the life and activity of the Society this year even better.

COMMERCE AND FINANCE

C. A. ASHLEY,
B.Com., C.A.

YOU leave the University with (in Mr. Shaw's words) "active minds instead of second-hand mental habits," to assume wider responsibilities. Your prime responsibility is to fight against injustice to individuals, and that task will not end with the war. One of the gravest dangers of our time is that people shelter behind the anonymity of institutions, and tolerate actions on behalf of an institution which they would never advocate openly as individuals. For convenience of expression, we personify institutions and talk of the State, the Corporation, the University, and so on, but we should remember that these institutions have no personal existence; they cannot act except through individuals. Those who act for them cannot avoid a personal responsibility: corruption and dishonesty can be attributed only indirectly to institutions; primarily, they are the attributes of individuals.

The department—the members of the staff of the department—will follow your work with sympathy and interest, and our good wishes go with you.

WITH a more progressive program called for in its 24th year in view of swollen membership ranks, the Commerce Club through the year held luncheons, social meetings, athletic activities, annual banquet and dance.

Carrying on the tradition of encouraging discussion on current economic, political, and financial trends, the club was addressed by various experts and celebrities, anthropologist Ray Birdwhistell and radio commentator Rex Frost sharing the spotlight as leaders of discussion at meetings. Members heard Mayor R. H. Saunders' views on "Civic Finances" at luncheon, and F. A. McGregor of Ottawa at annual banquet.

Formation of a bowling league featuring competition between year-teams was another innovation.

The Commerce Club is the official organization of undergraduates in Commerce and Finance, acting as a unifying influence between students and staff, promoting discussion of things political, financial, economical. The Commerce Journal, circulated in Canada and the United States, is the official spokesman of the Club.

FACULTY OF MEDICINE

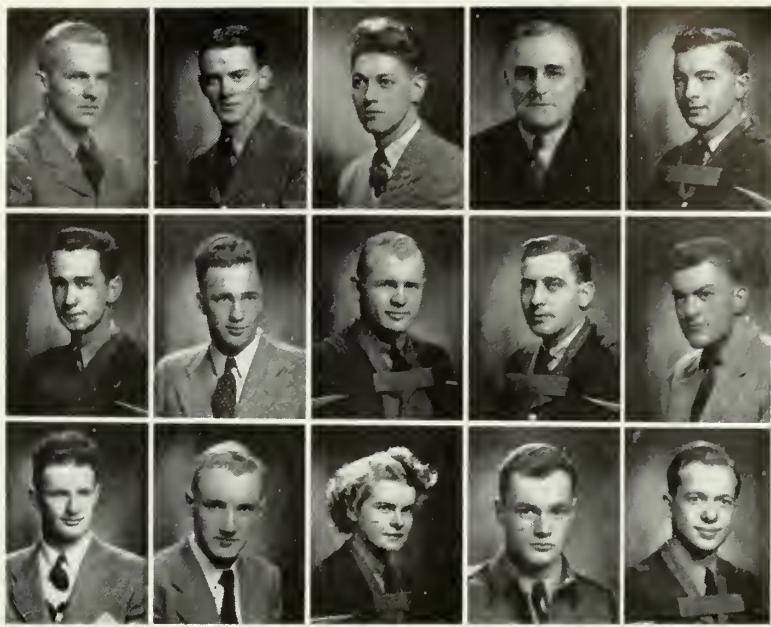

W. E. GALLIE,

M.D., F.R.C.S. Eng., F.R.C.S.(C.), F.A.C.S.

AS the Spring of 1945 advances it becomes increasingly evident that the war in Germany is rapidly approaching its climax and that victory for the Allied Armies is assured. It would seem, therefore, that this graduating class will be the last to see service overseas. Indeed it is possible that before the intern year is completed demobilization may have already commenced.

It is unlikely, however, that there can be a return to normal post-graduate training for several years, for it must be remembered that there are hundreds of young Medical Officers overseas who must now be given in some degree the opportunities which they have missed through absence at the war. To this graduating year, therefore, if it should turn out that their services as Medical Officers are not required, let me suggest that ways of occupying the time between the rotating internship and further postgraduate training be considered now, so that returning Officers may have the opportunity they must have now or never.

To all who attended the Convocation of 1945 it was evident that the Special Convocation for Students in Medicine is something which should be continued. On February 16th Convocation Hall was completely filled with the students and their friends. It happens that with the opening of the new four-year course in Medicine with its two Pre-medical Arts Years the final examinations will not take place till the first week in June. This will mean that Convocation cannot take place till near the end of the month. The success of the wartime private Convocations justifies us in looking forward to similar events in Convocation Hall and on the quadrangle or at Hart House with the greatest pleasure.

The Medical Society

THANKS to the co-operation of the former executive, the Society this year was able to set out upon its course of activities with some semblance of financial security, and during their term of office, the active members, by close management and hard work, maintained this position.

The subsidiary organizations received support as in the past, and this year the Society played host to an open meeting for the discussion of a health bill proposed by C.A.M.S.I.

During the course of the year, the financial plight of the Medical Athletic Association received much attention from the Society. It was decided that the Athletic Association must have greater support in order to function successfully. Since the onus of the support falls on the Society, attempts were made to increase the budget of the Society by means of a larger grant per student per year. It is hoped that the future executive will find it possible to put the above plan into action.

Gloomy financial histories of past executives, plus the well known fact that this Society receives the smallest budget of any on the campus, bears witness of the need of immediate action to bring about the proposed changes.

The Brief was presented to the students and discussed at an open meeting by Dr. T. C. Routley, Secretary of the Canadian Medical Association.

Further, the local CAMSI constitution was revised and awaits approval of the Medical Society and students before adoption.

The report on curricular studies was completed and presented to the National CAMSI conference at Montreal, by Chairman John McIvor and George Sanger.

Other members of last year's Executive include: Roy Howarth, Miss Mary Thornhill, E. Fish and Miss L. Craig.

THE ninety-three girls in the Faculty of Medicine are represented to the world by the Undergraduate Association and the Medical Women's Athletic Association.

The feminine touch is added to the Medical Society Executive through this year's president of the Undergraduate Association, Agatha Tate, who also adds to the social life.

The Athletic Association is recruiting agency for sports-minded girls, and this year has convinced many strong teams that they have time to play baseball, tennis, basketball, and hockey. With a few old School enemies in their ranks, the Meds-S.P.S. Basketball team finished up in the finals in Hart House; a worthy record for a small but gallant enrolment.

APPLIED SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING

C. R. YOUNG

B.A.Sc., C.E., D.Eng.

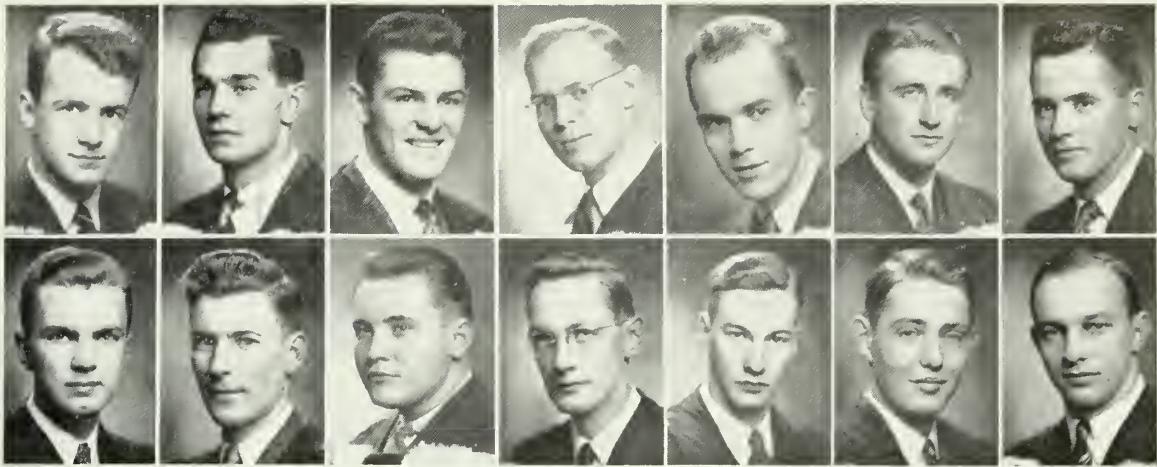

IN all human endeavour not only is satisfaction experienced by the contender in the achievement of important stages but incidental encouragement is gained for further effort. Nowhere is this more true than in the educational field and no one more vividly realizes it than does the student.

It takes less courage to embark upon a university course than to persist in it to a triumphant conclusion. For the student, as for every-man, there is appositeness in the prayer commended by Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery to his men before battle:

“O Lord God, when Thou givest to Thy servants to endeavour any great matter, grant us also to know that it is not the beginning, but the continuing of the same until it be thoroughly finished, which yieldeth the true glory.”

The years through which the members of the graduating class of 1945 have passed have been difficult years. Inescapable obligations arising out of the war have in some measure rested upon everyone. Much more of the credit is in consequence due to those who have done well in their courses than would be the due of those graduating in more normal times.

But while a highly significant milestone has been passed in moving from the relative quiet of the campus to the turbulent world outside, there are stages in the journey ahead that will tax the character and resolution of every graduate. Whether it be by service in war or by the endeavours of peace, those who have enjoyed the privileges of the universities are specially called to aid in the re-establishment of the wholesome elements of a life that we once knew.

APPLIED SCIENCE AND ENGINEERING PERMANENT EXECUTIVE, 1945

BOTTOM ROW: H. Agnew, A. C. McDonald, T. J. Batke, C. S. Morgan, C. B. Gill, R. B. Taylor, J. S. Marshall, Councillors.

Permanent Executive, 4T5

THE function of the Permanent Executive is to keep the class in touch one with the other, to arrange reunions and parties with other years, and to carry on the business of the Class of 4T5, Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, until the last member breathes his last.

Your first memorandum of the fact that there is a permanent executive will come very shortly when you are touched for a small contribution. The next will be a news letter telling where all the gang have gone and after that will be planned a re-union for the year in some suitable emporium.

We would like to remind you always to leave a forwarding address, to forward to the Secretary any news item which the others would appreciate (marriages, births, appointments and jail sentences, etc.), always stand ready to help a fellow class member if the executive inform you of some special service you can do.

We appreciate the honour of being chosen to represent our fellow graduates and will endeavour to faithfully fulfil our function as your executive. The good times we have had together at School will live on in our memories for years to come and we can anticipate our first re-union, when we will live them through again. Until that time, may the Class of 4T5 be richly blessed in all their undertakings as individuals and as a unit, and may the spirit of School always burn bright in our hearts.

President: W. G. Tamblyn, 67 Roxboro Road.

Vice-Presidents: R. F. Moore, D. D. Currie.

Engineering Society

THE Engineering Society of the University of Toronto has written another year into its minutes and with the close of this school year looks forward—as the oldest Engineering society in Canada—to the celebration of its Diamond Jubilee.

Regarding the Engineering Society and School as indivisible. Schoolmen quickly discover how great a part the Society plays in their university careers "from the moment we enter college, proudly wearing our green ties to our last look at the Little Red Schoolhouse."

Supplementing academic courses, Society general sessions feature helpful discussions by prominent engineers. The Society's Transactions and Year Book records the yearly School activities.

Hub of School's social life, the Society sponsors the Freshman Reception program, School Dinner, School Nite and the At-Home.

War restrictions and military training have not lessened the Society's vigour. The University course this summer for ex-servicemen has been carefully planned for the Society.

FOURTH YEAR EXECUTIVE

BACK ROW: A. C. McDonald, Engineering Physics Club; R. E. Upper, Civil Club; C. B. Gill, Mining and Metallurgical Club; L. Elliott, Mechanical Club; K. R. Brigham, Industrial Chemical Club; H. R. Agnew, Architectural Club; C. S. Morgan, Electrical Club; M. Heifetz, Aeronautical Club.

A Message From the Fourth Year Executive

ANOTHER spring and another graduating class, but this time its US! Another few months and we will be out in the world with an iron ring on our fingers. Which means that we are getting old, and gives us the privilege of reminiscing.

We were led through our first year of School life by Jack Stafford. On the night of the Frosh Reception he even led us through Whitney Hall.

Our second year was skippered by Pete Aykroyd, and although wartime restrictions stopped us from receiving the class of 4T6 as we would have liked to, our executive managed to have the rest of our affairs carried out in traditional style.

Then came third year, and our ranks were much depleted because the "no repeaters" rule had come into effect. Doug Currie was the manager now, and through his efforts our Grad Ball fund is the largest on record.

Which brings us to the present, with the Grad Ball, the Kipling Ritual, and graduation almost upon us. We have been privileged to be allowed to stay at School, and this privilege, like any other, involves an obligation. Ours is to use the knowledge we have gained here to help end the struggle as quickly as possible and what is probably a bigger job, to help keep the peace. But if the "spirit of 4T5" burns as brightly without the gates of School as it has within, there need be no fear of this obligation remaining unfulfilled.

FACULTY OF DENTISTRY

A. D. A. MASON

D.D.S.

THIS year, 1945, Dentistry is celebrating the centenary of the first use of anaesthetic to relieve pain during a surgical operation. In 1844, Dr. Horace Wells, one of the leading dentists practicing in the United States of America, used a general anaesthetic for the first time in a surgical operation and thus became one of the great benefactors of mankind. He is recognized as the discoverer of anaesthesia and the profession of dentistry lives in his reflected glory.

You are entering that profession and inherit a worthy heritage from the life works of many of your predecessors. The history of Dentistry is rich in many advancements and great progress has been made in the fields of dental research. Studying the lives of these great dentists makes one proud of the nobility of dentistry and assures one of a broad and extensive field of service to one's fellow men.

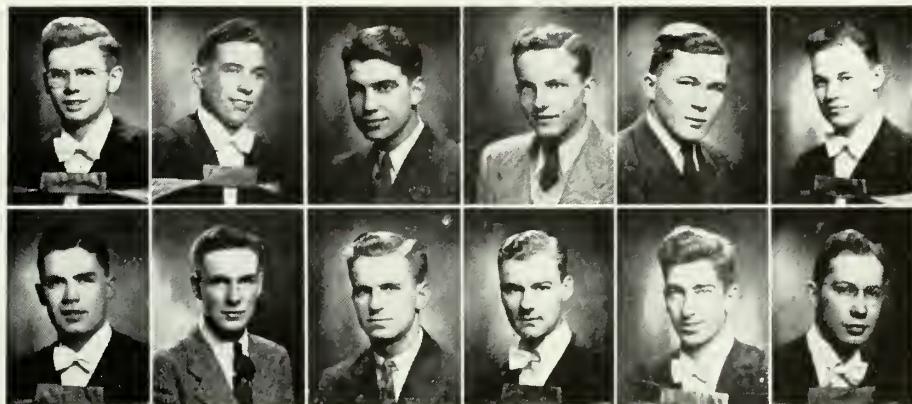

Five years have passed since you entered this Faculty. Five years in a world torn with war, strife, turmoil, and confusion. This is a challenge to you as men and women with trained minds to become leaders directing the thoughts and actions of your fellow citizens into sane and Christian channels. The future depends on you, it is a great and thrilling opportunity. May you go forward well-equipped to take your place in the war effort and in the post-war period to help make Canada, this home country which we love so much, the best country in which to serve humanity.

The Faculty and your Alma Mater join with me in wishing you the full realization of your fondest anticipations and may you follow the great benefactors of dentistry who have blazed the trail ahead.

Cabinet of Dental Students' Parliament

THREE years of an accelerated course have passed and the Faculty of Dentistry settles back to its regular system.

The pace of these war years had forced the Students' Parliament to forego many activities in which time-rationed students were unable to participate.

However 1944 has seen the Faculty once again resuming its position as "an important cog in University life" with its contributions to the War Services Drive, the I.S.S. Drive and the dazzling Dentantics.

Thorongh organization of the athletic directorate has brought about an increase in the number of interfaculty teams.

Remarkng on "the enthusiasm in the lower years" leaders of the Students' Parliament predict "that such a force will provide a great deal of future undergraduate leadership." Boast they: "We have attempted to lay a sound foundation."

DENTAL NURSING EXECUTIVE

COMPANION organization to the Cabinet of Students' Parliament Faculty of Dentistry, the Dental Nursing Executive organizes and supervises the extra-curricular activities of the Dental Nursing student group. Though these students are at college for only one year, through co-operation with a strong alumnae group they are able to benefit by past experience, give some continuity to their organization.

Working hand in hand with student dentists, dental nurses add the feminine touch to activities of the Faculty of Dentistry, to which they feel they really belong. Many social events are held in common. One feature of this teamwork is the annual welcoming party given by worldly graduating dents in honour of timid expectant newly-registered dental nurses.

Students in the course collaborated with Dentistry students to make Dentalnatics a huge success by taking part in skits; putting on a special beauty contest, parodying the one held in Convocation Hall I.S.S. Day. Misses U.C., Vic. etc., were lost in the shuffle as Miss Dental Nursing captivated the judges to become Campus Queen.

ONTARIO COLLEGE OF PHARMACY

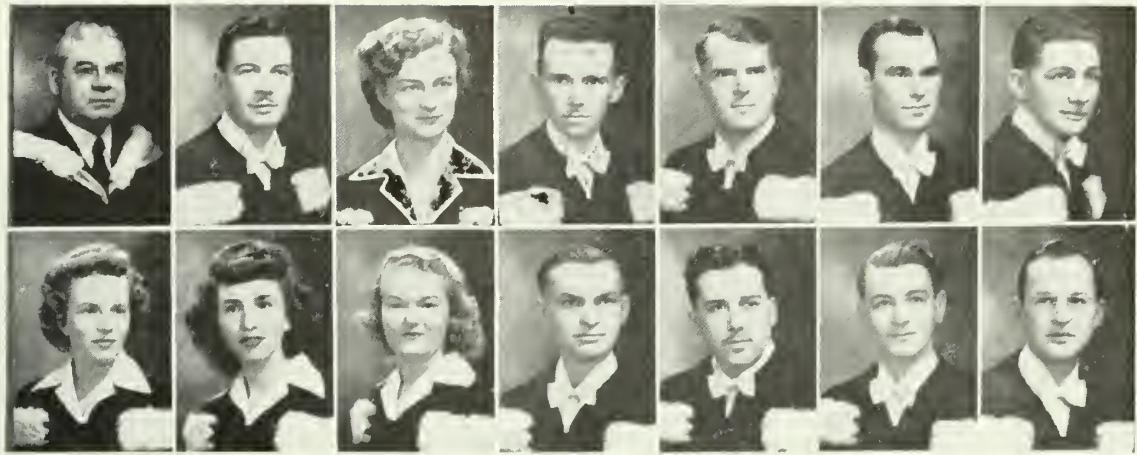

R. O. HURST

Phm.B.

THREE never was a better time for graduates in Pharmacy to take a firm stand for unity—unity in bringing about a better practice of pharmacy, unity in support of our proclamation of an advanced course in pharmacy which will be reflected in a greater interest in Pharmacy. The members of our profession who will assist in these promotions are members of our associations, educationists, counsellors, and you the members of the graduating class. In fact I should put the present graduating class first, because you have everything to gain in the re-birth of pharmacy. Your youth, your enthusiasm, your fresh outlook will enable you to become consistent workers for the uplift of our profession.

The year 1944 will stand as witness of one of the most pronounced changes ever to be authorized by this College, namely the approval of a four-year course of instruction. Freely interpreted this means fine opportunities for students in the years to come, opportunities for research and advanced training to help them to fill positions which heretofore have been closed to our graduates. Of course these changes will take place after the war is over, so that we may still have the privilege of welcoming some of you back to our corridors again.

In the meantime, success to you, and remember that we shall always be glad to see you and will be interested in your journeyings and your adventures.

ONTARIO COLLEGE OF PHARMACY SENIOR EXECUTIVE

TOP ROW: Dean R. O. Hurst, Honorary President; R. W. Featherston, President; Velma Purdy, Hon. Vice-President; W. J. O'Connor, Vice-President; F. E. F. Oliver, Secretary; J. Short, Treasurer; A. T. Crowe, S. A. C. and Torontonensis Representative.

From Senior Executive — O.C.P.

AT a time when victory looms imminent beyond the horizon for our embattled forces; at a time upon the peoples of the world prepare to take up the task of reconstruction and reconversion to peace; at this time of peculiar crisis are we turning from our scientific studies to embark on our greatest course of all—the study of life.

Because of the educational background which we have received during our short stay at College we can be confident that the years ahead will be full, happy and interesting, not easy; but we have come to associate happiness with achievement, and know that only through perseverance can we attain our ambition. Our association with each other, and with our inspiring faculty members, has broadened our outlook in all directions, has given us invaluable social experience, and has literally made new people of us. What is more important, we have learned the science of Pharmacy and are proud to be members of that ancient but ever advancing profession, which plays such an important role in the life of man.

With this joint knowledge to guide us, we leave our College, perhaps feeling some of the sentiment conveyed in the lines of our great Canadian poet who wrote:—

“To you, from failing hands we throw
The torch. Be yours to hold it high.”

We have a life to live, a position to fill, a profession to uphold. Let us to the task.

FACULTY OF FORESTRY

G. G. COSENS,
B.Sc.F., M.A.

THE graduating class in Forestry, together with recent graduating classes and in common with graduates entering other activities, has suffered because of the war. All your undergraduate work has been done under war conditions. Several of your classmates enlisted and you have not yet been permitted the full enjoyment of normal university life. You are graduating in Forestry as a small class at a time when many large undertakings are greatly handicapped by the scarcity of trained men, but the outlook is promising.

The end of the war will bring great changes in our forest industries, in their methods of production, their products, and their markets. All phases of forestry offer splendid opportunities. Plans are under way already for the construction of many miles of forest roads, for permanent river driving improvements, for fire trails and fire guards, for the development of forest communities, and for many other undertakings that will enable you to effect changes and improvements in the forest impossible in the past.

There are still many problems to be solved in the field of forest research. These will be concerned with the establishment, care, and growth of the forest. Facilities not before available will be provided for research along these lines.

In the bringing about better silvicultural care and management of Canada's forests there will be opportunity for work that will be constructive and for a life that will be both interesting and enjoyable.

EXTENSION COURSES

Physiotherapy Pass Course for Teachers Occupational Therapy

W. J. DUNLOP,
B.A., B.Paed., F.C.I., LL.D.

AGAIN this year, as was the case last year, there are, among the graduates in the Pass Course for Teachers, several members of His Majesty's Armed Forces who, having taken advantage of the special facilities provided for them, have completed the course and have qualified for the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Before enlistment, these men were teachers. When Victory has been won by the United Nations, they will resume teaching with additional academic qualifications which will mean much to them in their work in the schools. My heartiest congratulations are accorded to these men who have used such leisure time as they have had to enhance their status in the teaching profession. And there are teachers, women and men, as well as business and professional men, housewives and others, who are now graduating after years of attendance at the University in the evenings, on Saturdays, and in the Summer Session. All honour to them! They have fully earned the laurels which await them.

In the Department of University Extension there have been, for many years, the Diploma Courses in Occupational Therapy and in Physiotherapy. These are two-year Courses which provide an intensive, practical training for young women who wish to serve their Country in military hospitals, in general hospitals, and in private practice. Naturally, since the outbreak of the present War, there has been a tremendous demand, from the Armed Services, for Occupational Therapists and for Physiotherapists to assist in the therapeutic treatment of casualties. Many graduates of these two Courses are now Overseas where they are indispensable in the military hospitals. This year's graduating classes are the largest in the history of these two Courses. Indeed, it has been necessary to accelerate both Courses this session in order to supply the demand. My best wishes go with all these graduates for whom positions of great importance are waiting. They will alleviate the suffering and will speed the recovery of many sailors, soldiers, and airmen.

PHYSIOTHERAPY

MISS L. POLLARD

AS graduates in Physiotherapy you are entering a career full of growing interest and expanding scope. You have the great satisfaction of knowing that your emergence from training is awaited with impatience by the service hospitals in Canada and Overseas, by the hospitals for returning veterans and by civilian hospitals throughout the country. Your predecessors have paved the way and the value of your work is now established. You have, therefore, a rare opportunity for service, and your work will play an important part in the national scheme for the rehabilitation of the wounded.

The best wishes of all the staff go with you. We feel sure that, as knowledge and experience develop, you can look forward with hope and enthusiasm to a career of great interest and usefulness.

PHYSIOTHERAPY UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION EXECUTIVE

PHYSIOTHERAPY UNDERGRADUATE ASSOCIATION

DESPITE pressing demands of accelerated training which left little time for extra-curricular programmes, the Physiotherapy Undergraduate Association has continued, for the fifth consecutive year, to organize efficiently the social activities of the undergraduate group.

Bright spot of the season was the initiation party for the first year, at which the freshettes were introduced to the less orthodox uses of electrical equipment, by sinister sheet-swathed seniors. Terpsichorean activities included two "sweater hops", the first given by the seniors, in honour of the juniors; the second, a retaliation some time later; and the more sedate annual Physio-O.T. At Home held in the Royal York Hotel in January.

The Association is proud that it was able this year to finance the donation of a stretcher to the Sick Children's Hospital.

Of the large graduating class, five have entered the Army, one the Navy and one the RCAF. At the end of their six months' internship, nearly all of the forty graduates expect to be in the armed forces.

FRONT ROW: Evelyn Lillie, Social Convener; Miss I. Robinson, Sally Beeman, President Undergraduate Association; Miss H. P. LeVesconte.

The Occupational Therapy Undergraduate Association

THE Occupational Therapy Undergraduate Association was formed in November of 1938.

From its inception, it has aimed to bring about fellowship between the students of first and second years, and to further such enterprises as make it possible for the undergraduates to participate in University life to the full. Each year the Executive plans an extensive program for the enjoyment of its members. Every Occupational Therapy student is a member of the Association and entitled to its benefits.

This year's social activities have included two dances, a skating party, Inncheon, several "fun-frolic" meetings, and the graduation banquet.

The Undergraduate Association has done much for its members socially and educationally, and has aimed at making each one aware of the part she can play in war and post-war rehabilitation. It has become a promising organization, and each year gains new confidence and wider recognition from other faculties on the campus.

PHYSICAL AND HEALTH EDUCATION

E. STANLEY RYERSON

M.D., C.M.

JUST as the dawn of victory appears to be rising on the horizon to bring to its conclusion the greatest war in the history of civilization, you, the members of the graduating class of 1945 of this School, are completing an important epoch in your life experience.

Those of you who plan to become teachers are well qualified to fill "the particular need for greater stress on the subject matter of health in the high schools where students have sufficient maturity to understand the physiologic and scientific background information for healthful living."

Those of you who expect to engage in some community or organized recreational activities with the object of promoting a higher standard of physical fitness in the adult population, will have ample opportunity for the expression of this laudable aim. Others among you will be sought for the physical education aspect of the post-war rehabilitation programme.

In the not too distant future, the day will come when those with your education will be wanted by convalescent hospitals, to cooperate with the physiotherapist, the occupational therapist, the nurse and the doctor in bringing back to health and fitness for life, the convalescents from disease and injury.

You are going out as pioneers in this broadened field of health, physical education and recreation, and as such, much will be expected of you. May you have every success in meeting the arduous demands of your future career.

PHYSICAL AND HEALTH EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

BACK ROW: Lois Dowson, Third Year Representative; Ed. Currah, First Year Representative; Pat Flynn, W.U.A. Representative; Catherine MacMillan, Second Year Representative; Ed. Matthews, Third Year Representative; Virginia Russell, Torontonensis Representative.

FRONT ROW: Jean Carmichael, Treasurer; Miss J. M. Forster, Staff Representative; Douglas Whittle, President; Joan Christie, Second Year Representative; Jean Hartman, Secretary.

Physical and Health Education Association

ALTHOUGH this year marks only the third graduating class from the School of Physical and Health Education, and although its headquarters (to be grouped in the post-war Athletic Building) are scattered between Hart House, the School on Yonge St., and the Lillian Massey Building, P. & H.E. has its own student governing body.

Made up of the President from the third year, a Secretary, a Treasurer, representatives from the other two years, and representatives for the W.U.A., S.C.M., I.S.S., and Torontonensis, the Association not only acts as a student executive, but serves to bring special speakers to general meetings of the undergraduates. Guest of honor this year was Major Isenhart, who addressed the February meeting.

The representative to the W.U.A. links P. & H.E. with University College, and looks after the girl's Athletic Banquet in the spring.

The affiliation with U.C. enables the students to participate in many University College activities. This year several P. & H.E. people took part in the Follies, contributed both music and art to the U.C. talent night in February, and assisted with the joint Athletic Night.

Physical and Health Ed. students also helped with the swimming programme in the other Athletic nights, with ornamental swim teams performing. On several of the evenings the boys put on gymnastic displays.

To the athletic activities of the campus as a whole, P. & H.E. students are of great importance, not only entering teams but providing coaches and officials. In addition, many of the boys act as volunteer instructors in the Hart House P.T. programme.

This year the Girl's Basketball Championship and the Girl's Golf Championship were awarded to members of the school, and P.H.E.'ers played on the U.C. Mulock-Cup-winning Senior Rugby Team. But the great aim of the School is not to garner glory by winning all the cups and games, but to further sports and athletics on the campus, so that they are available and enjoyable to everyone, players and spectators alike; and to promote good sportsmanship to the highest degree in University sports.

Physical and Health Education graduates can look forward to a varied future. The number of available situations far exceeds the number of trained leaders. Post-graduate work in many fields can be pursued; a B.A. degree can be obtained in one year, an M.A. in two, and Science degrees are obtainable from many American Universities.

A shortened course in Physiotherapy leads to a diploma in less than one year, and the College of Education leads to work in the Secondary Schools of Ontario. The Army has openings in rehabilitation work, technical laboratory work, and physical education work generally. Many P. & H.E.'ers contemplate work with Settlements, via the School of Social Work, while the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., and Y.M.H.A. have openings leading to recreational work.

THEY MUST learn before they can teach, and these P. & H.E.'ers are getting a little eagle-eye practice in Free Throws from an Athletic Dept. coach.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

MISS E. K. RUSSELL,
B.A., B.Paed., D.C.L.

THIS year the first candidates are being presented for the new degree of Bachelor of Science in Nursing: the three students in this group, and the nine who qualify for the Diploma, constitute the graduating classes from the courses which include the basic professional training in Nursing.

Of necessity your school has developed rapidly during the war years, but now we hope to take time to consolidate the gains which have been made. At this present moment there is great opportunity to build constructively for the future, and in this statement we refer not only to the proposed physical building, but also to the structure "not made with hands".

At last it is possible to say that the graduating classes are going out into a happier world, that is, happier than it has been for a long time, for something of fear and of sorrow has been lifted, even if much remains. True, it is a puzzled world, but you are equipped to accept the challenge of the problems and difficulties that lie ahead.

The members of the staff extend warm congratulations and good wishes to each one of you.

SCHOOL OF NURSING UNDERGRADUATE

SEATED: Phyllis Jones, Vice-President; Kathleen Anderson, President; Mary McFaul, Secretary.

STANDING: Beth MacCallum, Myra Greenslade, Jean Smiley, Margaret Patterson, Norine Gardner.

ABSENT: Lina-Marilyn McClung.

Puzzlement registers on the twelve-week-old countenance of this youngster as he and a student nurse on duty in the Infant Ward of a local hospital hastily discuss some of life's major problems. Curly fringe atop the tot's still-soft cranium augurs well for his romantic future as he appears to take that much-publicized "turn for the nurse".

Pair of student nurses learn the not-so-gentle art of needle-threading in the upper right photo. Cultural note is added by appearance of textbook in foreground as "seamstress" concentrates. Nurse in lower right has that Thurber-notorized "temperature-taking expression" as she makes a mock examination of a be-bonneted fellow-student. "Pulse normal!" is diagnosis.

SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK

HARRY M. CASSIDY

B.A., Ph.D.

THIS is a wonderful year. For the first time since 1930 graduates of the University go forth into the world's affairs without the dark clouds of Depression or War hanging over their heads. There is hope and opportunity for constructive work and personal happiness for this year's graduates such as no graduating class has had in fifteen long years. Western civilization has been sick unto death. Our democratic way of life has barely survived military defeat. We have a chance now to restore it, to strengthen it, and to make it firm against assault from without or within—a chance that may not recur if we fail.

We turn now to the tremendous tasks of reconstruction at home and abroad. Here in Canada we must achieve prosperity, economic security, and equality of opportunity for all the good things of life, material and cultural, if we are to make our proper contribution to peace in the world. There is a huge backlog of things undone in Canada on account of Depression and War. Our cities are shabby and overcrowded and sadly short of the amenities of modern living.

You who are leaving the School of Social Work in 1945 have a particularly significant part to play in the reconstruction of Canadian life. For Canada must build a great new system of social services and you have been trained especially for this work. In your own careers you will find full opportunity for community service—such as the socially minded graduates of all University courses seek but do not always find compatible with earning a living. Your University salutes you and wishes you Godspeed as you leave. There is a world to gain and each of you in his own way may contribute to the victory. We have faith that you will rise to the challenge.

ONTARIO VETERINARY COLLEGE

C. D. McGILVRAY,
M.D.V., D.V.Sc.

HAVING now reached the allotted span of life the time has arrived when I must soon relinquish my position. Consequently this may be the last time I will be addressing you. My period of service as Principal has extended from the year 1918. In looking back, I am happy to state that my contacts with each succeeding class have always been pleasant, and many lasting friendships have been formed.

Curiously, my duties at the College commenced during the last great world war and are now terminating during a second world conflict. As in the case of the last world war, many graduates and students have sacrificed their lives. To all of those who have "Crossed the great divide" we may fittingly say:—"Ye have fought a good fight,— Ye have finished the course,—Ye have kept the faith."

At this time, may I express the hope that,—"When at last the sword is sheathed and men exhausted call it peace"—that we rededicate our talents and lives to the tasks that lie ahead.

In bidding you Adien, I wish you Godspeed and the fullest measure of contentment, happiness and prosperity.

SIXTY miles from the main University campus, cut off from Varsity traditions, institutions, and activities by the distance that separates Guelph from Toronto, the students of the Ontario Veterinary College have a unique need for a strong executive to guide and stimulate an independent faculty life.

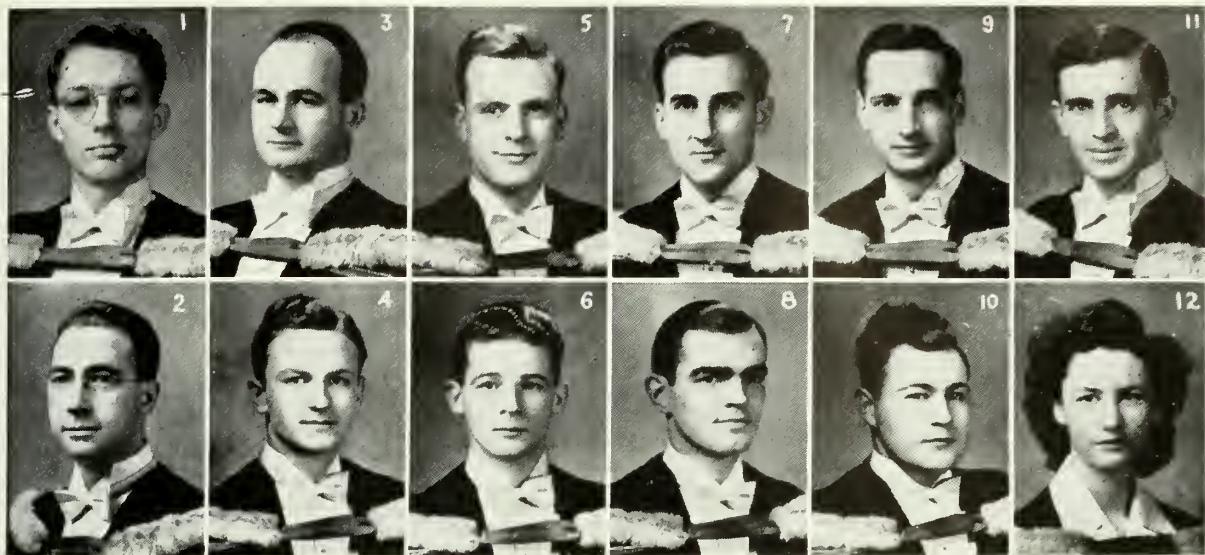

To promote student activities, oversee student functions, and link the faculty with the student body, the eleven-man veterinary S.A.C. draws an annual $10 fee per student, promotes dances, banquets, athletics, course activities. Council membership consists of three seniors, three juniors, three sophomores, and two freshmen, elected yearly to represent their respective classes.

Expenses partly defrayed by the Council fee include those of the various years dances, and of such student societies as the Athletic Association, O.V.A. Students' Chapter, and the Science Association.

An ice-breaker between freshmen and upperclassmen is the Council's annual banquet for all student and faculty members. Usually the first formal function of the year, it opens the way for congenial staff-student relationships throughout the college. Social activities expanded this year with a Council-sponsored, heavily attended dance in the Knights of Columbus Hall, the official verdict "very successful." What next year's executive will add to the social calendar, only time will tell.

A. D. Polonsky

CAMPUS PAGEANT

New and Entrenous

GRADUATION to the graduating must ever seem premature and time a traitor. It is too final a thing to happen so soon.

Torontonensis' Editorial Board, feeling like someone called in to help pack a trunk, discussed its duty, decided that to give to Volume XLVII the true tang of college life a picture-prose panorama would be required.

And what had they learned? And what would they remember? Not only the mere mechanics of education! Not only the conjugation of a French verb, not only the methods of John Stuart Mill, nor the scansion of a line of Sapphic verse.

In one department, a wide-range view of campus life. Into such soil did the idea of Pageant thrust its roots.

There were all the resolved—that's of debaters stating their arguments in capital letters. Thespic thrills. The togetherness of fraternity and residence life. Cautious frosh and swaggering sophomores and the vanity-whittling experience of initiation. Countless clubs, cousins to countless courses. Sunday, buffer of the week, and meditation and worship. The never-failing formula of the faculty formals. The shaky symmetry of The Varsity's make-up.

There were memories! Ever endearing, enduring ever.

Part of the panorama would be captured on celluloid. Mutely eloquent, the photograph could tell its story.

Next need: for hyphen-hypo'd, TIME-type, zephyr text. Typewriters were scrounged, copy-writers rounded up. Not a scrap of text but received their impress.

In the dismay and disarray of Torontonensis' Hart House office, the Editorial Board began to create a yearbook not for posterity but, essentially, for you.

Here are memories! Vintage of 1945.

THE SHOW WAS TERRIFIC

TRADITIONALLY the campus' sole all-out girlesque revue, the 1945 edition of the U.C. Follies seductively exploited its leggy legacy. Beauty microscopic and Glamazonie was paraded by tall and short chorines, while skit-veteran Al Siegel's flawless timing went far to redeem a less than usually brilliant book.

Wielder of the clean-up committee's biggest broom was Siegel's production associate, Joan Ebbels; songs by Rose Rabkin languorously warbled by sultry Gwen Inniss added Pass Arts Polka and Moon Over Hart House to the campus Hit Parade.

For weeks before the show, Jimmy ("Poodles") MacDonald struggled with overture, arrangements, song settings. On show night he held in check a pit orchestra backboned by Schoolmen, restrained them from clambering hungrily onto the stage. Follies tradition has always called for south-campus musicians to serenade the U.C. toe-twinklers. Object—to remind them brutally that "Women are not essential in the life of an Engineer."

LECTURES WERE NEVER LIKE THIS

Gowned and mortar-boarded clowns anticipate graduation high-jinks, raise the theatre roof in a spirited mass-effect finale to skits and songs strung along a tottery lecture-room framework. "Stand up and cheer," chants the chorus here.

CURTAIN-RAISER . . .

"The Show is Terrific", chorussed these top-hatted smoothies in a disconcertingly girl-less prelude. By show's end they had the audience agreeing with them.

THREE shows, the second laundered for faculty consumption, catered to 1,500 spectators in Hart House's jampacked theatre (capacity 500 at a sitting). Meanwhile, the overflow wandered through the House, dancend to three orchestras, ogled svelte splashes evaorting in the pool.

Backstage, decorously profane chorines fumbled with buttons, whipped into costume after costume, ran through tap routines in sequestered corners. Produeers fumbled for missing scripts, hurriedly rewrote shaky lines from show to show. The orchestra dinned, the crowd roared, the scenery swayed and crashed. For weeks after, Follies Fever raged on the campus; its symptoms—shattered nerves.

But they all recovered at the cast party.

DANDER-RAISER . . .

Mr. Smith is taken for a ribald ride in this tender chesterfield scene with Maid Marion (Peg Wallace). Foreground soapbox was Smith-baiter Siegel's podium for the Massachusetts Institute of Technology cliche.

MAGNIFIQUE!

IN staging Moliere's seventeenth century satire on the comedy of manners, "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," the University College French Club demonstrated to a packed theatre that high comedy is international and immortal.

Though presented to an English-speaking audience "dans le theatre de Hart House," and thereby walking a language tight-rope, the play was overwhelmingly successful. Credit for its success went to a competent Classics student, Martin Ostwald, cast in the title role as the pitifully ambitious "bourgeois" with aspirations toward becoming the parvenu "homme de qualite."

Although comparatively sterile in 1943-44, "la Societe Francaise" of University College witnessed in 1944-45 a vigorous Renaissance.

Meetings, conducted entirely in French, were designed to stimulate interest in French culture, civilization; to make less soap-in-the-bathtub-elusive "le mot juste" of everyday French expression.

Scope of addresses heard during the revitalized sessions ranged from a discourse on the Saguenay River to an eye-witness-fresh account of "Escape from France." Eighteenth century "chansons," games, impromptu comedies, featured other meetings.

HISTRIONIC HISTORY

ULTRA-escapism that drives a man to flee from a hopeless world of raw realities and to seek refuge in a more comfortable, and seemingly shock-proof world of his imagination is the theme of "Thunder Rock," as compellingly stark a drama as its title might indicate.

To transfer this psychological study onto the amateur stage without diluting any of its fierce forcefulness would have been a mammoth task for a director of greater experience than John Peck.

That Peck managed it is a credit to his directorial genius. Throughout the U.C.

Players' Guild production of the powerful "Thunder Rock" there was evident the Peck touch, a very definite Peck technique.

Opined the Varsity's Virginia Fox in the November 23 issue: "Peck as the optimist-turned-pessimist Streeter provided a criterion of normality. His naturalness held the production at even keel." Added Fox: "Mel Breen as Charleston . . . handled a difficult role with finesse at times approaching brilliance."

THE EYES HAVE IT

Strictly for the photographer's benefit, Charmion King steps out of Act II's 1840's to break up the Breen-Peck brawl in Act I. Peck prepares to take it on the chin.

COSTUMES and comedy were the order of the night; to explain where these scenes fitted into Goldsmith's hyper-intricate plot would be confusing.

SHE CONQUERS!

THE critics had maintained that Oliver Goldsmith's "She Stoops To Conquer" was a poor choice. They predicted failure for courageous Dora Mavor Moore, appointed to direct the play for the Victoria College Dramatic Society.

But when the S.R.O. sign went up in the advance sale ticket office in Hart House Theatre long before opening night November 10, Mrs. Moore was permitted a small smile and an I-told-yon-so expression.

Confessed Varsity Reviewers Rasky and Fox: "the Society came through handsomely". Histrionic highlight in their opinion was the acting of Vernon Chapman who "played Marlowe with reticence and understanding".

St. Michael's countess conducts clandestine meeting with lover against eerie background of convent garden, in College's dramatic presentation of the season.

MURDER OF THE MUSES

IT had its creepy moments and permitted display of some rather extraordinary acting, but the St. Michael's College Players' production of "Murder in a Nunnery" met with a mixed, preponderantly coolish reception. Chief reason, the story: a potpourri of stock plots that somehow succeeded in dragging violently international topicality and old-fashioned homicide into a Catholic convent, not exactly the place one would look for such things.

Hounded by every opening-night horror imaginable, "Murder" suffered from a tittering and juvenile audience and a poorly-rehearsed cast. Swinging into much-needed extra rehearsals, the players made the second performance tidier.

Unqualified plaudits go to the stage crew, whose leaf-by-leaf and stone-by-stone reereation of a convent garden and chapel, prodded theatre veterans to acknowledge that Hart House had never seen more ambitious staging.

Refreshing dearth of parrotted speeches, astonishing maturity and real recapturing of the prayerful convent atmosphere, underline director Fr. O'Donnell's contention that sincerity rates far above flashy theatre. With a briefer, less creaking script the St. Michael's Players might have swept all before them.

NO GREATER DIN

APTLY titled "No Greater Din", or "The Magnificent Bobsession", the 72nd. annual Victorian version of Hellzapoppin rocked the U.T.S. auditorium to its very foundations, served the time-honoured purpose of capping initiations, subtly indoctrinating frosh with the idea that gently—"bobbed" faculty aren't to be taken too seriously.

An almost impromptu first act called "Draft Board Save My Child" prefaced better things, chiefly the between-acts cheering contest and the Bob Quartet's harmonization of college gossip, which left delicious horror in its wake.

Piece de resistance was the traditional ballet—a distraught and irate Dean of Women, consoled by Plato, an elusive idea which he pursued, and several frustrated students. The setting—Piety Row; the theme—separation of the sexes; the barrier—a Platonic one; the result—a portcullis arrangement; the warning—"always shut the Platonic barrier behind you."

Quipped The Varsity's aching-lunged critics: "The last laugh was a hoarse one indeed!"

"OPEN WIDER!"

THEY put aside their drills and the other playthings of their profession, did these Men from Molars, and they presented—for the twenty-fifth time—Dentantics.

Heralded as no "risqué simulation of a burlesque show" but as a "big campus variety production", this smartly-paced silver presentation proved a box-office click.

Observed Producer Ross Richardson: "We got the show back on its feet after last year's financial defeat". (The previous year it had been necessary to stage Dentantics outside the campus, a severe financial drain.)

Lacking the time-tattered take-offs on profs, its material spring-fresh and oozing with "esprit de campus" the 1944 version of Dentantics was mainly musical. Heading the stellar cast was Soprano Tillie Young.

Delivering the contagious lyrics of the show's song success, the sad saga of "Molar Joe", was Doris Putman. Featured at the keyboard was Maestro John Kaye. Borrowed for the occasion from the Queensway Ballroom vocal mikeside was lovely Georgia Day.

OFF TO BEAUTOPIA

HYPED by a pit crew of authentic "jump" musicians, offering a highly-imaginative, Flash-Gordon-inspired book of not too carefully laundered material, an effervescent School Nite revue hit Hart House boards on December 1.

The possibility-laden plot carried a rocket cargo of stratosfearless Skulemen to the female-inhabited Venus, planet of pulehritude a-plenty. For the excursioning Skulemen it was a case of "Veni, vidi, vici Venus!"

Hilarity highlight was Bill Tamblyn's delicate exposition of the facts of life to the Venusian beauties. Marked by elaborate production and Billy-Rosian props, the 1944 edition of School Nite was applauded as highspot in the Hart House season. Deserved credit was shared by Sally MacDonald, Curt McDonald and Jim Templeton. Also praised was the spirited baton-waving of vitaminstrel "Whitey" Belshaw.

Aquatricks in the pool by The Mermaids, dancing upstairs, Ben Lucas' caricatures in the Gallery and motion pictures in Great Hall completed the successful School Nite program.

VICTORIANTICS

Acta Victoriana's John E. Speers idly toyed with his typewriter shift lock and awaited Inspiration. It is Inspiration's uncanny habit to avoid such a rendezvous as Acta's Speers had planned. But arrive it did. Wrote Speers:

"Hah!" sighed the Concert Committee in unison, musically of course. "That," they added, snapping damp towels and munching left-over biscuits, "is that for one term!"

"And six fine concerts they've been, too," remarked the Convenor reminiscently, waving a cookie. "First there was Tredwell's—"

Which is the Human Story method of sugar-coating the critical pill so deftly managed by Toronto journalists. But we know what a tired committee would do to a Convenor who began reminiscing. . . .

First there was Tredwell's concert. Mr. Tredwell has been so frequent a guest on the campus that choice of programme should prove embarrassing to him, but it never seems to. On this occasion he brought an almost completely new programme of an unusually ambitious standard.

Mr. Adaskin gave the Nov. 12 concert and starred the programme with the Sibelius Concerto . . . a joint triumph of brilliant solo playing and masterly accompaniment, the latter being that of Frances Marr. Fred Milne, violinist, was the first student-performer. Margaret Kerfoot, mezzo-soprano, accompanied by Phyllis Reid made a victorious debut in Wymilwood. Jacqueline Doherty can always be counted upon for a programme of surprises and the piquant arrangements by her teacher-composer-accompanist, Leo Smith, were not disappointing. Jim Macdonald topped the evening.

On the last Sunday of the term we had our traditional Carol Concert.

And at the end of the concert the Committee washed the cocoa-cups, after which they heaved a sigh in unison—and that everyone is where we came in.

UNIVERSITY SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

JOHN REYMES-KING

Musical Director of the University Symphony Orchestra for a second year, distinguished musician John Reymes-King again guided his 70-piece organization through a successful season.

NOTEWORTHY

Organist, Head Librarian George Armbrust's impressive performance of the "King", his rendition of the March from Handel's "Seipio".

Conductor Reymes-King's meticulous treatment of Schubert's Unfinished Symphony.

Gruber's informal approach to Rossini's Overture to "The Barber of Seville", considered the composer's finest work along that line.

Tireless members of the Orchestra's executive committee were: Rev. G. Philpott, Chairman and S.A.C. Representative, George Hurst, Musical Assistant to the Conductor, George Armbrust, Head-Librarian and Organist, Jean McMillan, Personnel Manager, and Elaine Frieker and Katharine Williams, Librarians.

H.M.S. PINAFORE

A four-night box office sellout was the Vic Music Club's early December performance of H.M.S. Pinafore. Directed by Toronto's G. & S. experts, Geoffrey Hatton and Godfrey Ridout, and drawing on the enthusiasm of 121 Club members frontstage and back, the show was an unqualified success. The photos, which we lack space to identify separately, give a good idea of staging, costuming, and enthusiasm. You'll have to take our word that the music was a delight.

CODY KALEIDOSCOPE

With upraised finger (second from bottom left) he describes "the beastie in the bell-tower". Adjusting his pince-nez (top centre) he consults statistics on the future growth of his university. In a merry, reminiscent glow he recounts student high-jinks of the eighties. Conducting an informal press conference for copy-hungry Varsity reporters, President H. J. Cody is having the time of his life.

There is nothing set, stiff, self-conscious about the President. Before cameras and interviewers he talks as easily, as enthusiastically, as among intimates in front of the fireplace in his Jarvis St. home.

To emphasize the humanity rather than the official dignity of the retiring President, Torontonensis presents this unusual spread of photographs.

“STEADILY AND WHOLE”

FAREWELL SPEECH TO DR. CODY

Delivered at the S.A.C. Banquet

By WILLIAM G. TAMBLYN

IN the year 1867 the Dominion of Canada gained Confederation under the British North America Act. The following year another event occurred, in many ways no less auspicious, and that was the birth of Henry J. Cody. This revival of dates is not to accentuate the passing of years but rather to show the correlation between the birth of a great free country and the birth of a man who was to become great through unceasing toil and loyalty for this country.

Dr. Cody has lived a full life—a life in which nothing has been denied which would be of welfare to others. His amazing versatility in numerous fields of endeavour has been the subject matter for many writers, one of whom has said that he is either the best politician in the clergy or the best clergymen in politics.

One of his earliest indications of future greatness came at the age of 9 years when he held a funeral service for a pet cat. A number of attempts have been made to draw a moral from this. Dr. Cody was sent to the best school of that time, known as Dr. Tassy's Grammar School, and in writing the entrance examinations in the Woodstock Town Hall he stood highest in the whole of Oxford County.

Dr. Cody came to the University of Toronto in 1885 or exactly 60 years ago, a time when many of our fathers were not yet born. At this period in the life of the university there were only 18 on the staff. Now there are 1023, which indicates the amazing growth of this institution of learning with which Dr. Cody's life has been so closely associated.

One might quote many facts or statistics relevant to the amazing career of our President, but, fascinating and noteworthy as they may be, they do not necessarily disclose the character or greatness of this man. Not from what he has done but rather from what he is can we benefit and find strength from our brief association with him during these last few years.

One of the greatest indications of the respect in which any man is held is the number of friends he is fortunate enough to have. It has been said repeatedly that a large number of people have reason to be grateful to Dr. Cody because he believes that a friend is for help in trouble and he is never too busy to translate this belief into action. Many times as President of this university he has helped fellow students who have found themselves in difficulty either from careless action or economic stress. It has been said repeatedly that Dr. Cody is the best man to see if you get into trouble because he usually knows exactly what to do and is always ready to do it.

Dr. Cody once said, “I feel, somehow, though it is a hard thing to express in words, that we live in proportion to the number of things to which we are alive. I have, and have had, many interests in life, but the deepest and most enduring interest of all is human nature.” It is to this “interest in human nature” that we are so indebted, and it is this quality, not the facts and statistics, which makes a man what is commonly called great—a word often beyond definition.

A great attribute in any man is a sense of humour and all of us are familiar with the high degree that this quality is present in Dr. Cody. A story is often told demonstrating this essential characteristic. At the height of his preaching career and at a time when the President played considerable golf, he was one day accosted at the end of a game, and when he was just stepping into a shower without his usual apparel, by a man who asked “Where in hell have I seen you before?” To which Dr. Cody promptly replied, “I don't know. What part of hell do you come from?”

A Presbyterian minister tells of a dream he once had in which he was at the Pearly Gates; St. Peter told him that he had to climb the ladder to Heaven and, before he could enter, he had to write all his sins and omissions on a blackboard with a piece of chalk as he climbed. On his way up the ladder he met Dr. Cody coming down and he said, “Why are you coming down?” The reply was “To get more chalk!”

We may be thankful upon this occasion, that although retiring, Dr. Cody is not leaving the University, and that as Chancellor he will remain in close contact with it. Wherever he is and whatever he is doing, we may always say in tribute to Dr. Cody what Matthew Arnold said of Sophocles: “He saw life steadily and saw it whole.”

STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

Farewell to the President

THE ceremonies required less than an hour, preparations more than three months.

The undergraduate student body, assembled in Convocation Hall, rose as Dr. H. J. Cody and the members of the Students' Administrative Council entered and took up positions on the dais.

The undergraduates had gathered to pay tribute to their retiring President. Arrangements for the special tribute had begun with appointment of a special committee in November. The service was held on March 8. Planning for it had been perhaps the most important duty of the Students' Administrative Council during the past year.

Gift of the student body to Dr. Cody was the University coat-of-arms painted on vellum with an accompanying gift-book, bound in blue morocco and containing a beautifully hand-illuminated tribute to Dr. Cody written by J. F. Madden, St. Michael's '45. Following signing of the book by each member of the Council as representative of his or her faculty, Dr. Cody gave his farewell address to the undergraduates.

That evening the Council gave a formal dinner in Hart House Great Hall in honour of Dr. and Mrs. Cody at which the guests were 145 officials of various campus organizations. Masses of spring flowers and green tapers enhanced the beautiful setting of the Hall as diners sat down to find a souvenir booklet of the occasion at each plate. An illustrated talk by T. A. Reed showed the development of the University. William Tamblyn, S.P.S. IV, proposed the toast to the guest of honour. The President made a memorable reply. Evening's climax was Dr. Cody's pleasure upon presentation to him by S.A.C. President T. Edward Downey of the Council's Honour Award "honoris causa". Rising, beaming, for a moment at a loss for words, "Ladies and Gentlemen", he exclaimed, "this is the climax!"

War Services Drive

From University College came a be-raccooned entrant. From Victoria came the winner, garbed in brilliant red flannels. Trinity's sartorially smart contestant arrived—sans trousers. Each faculty sent its queerly attired representative and Warden J. B. Bickersteth prepared to select the university's best-dressed man as the much publicized War Services Drive culminated in capacity-crammed Convocation Hall.

Planned by Al Klassen and Ben Orenstein, the S.A.C.-sponsored Drive featured the familiar faculty floats, the typical co-ed contest, the traditional street dance, and netted the sum of $1,300. Returns were divided between the Red Cross and the Salvation Army.

Though early morning rain whipped against the campus on December 6th and promised to dampen the ardor of 8,30 taggers, students put aside their umbrellas as the sun shone on the day's big noon-time events.

Led off by the C.O.T.C. band, the parade of floats tramped past judicial Lieut.-Cols. A. D. LePan and W. S. Wilson, who awarded the prize to the unorthodox funeral cortège from Knox College.

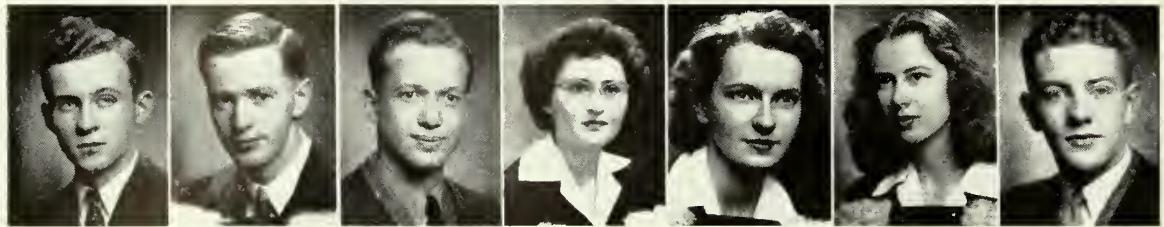

Following the Best-dressed Man competition, the bald-headed row and Judges Dymond, Griffiths and Haneock liked ecstatic chops as the 21 glamour finalists filed onto the stage. Parading their charm one by one, pirouetting in mid-platform for the benefit of engineers who demanded a back view, occasionally scattering poise to the winds as they tripped over a treacherous microphone plug, the beauties turned on their 100-watt smiles.

The Year in Review

At 4.30 every second Monday the 28 undergraduate members of the Student's Administrative Council straggled into U.C.'s basement meeting-place, composed themselves to hear minutes, reports; voted on major items of student business. Choked agendas often held them till 6 or later; toward the year's end refreshments proved a powerful inducement in competition with the lure of overdue essays.

Under the presidency of T. Edward Downey, Trinity '43 and the vice-presidencies of Robert W. Bell and Helen Patrick, the Council's year was both active and satisfactory.

Failure of The Varsity editor-elect. George Elliott, to return to college necessitated quick Council action and brought about the appointment of Betsy Mosbaugh, as first woman editor of the undergraduate newspaper. Robert Grosskurth became assistant editor, and a prolific contributor to The Varsity was Hugh Kenner, editor of Torontonensis.

Expansion of regular Council services—housing, employment, loans, official insignia, etc.—is reported. Sponsorship of various graduation receptions, continuance of the Blood Donor campaign (under a committee composed of Peter Aykroyd, chairman, Mary Bell and William Tamblyn), and service as a clearing house for war service campaigns also occupied the busy Council.

The S.A.C. sponsored and financed the University Symphony Orchestra with Rev. G. W. Philpotts as committee chairman. In November, Council members were entertained at dinner at the University Women's Club by Dr. and Mrs. Cody. A few days later, R. E. G. Davis of the Canadian Youth Commission was guest speaker at the annual dinner to the Varsity Masthead, held in Hart House.

During the Christmas vacation, Robert W. Bell acted as Toronto Representative at a meeting of Canadian University students held at the University of Western Ontario. Starting as a friendly get-together, it developed into an unofficial meeting of the war-dormant N.F.C.U.S.

The Hart House office is an unpublicized madhouse, especially with this gang in it. Hugh Kenner (extreme left) inspects the Torontonensis mailbox; Rooms Inspector Bob Murray offers the landlord list to roofless student Bob Russell; Miss Dodington types unconcernedly, Mrs. Ireland spiels down a phone, and Bosswoman Betsy explains to Miss Parkes (extreme right) how that misprint got into the C.R.C.C. Orders.

Genial Generalissimo

Mentor of the S.A.C.'s multifarious activities, Miss A. E. M. Parkes this year continued in the absence of Major E. A. MacDonald to serve as Acting General Secretary-Treasurer. As guide and advisor to the Council in its deliberations, source of decisions in the busy Hart House office, holder of crying-towels for harassed editors, Miss Parkes went on ceaselessly amassing a formidable campus-wide debt of gratitude.

This year altered seating arrangements prevented her carrying out her traditional duty of holding the incoming Varsity editor's hand before his maiden speech at the final banquet. He stumbled through somehow.

Able and invaluable office lieutenants were Mrs. R. R. Ireland, B.A., and Miss Dorothy Dodington. Their responsibilities went far past the phone-answering, letter-typing stage, included wrestling with The Varsity's advertising dummy, steering shelterless students to recommended rooming-houses, helping see Torontoensis through the press.

Honour Awards

The Honour Award of the Students' Administrative Council was instituted in 1939 to honour those students of the graduating year who had contributed most notably to the undergraduate life of the University as a whole, as distinct from purely college or faculty leadership.

The list of recipients is determined by a nominations committee which passes on names submitted by the Council members. The gold key and certificate, tokens of the award, are customarily presented by the President of the University following the Convocation of each faculty.

A distinguished recipient of the award this year was Dr. H. J. Cody, former undergraduate of the University and member of the class of '89.

On the next page Torontonensis presents the list of the 1945 Honour Award winners, 44 students drawn from every college and faculty.

Alan L. Farris, Knox; Alan T. Crowe, Pharmacy; Olive B. Zerou, Social Work; Robert J. Murray, Dentistry; Robert M. Russell, Rep. to Debates Committee, Victoria; Russell J. Jones, O.C.E.

Engineers' Clubs

A CLUBBY crowd these engineers!

For almost every course, there is a club. That's the set-up at the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering. From the long-established Mechanical to the more recent Aeronautics Club range these engineering societies, which fulfil a common purpose: to permit closer association between students and staff.

So numerous are these organizations that Torontonensis opens its club section with them. Meet the engineers—and their clubs!

WINGED FUTURE

CANADA's future is winged, and keeping in time with the Dominion's aviation plans was the introduction at the University of Toronto of an up-to-the-second course in Aeronautical Engineering. To give students in this streamlined course a medium for closer association with fellow students and staff members, the Aeronautical Club became organized this year.

No ricket-ridden organization, the Aeronautical Club has had a year of magnificent growth and development.

Executive appointed, organization details eventually attended to, plans were made to bring before the club a number of this country's foremost aero-experts. Air-wise T. R. Loudon, honorary chairman, was the first to speak. Then came sky-pioneer J. D. McCurdy and R. B. McIntyre. Proud founders of the club beamed at its evident progress.

Field trips to DeHavilland Aircraft and to Victory Aircraft livened the course for air-minded students. Social side not overlooked, the Aeronautical Club together with the Engineering Physics Club staged a successful February dance.

FRENETIC ARCHITECTS

“WITH the usual enthusiasm and determination by the executive to make the Club a part of student life” was the Architectural Club launched this year.

“This mood”, according to a Club spokesman, “engendered a Club field trip to see and study the planting of the famed Ramona Gardens. Unfortunately soon thereafter the working mood seemed to possess everyone, and regular meetings were scarce.”

Reasons for this lull in activity is explained by the fact that “our gargantuan first year may have overawed us. Twenty-six frosh worrying audibly about exams can discourage the best plans.”

Club spirit perked up after Christmas, it is reported. “The first year had found they were bound to anyway.” Students arranged hadn’t failed, the upper years figured they decorations for the School At-Home, organized the Sample Room so that “we are now not ashamed to leave the door open.” Junior years filed catalogs, samples. Upper years negotiated for furniture, good sets of working drawings.

Drastic alterations were made to the drafting rooms at the Club’s suggestion: Wall length display boards were hung in two rooms and a sound baffle built between first and fifth year rooms. (Reports the wistful executive on this latter project: “It is debatable which is the more noisy, but anyway it seemed a good idea at the time.”)

“A final resurgence of enthusiasm” was experienced as the Club wound up its year. Lively meetings offered a showing of “The City” and a gala banquet.

S.P.S. CIVIL CLUB EXECUTIVE

BACK ROW: W. D. McMurtry, G. T. Horton, R. T. Sheppard, J. F. Walker, Treasurer.
 FRONT ROW: Prof. C. F. Morrison, Honorary Vice-Chairman; Prof. T. R. Loudon, Honorary Vice-Chairman; R. E. Upper, Chairman; G. L. Wallace, Honorary Chairman;
 R. A. Weir, Vice-Chairman.

CONCERNING CIVIL ENGINEERING

DESPITE the apparent contradiction of terms, there do exist Civil Engineers. And, like every other variety of engineer, the Civil Engineers have their own club—the Civil Club.

The Civil Club of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, composed of all students in Civil Engineering, serves a double purpose: to develop a close and lasting fellowship among members; to bring to them men who are outstanding in the field of Civil Engineering to discuss matters pertaining to that profession.

The Club's annual Photo Salon was held in February. A dinner meeting at Little Denmark, where Prof. K. B. Jackson discussed photo-lofting, map-making from photos and stereoscopic work, officially opened the Salon.

Other meetings during the year were held at Hart House where, on January 10, A. H. Richardson of the Department of Planning and Developments of the Ontario Government discussed "Conservation".

R. W. Emery was guest speaker at a February smoker. His topic: "Trinidad and British Guiana". First meeting of the year had been the indispensable initiation stag held at the Westmoreland Hotel in mid-October.

ELECTRICAL CLUB EXECUTIVE

BACK ROW: G. R. Slemon III, A. P. Quentin IV, J. A. Elwood I, G. R. Markow II, Year Representatives.

FRONT ROW: G. R. Fairweather, Secretary-Treasurer; M. J. McHenry, Honorary Chairman; C. S. Morgan, Chairman; Prof. A. R. Zimmer, Honorary Vice-Chairman; G. A. Mackie, Vice-Chairman.

HIGH VOLTAGE YEAR FOR ELECTRICIANS

WHAT did the Electrical Club do last year?

Its 200 members—undergraduates in Electrical Engineering—heard Prof. T. R. Loudon explain what a “School” career could offer them, speaking at the Freshman Reception Dinner and Meeting which launched the year. In November they nodded agreement as Honorary Chairman M. J. McHenry, of the Hydro Commission, presented his views on the engineer’s increasing responsibilities in society to a smoker gathering.

December was a month of travel for the club. December took members in large numbers into numerous manufacturing establishments—into the Lincoln Electric Company and Canadian General Electric Company of Toronto, into Hamilton’s Steel Company of Canada and the Canadian Westinghouse plant.

Members saw further demonstrations of engineering at work through the winter term when they made trips to Radio Station CKEY’s modern control tower, to the Canada Wire and Cable Company and to the T.T.C. repair and maintenance shops.

Abandoning shop-talk for their January dinner, members listened to E. Hodgetts of the Department of Political Science as he discussed “Canada’s Place in Keeping the Peace.”

Most refreshing exchange of ideas of the year was at the annual February joint meeting with the Toronto Section, American Institute of Electrical Engineers. Reported the executive: “Great interest was shown by our graduate elders in the students.” At this session four fourth year men had presented papers.

COURSE - BROADENER

IT has been another year for the Engineering Physics Club.—another year of endeavoring “to broaden the University life of its members with both educational and social activities”.

Regarding educational activities, Club policy has been to “deal with subjects which are non-technical”, thus setting it apart from other similar organizations.

Originators of the Engineering Physics Club, Honorary Chairman Prof. V. G. Smith and Dr. L. Gilechrist, were special speakers at the annual fall term banquet held in Hart House Great Hall. The founders outlined its relatively brief history, and its unique merits. At this gathering freshmen were “duly and enthusiastically” welcomed into the club.

Activities during the academic year included dances, sleigh-loads, and numerous interesting addresses. On November 15 Prof. E. Haultain considered “Ourselves”. On March 12 the Department of History’s Prof. H. Underhill discussed “The Big Three”.

Helpful was Prof. K. B. Jackson’s informal outline of post-graduation problems. The head of the Engineering Physics Course met with members of third and fourth years on March 5.

FIELD TRIPS BACK

SINCE the beginning of the war, field trips—long a part of the program for members of the Industrial Chemical Club—have been restricted by war production and by transportation difficulties; however, they were back on the agenda of 1944-45 in limited numbers.

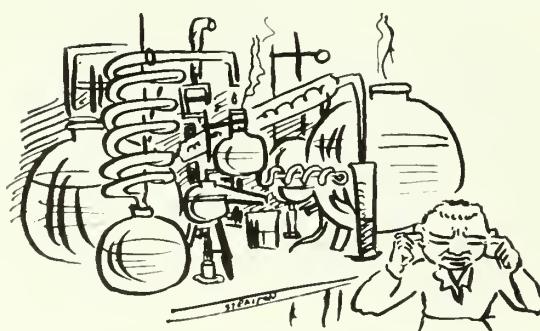

In November, a group of thirty curious fourth-year students went to Sarnia and were permitted to inspect the methods in use at the Imperial Oil and Polymer Synthetic Rubber plants. Also, in February, more than 150 members toured the sprawling Research Enterprise plant in Toronto.

Club activities commenced on November 2, with a club smoker at which freshmen were received into the club in what was termed by reliable authorities "a manner befitting an engineer".

A second smoker brought Bakelite Corporation's A. Buchan to discuss plastic production in the past and regarding its future possibilities.

The club's honorary chairman, A. B. Lockley, of the Goodyear Rubber Company, gave an address of which synthetic and natural rubber formed the subject matter. Professor W. J. MacDonald was honorary vice-chairman during the year.

GUNS TO GENERATORS

FROM Bofors gun to steam generation, the list of topics taken by experienced speakers selected to address the Mechanical Club is wide in range.

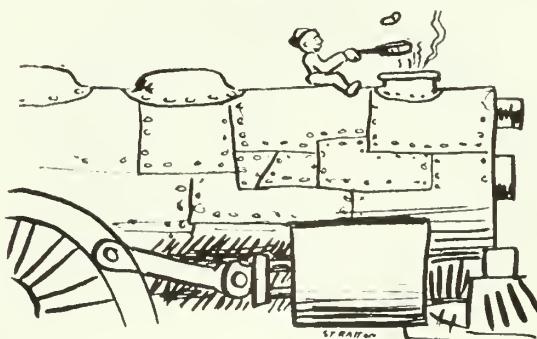

Bringing together students and staff for monthly social sessions, the popular Mechanical Club affords its members an opportunity to hear first-hand accounts of marvels in mechanical and other worlds.

Otis-Fenson's W. J. W. Reid gave a slide-illustrated outline of the mechanical difficulties involved in manufacture of the Bofors gun. Manager of Ordnance at the Hamilton elevator company, Reid is honorary chairman of the club.

W. Hall of Combustion Engineering Company addressed a supper meeting held December 11 at Diana Sweets. His subject: Steam Generation. The talk illustrated all features of boiler design and described apparatus in operation. Helpful explanation of tool steels featured the February gathering, conducted by Vice-Chairman G. Macivor. Film and demonstration were provided by A. C. Wickman (Canada) Limited.

I. M. Bodine, executive engineer of Canadian Ice Machine Company, was guest speaker at the annual dinner held at the Carls-Rite Hotel in late February. Introduced by the chairman, Bodine dealt with the problems confronting the graduate engineer on entry into industry. Directly connected with the graduate engineer training plan sponsored by the Canadian Ice Machine Company, he was well qualified to talk on this subject. The speaker was thanked by D. Becks, E. A. Alleut, Professor of Mechanical Engineering, replied to the toast of fourth year's D. D. Currie.

A lusty "Toke Oike" applied a touch of tradition to the meeting's closing.

S.P.S. MINING AND METALLURGICAL CLUB

MINERS "ON UPWARD SWING"

AT LOW ebb in recent years, Mining and Metallurgical Club functions during the just-closed academic year proved to be "definitely on the upward swing," according to an enthusiastic report of year's activities issued by a proud executive.

Anticipating an increased membership in 1945-46, executive members pointed out that limited funds — result of slim support — had greatly handicapped promotion of meetings. "But," they declared, "our aim was quality, rather than quantity, an aim which was admirably achieved!"

Programme for the year included an October Freshman Reception in the World Cruise Restaurant, a November Dinner Meeting in the Graduate Dining-Room of Hart House where Dr. L. M. Pidgeon, Professor of Metallurgy, spoke on the National Research Council.

A slide-illustrated address on the Yellowknife mining development was given by A. K. Muir and Dr. A. S. Dadson, both of Ventures Limited, at the January dinner.

Field trips were also a feature of the M. & M. year: To the Atlas Steel Company in Welland to view steel-making intricacies, also to learn how to play cards in a bus; to the Carboloy Company in Toronto and to the Anaconda Brass Company in New Toronto. Distance record for field trips was the voyage to Orillia to inspect the Fahr alloy and E. Long and Company plants.

For the first time this year Mining and Metallurgy took part in the annual Engineering Open House which had been inaugurated by a few other departments the previous year.

POLL M&P'STERS

WITH the expansion of the university's stiff Mathematics and Physics course to include chemistry as a major course, the already active Mathematics and Physics Society gains more and more importance in campus club circles.

Giving the student a broader perspective on his course, the M. & P. Society discusses its connection with other subjects, its applications to industry and education, tends to increase the student's enthusiasm for oft-fatiguing mathematics and physics.

The Society also gives members a voice in the conducting of the course itself. Polled as to the addition of liberal arts courses, M. & P.'sters in general favoured it, especially in the higher years.

Dr. S. Beatty, Dean of Arts, listened attentively to a Society discussion of the questionnaire. Students suggested courses in philosophy, economics, psychology, German, also recommended that Christmas examinations be held in all subjects in all years.

According to the poll, the number of students intending to do research work after graduation decreased from sixty per cent. of the first year students to twenty per cent. of the fourth year class, while the proportion of prospective teachers increased from five per cent. to forty per cent., and the "don't knows" increased threefold.

The Society also succeeds in taking professors out from the foreground of their familiar blackboard setting, introduces them to their students on an informal basis. Meetings feature lectures, discussions, parties, including their annual skating-dancing frolic.

SEMI-CENTENNIAL

FOR half a century the University of Toronto Chemical Club has observed, studied, thrilled at the growing field of chemistry. Since 1895 when the late W. Lash Miller founded it to bring together staff, demonstrators, and assistants, it has been an active organization.

In the year following the armistice of World War I the club's barriers were lowered and members in undergraduate years were invited to enter for the first time, to take over executive duties. This expansion completed, the club has forged ahead.

The club in 1944-45 continued to function as a student branch of the C.I.C. for the benefit of senior members, following its policy adopted the year before.

In peace years—to give members an insight into industrial chemistry—it was the club's custom to visit important industrial plants. Wartime conditions have made this impossible for the past two years.

This year however a group of fifty members were able to visit the sprawling plant of the Steel Company of Canada in Hamilton.

THE HONOUR SCIENCE CLUB EXECUTIVE

BACK ROW: R. R. Tasker, First Year Representative; I. M. Birkenshaw, Second Year Representative; J. L. Cameron, Third Year Representative; E. B. Donaldson, First Year Representative; W. R. G. Stewart, Second Year Representative.

REJUVENATION

PRIOR to 1922—year of the founding of the Honour Science Clnb—isolated students in advanced years of the various pnre science courses lacked means of coming together with those with whom they had entered university and those who were following them in the jnnior years.

To meet this need a social organization was set up. Within a few years the students of Household Economics were invited to take part, further satisfying the need.

With war's advent and the concomitant scaling down of college recreational activities to permit greater emphasis on studies, the lustre of the Honour Science Clnb has slightly declined. Originally a membership fee had been charged for entrance into the clnb which, with these resources at its disposal, placed itself high in the list of campus institutions. Traditional fnnctions had been the autumn hike and weiner roasts, lavish winter and Easter dances.

Membership fees, however, have been discontinued. volunteer gatherings have been conducted on a subscription basis. Honour Science Parties at the U.C. Women's Union were characterized by novelty dances, skits, refreshments and impromptu divertissements.

Proudly, this year's executive claim to have regenerated the Honour Science Club and to have "restored its function as an effective, pleasurable meeting ground for science students." This has been accomplished, explains the executive, "by exercising ingenuity in the matter of furnishing first class entertainment and refreshments of surpassing palatability."

But more than this, behind the scenes the executive has streamlined the outmoded constitution of the clnb. It has prepared to expand the scope of operations of the membership "when the time is suitable". And it has introduced the clnb into a broader realm by connecting it with the Science Faculty division of the National Union of Students.

GERMAN CLUB

SKITS, speakers, games, musicales, motion pictures and the traditional visit of a Deutsch-sprechend Sankt Niklaus at the Christmas meeting, featured the past successful year of the University German Study Club.

Performance of a 15-year-old Austrian film, "Die lustigen Weiber von Wien", in January aroused much campus comment. Piano solos and a Mozart trio for piano, violin and cello were offered on the musicale program of the February meeting. (Prof. R. D. C. Finch, borrowed from the French department, handled the piano part in the trio and accompanied the singer.)

SPANISH CLUB

AS castanets click and senors "si" one another, meets the Varsity Spanish Club to give to an ever-increasing number of Spanish students at the university the authentic flavor of old Spain and romantic Latin America.

Formed four years ago to give a few ardent students of the tongue an opportunity to indulge in vocabulary calisthenics, the Spanish Club and its executive little realized then what manana would offer. Membership in the club has swollen until today finds it ranking with that of the largest university organizations.

Regular monthly meetings find Spanish-spewing students mixing with their counterparts from Spain and Latin America, learning of the life and culture of the Spanish-speaking countries, viewing technicolorful films on Mexico, enjoying the throbbing rhythms of Spanish music and dance, hearing talks on Spain and Canada's relations with South America.

Capping the evening, there follows a social hour, refreshments, dancing, more Spanish practice.

WIGS AND WISDOM

TURBULENCE and controversy were the keynotes as irate students pressed reform of the Moot Court constitution at a historic meeting of the Law Club this season. Following demands for publication of the spending of fees collected by the Court, the whole financial question was aired before the Law Club when the latter played host to the Court. The result: it was moved, unanimously approved that there be drawn up a permanent constitution for the Moot Court, with clauses stipulating that a body of student representatives from each year should collect the fees, regulate the spending, be held responsible for same.

Other activities of the legal fraternity, although less spectacular, provide practice and recreation of embryo lawyers. The Moot Court heard its usual quota of cases, none of which approached in campus-wide interest last year's libel suit against The Varsity.

Leading social function was the fifteenth Annual Banquet, complete with toasts to all and sundry, including members of the School of Law serving with forces of the United Nations. The speaker, Professor J. E. M. Hancock, Honorary Chief Justice of the Moot Court, traced the history of the Court, oldest institution of the Law School.

At regular meetings of the Law Club, speakers included Professor C. R. Myers, who described the work of psychologists with the R.C.A.F. in England; Dr. Joslyn Rogers, Provincial Analyst, who outlined his experiences as a crime-solving scientist.

PEDESTRIANS ON PARNASSUS

PIXILLATED posters like the one reproduced at right intrigue U.C. students into attending monthly sessions of the fledgling but lusty Modern Letters Club, where members' papers on T. S. Eliot's eclecticism, Belloc's belligerence, romantic realism of Wolfe, and the hefty horrors of Hemingway provoke impassioned if factually shaky discussion, generate an appetite for copious refreshments.

Founded by ex-army, elfish freshman Bob Weaver, the Club fills a real gap in English curriencia, carries on unembarrassed with scholarly method.

MODERN LETTERS CLUB

Typical meeting hears three or four student papers on aspects of the topic in hand, reading of extracts, questions, warm and warmer discussion. The year's subjects have included Thomas Wolfe, T. S. Eliot, and a group of European writers (Chesterton, Belloc, Tagore, Molnar). Closing the year was a Creative Writing session at which members read their nonchalantly accumulated Works, deprecciated their own efforts, registered awe at the quality of everyone else's. Future plans call for greater stress on the creative side of literature.

IN A FINE FRENZY rolling, the Poet's eye collects copious inspiration as it rolls about this littered den, his mind in the grip of a Pure Idea. We hate to be a wet blanket, but it's just the Treasurer cooking his accounts.

GEOLOGISTS ORGANIZE

NEWEST Club on the campus is the Coleman Geology Club, formed early in 1945, which superseded the Rockyfellers Club, and honors the memory of Dr. A. P. Coleman, late head of the University of Toronto Department of Geology.

Regardless, of course, faculty, or whether graduate or undergraduate, all members have been welcomed as the Club endeavors to bring together all those interested in geology in one organization.

Weekly meetings were held in the Mining Building, at which fledgling geologists recounted experiences and observations in the field during previous summer vacations, presented geological problems for discussion. Smoker and banquet also marked the one-term program.

Planned for next year are several field trips to areas of geological interest under Club sponsorship.

The Coleman Geology Club has become affiliated with the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy as a student organization.

Despite the late beginning, Club founders went on record as feeling that "the club has been placed in a strong position for next year, when it is hoped the younger members will carry on with continued enthusiasm."

SODALITIES

"A RELIGIOUS society whose purpose is to foster in its members a devotion to Our Blessed Lady that will manifest itself in personal holiness and active Catholicity," the Sodality of our Lady was established in the sixteenth century. Those at Loretto and St. Joseph's Colleges are among the 68,000 sodalities existing in the world to-day.

Directed by Fr. T. P. McLaughlin, Superior of the College, the Sodality is the most important College organization. The Sodalists' program includes social, charitable, and war activities.

HART HOUSE

FOR twenty-six years Varsity men by thousands have passed through the beamed oaken doors of Hart House into the cool corridors and humming committee-rooms of the headquarters of the University's extra-curricular life. Day after day they come by thousands, for concerts, painting, singing, the casual book, the theatre, crafts, worship, and every variety of sport; swimming, basketball, boxing, wrestling, fencing, squash. Fellowship draws them, too: "friendly disputation and debate, the conversation of wise and earnest men." Thronging the common-rooms and corridors, and in groups at evening around the Warden's fire, they debate the thousand issues of the campus and of the world. For Hart House, magnificent showplace though it is, is more than a building; it is a centre of life, and in the truest sense, itself alive.

HART HOUSE, the gift of the Massey Foundation to the University of Toronto, was designed by Mr. Henry Sproatt and Mr. Ernest Rolph, and was constructed under the personal supervision of the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey. In style Hart House is collegiate Gothic, much purer in design than most examples of this type. The exterior of the south wing with its strong, unbroken roof and four clusters of chimneys give a suggestion of classic symmetry unusual in the Gothic, imparting a feeling of repose to the entire building.

Begun in 1911, the walls and roof were completed by August, 1914. Construction was carried on desultorily during the war and the decoration was completed in 1918 and 1919. The leisurely manner of construction made it possible to solve the problem of combining simplicity of composition with facilities for incredibly varied activities and interests under the roof of one building. An analysis of the present lay-out will suffice to convince the most critical of the difficulties of the task and the success of the architects' solution.

The interior of the building contains striking architectural features without number. The vaulted ceiling of the faculty dining room, the vistas of the long corridors, the timbered ceilings of the debates room, faculty sitting room, and music room, and the two cantilevered stone stairs to the third floor are most unusual. The theatre under the quadrangle is an amazing feat of design. Nowhere in its layout is there any hint of its subterranean position.

Visitors to the House carry away memories of the view of the quadrangle through one of the windows of the lower gallery; of the interior of the gracefully-proportioned Great Hall, with its decorative windows, its oak trusses, and its brilliantly coloured coats of arms done in gold leaf and gesso by Mr. Scott Carter, or of the quaint stone corbels throughout the building, imaginary creations of an old English stone carver.

On the bay over the map room on the south wall of the building are the coats of arms of the units which used Hart House during the war of 1914-18.

STEWARDS IN SESSION

Quietly conscious that they hold the traditions of the House in trust, the members of the Board of Stewards, governing body of the House, meet regularly in the Warden's Office. Represented on the Board are the six undergraduate committees, through whom the care of the House is largely entrusted to the students themselves, and whose aim is to maintain the activities of the House at a time when they are of exceptional importance for the stability they afford in the life of the student.

HOUSE COMMITTEE

The general supervision of the whole House is entrusted to the Warden who is appointed by the Board of Governors of the University and is ex-officio chairman of the Board of Stewards. He is assisted by the Comptroller of Hart House, J. R. Gilley, S.P.S. '21; the Assistant Comptroller, W. R. Cowan, S.P.S. '24; the Secretary of Hart House, W. B. Burwell, Vie. '39; and the Assistant Secretary, E. A. Wilkinson, Vie. '38 (at present on leave of absence with the Navy for the duration of the war).

The members of the Board of Stewards for 1944-1945 are: the Warden, Chairman ex-officio; the Rev. Dr. H. J. Cody; the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, representative of the Board of Governors; Professor H. Wasteneys and Professor K. B. Jackson, representatives of the President; T. A. Reed, Financial Secretary at the Athletic Association; Professor J. A. Long, Secretary of the Faculty Union; E. F. Hinch, Graduate Committee; W. C. Bothwell, Student Christian Movement; J. W. Fielding, Athletic Directorate; J. T. Pickard, Students' Administrative Council; P. H. Aykroyd, House Committee; R. A. Grosskurth, Library Committee; K. A. Turner, Music Committee; W. R. Beny, Art Committee; W. D. Butt, Squash Racquets Committee; and J. R. Gilley, the Comptroller, Seeretary.

BOARD OF STEWARDS

The House Committee are responsible for the general management and social activities of Hart House. The Great Hall, tuck shop, billiard room and barber shop come under their supervision, and they are responsible to the Board of Stewards for maintaining the struture and all equipment in good repair.

The Committee are represented on the Board of Directors of the University Settlement and members of the committee entertain the men and boys of the Settlement in the House each year at Christmas-time.

The All-University Fall Dance, the first large informal dance of the year, is also under their direction. The members of the committee likewise manage the annual elections of the Hart House Committees in March.

The members of the House Committee for 1944-1945 are: the Rev. G. B. Flahiff, Chairman; the Warden; Dr. R. G. Ellis, Faculty representative; G. M. Nixon, graduate representative; the Comptroller; the Assistant Comptroller; the Assistant in the Comptroller's office; J. R. Latremouille, the Ontario College of Education representative; A. C. Burgess, the Athletic Directorate representative; W. H. Clipperton, J. T. Coneybeare, R. M. Dunsford, R. L. Hicks, G. T. Horton, R. W. Lamont-Havers, B. Orenstein, E. W. Webster, S. R. Webster, and P. H. Aykroyd, Secretary.

A recognized professional artist who happens to be an undergraduate member of the House, Wilfred R. Beny, IV Trinity, was accorded a one-man showing in the Art Gallery in December. "Prairie Symphony" is the title of this water-colour.

Thursday evenings throughout the term, Mr. Caven Atkins meets with the Art Class in the Gallery. Proficient and prolific amateur artists, they arrange a showing of their work in April that stacks up well against the Senior Members' exhibit.

ART COMMITTEE

The activities of the Art Committee include the holding of exhibitions in the gallery and the print room, the administration of the arts and crafts room, the management of art classes under the direction of an artist and the purchase of pictures to add to the permanent collection. For each exhibition held in the gallery the committee obtain some well-known critic to review it at the noon-hour and these talks have proven very popular with the students. This year also were added demonstrations in sculpture and in palette technique of painting.

One of the main responsibilities of this committee is to see that the valuable collection of paintings owned by Hart House is maintained in good condition and also to catalogue the large and growing collection of prints.

The members of the Art Committee for 1944-1945 are: Dr. R. E. Haist, Chairman; the Warden; Professor H. N. Frye, Faculty representative; Dr. Harvey Agnew, graduate representative; W. M. Nicholls, Keeper of the Prints; D. A. Flock, Assistant to the Keeper of the Prints; J. R. Blais, D. R. H. Gonley, W. N. Greer, R. B. Hall, J. O. Lee, B. S. Levitt, R. D. Lloyd, M. Ostwald, J. H. Toogood, M. P. J. Walsh, and W. R. Beny, Secretary.

CAMERA COMMITTEE

The Camera Committee, a special committee of Hart House, are responsible for the care of the camera rooms and for the general encouragement of photography among the members of the House. In the fall the members of the committee instruct all those interested in the use of the valuable equipment available in the rooms and show beginners the various photographic processes. An annual show of work done by the members of the House is held and this year proved very successful. Also during the year several travelling exhibitions were sent out to other clubs and their work sent to Hart House in return.

The members of the Camera Committee for 1944-1945 are: Professor A. F. Coventry, Chairman; the Warden; C. D. Woodley, graduate representative; the Assistant Comptroller; the Secretary of Hart House; G. K. Lambert, W. A. Traill, J. D. Broadway, H. D. Graham, G. O. Sutherland, and J. D. Wray, Secretary.

Studying is prohibited in this well - stocked, richly - appointed library, but the crammed chesterfields indicate the popularity of leisure reading. Members of the armed forces stationed on the campus or attending University classes enjoy the privileges of Hart House.

Typical of the superlative quality of prints on view at the Camera Committee's annual exhibition in January is this prize-winner, "Rachel", by Monty Simmonds. Reproduction cannot do justice to the picture's full, rich tones.

A feature of this year's exhibit was the unusually large and fine collection of Kodachrome colour transparencies, which had to be savagely edited by the judges to fit the limited viewing facilities. A Colour Night later in the year called forth even more fine examples.

LIBRARY COMMITTEE

The Library Committee are responsible for the upkeep and management of the library, which contains a collection of books such as might be found in a good private library. The committee are constantly adding to this collection and endeavour to keep a good selection of current books for leisure reading. In addition the committee are in charge of periodicals subscribed to for the use of the students in the reading room.

The members of the Library Committee for 1944-1945 are: Professor J. D. Robins, Chairman; the Warden; Professor L. Young, Faculty representative; D. C. Wells, graduate representative; G. G. McCaffrey, Curator; W. G. Beattie, K. I. Carroll, R. V. McCormack, D. P. P. McGarity, W. J. O'Connor, F. W. Patterson, F. I. Rasky, R. A. Singer, J. E. Speers, and R. A. Grosskurth, Secretary.

The Photographic salon is again the centre of interest in this Art Gallery scene. Originally a Sketch Room for the use of the Arts and Crafts group, the Gallery has ample wall space for a generous display of pictures, and houses a fine and valuable collection of Art Books. An exhibition of prints from the House's extensive collection is regularly on view in a small adjoining room.

MUSIC COMMITTEE

THE Music Committee arrange each year the series of Sunday Evening Concerts which are held on alternate Sunday evenings during term and for which the programmes are provided by the outstanding musicians of the city. This year the committee were fortunate in obtaining the Gordon String Quartet from the University of Rochester for one of the concerts.

Informal recitals, which have had to be discontinued during the war years, were reinstated on Friday afternoons under the Committee's direction and two were held in the Easter term. Noon-hour recitals given by students on alternate Tuesdays proved varied and interesting and were well attended.

The members of the Music Committee for 1944-1945 are: Professor I. R. Pounder, Chairman; the Warden; Professor K. MacLean and Sir Ernest MacMillan, Faculty representatives; F. R. MacKelean, graduate representative; R. K. Graham, D. H. Hillier, J. S. MacDonald, J. R. McAllister, A. G. McKay, K. D. McRae, E. J. Pivnick, G. R. Slemon, H. K. Wardell, and K. A. Turner, Secretary.

Picture at right shows a group of fascinated onlookers craning o'er the battlements above one of the three squash courts as the Hamilton Squash Club plays its annual tournament visit. In foreground, with the score card, is Dr. H. Richmond, Chairman of the Squash Committee.

Every muscle straining, two squash finalists follow the progress of that darting ball. Floor is about due for its regular refinishing; wartime quality rubber footwear leaves those heavy streaks at every skid. Fainter marks are made by bouncing balls.

SQUASH RACQUETS COMMITTEE

THE Squash Racquets Committee, also a special committee, are in charge of all matters pertaining to the playing of squash racquets in the House, including the maintenance of the courts, the arranging of tournaments, and the instruction of beginners. During the war years the lack of racquets and balls has been an urgent problem but owing to the efforts of the committee it has been possible to keep a limited number of these for the use of the members in general as well as for beginners.

The members of the Squash Racquets Committee for 1944-1945 are: Dr. R. Richmond, Chairman; the Warden; M. R. Boake, graduate representative; the Assistant Comptroller; F. W. Brereton, N. Moses, A. I. Rubenstein, and W. D. Butt, Secretary.

GRADUATE COMMITTEE

THE Graduate Committee, also a special committee of Hart House, are concerned with the interests of the senior members both faculty and graduate. An athletic programme is held regularly once a week. The Revolver Club also meets weekly and attracts an interested group of senior members. These members also join in the activities of the art group, Camera Club, and other organizations. Under the supervision of the committee are the Graduate Common Room and Dining Room. During the year dinners and lunches are arranged from time to time at which a special speaker is present.

The members of the Graduate Committee for 1944-1945 are: Mr. E. F. Hineh, Chairman; the Warden; F. L. Bartlett, F. D. Evans, the Rev. Dr. W. H. Grant, W. H. Greenwood, N. F. Mallon, A. E. McKague, D. B. Murray, the Comptroller, and W. B. Burnwell, Secretary.

Morning sunlight streams through the Great Hall windows, composed of fragments of glass from war-ruined cathedrals of Europe, onto the long oak tables at which during twenty-six years thousands of undergraduates have dined and chatted.

Principal architectural marvel of the House, the Great Hall is modelled on those of the great British Universities. Coats of arms in the picture are those of the Universities of the Allied Nations in the war of 1914-1918; on the facing wall, above the Head Table, are the arms of the Universities of the British Empire.

During their visit to Canada in 1939, the King and Queen dined in the Hart House Great Hall.

THE prayer of the Founders is that Hart House, under the guidance of its Warden, may serve in the generations to come the highest interests of this University by drawing into a common fellowship the members of the several colleges and faculties, and by gathering into a true society the teacher and the student, the graduate and the undergraduate; further, that the members of Hart House may discover within its walls the true Education that is to be found in good fellowship, in friendly disputation and debate, in the conversation of wise and earnest men, in music, pictures and the play, in the casual book, in sports and games and the mastery of the body; and lastly, that just as in the days of war this House was devoted to the training in arms of the young soldier, so in the time of peace its halls may be dedicated to the task of arming youth with strength and suppleness of limb, with clarity of mind and depth of understanding, and with a spirit of true religion and high endeavour.

RELIGION

Worship, Discussion, Thrive on Campus

THE pages that follow concern the activities of the organized groups that concern themselves with the spiritual life of the Undergraduates of the University. Unorganized but none the less vital is the serious attitude of the majority of students to metaphysical matters and the deeper side of experience.

Services of Communion are well attended in Hart House chapel, a favourite place for private meditation; and a survey of city churches close to the campus is convincing proof of the number of unpretentious but sincere student church-goers.

The many who charge that college life begets spiritual indifference ignore the customary undergraduate mental cycle. Entering University with a dumbly accepted but generally superficial philosophy, many students are disconcerted in first year, mentally purged in second, but by graduation time have seized on more nourishing stuff for the mind to feed on: whether from the discovery of new truth or from a more immediate and intense conviction of the validity of the old.

Students in general continually illustrate the ancient truth, that scepticism, in itself sterile, is the invaluable preliminary to intelligent conviction.

NEWMAN CLUB

A HOME away from home" for Catholic students is the 32-year-old University of Toronto Newman Club. Its Chapel is the students' Parish Church, its Hall the meeting-place for students of all faculties, united in religious, educational, and social activities.

Directed by a resident Chaplain and a boisterously-elected student executive, the club's activities include dramaties, multi-topical round table discussions led by prominent Canadians, and Mock Parliaments of impeccable tradition, precarious decorum (a typical session voted down the motion that Toronto should have an "Open Sunday", avowing that members would be unable to stand more than the customary six days' social activity).

THE STUDENT CHRISTIAN MOVEMENT

THE Student Christian Movement is a fellowship of students who believe that integrity in individual personality and community in human relationships is only possible through allegiance to Jesus Christ.

In the University of Toronto the Student Christian Movement invites into its fellowship students of all colleges and faculties who are concerned to face the fundamental problems of life and to know the relevancy of Jesus Christ to their lives and to their world. Activities, planned and directed by the Student Executive and General Secretary, include seminars, conferences, worship services, a programme of study groups, lectures, and other gatherings.

Notable features of this year's programme included a Thanksgiving weekend camp, several short conferences throughout the academic year and a Spring Camp following examinations. Meetings for prayer were held daily throughout the year in Wycliffe College Chapel and University Services were conducted twice a month in the chapel of Trinity College. Over one hundred Toronto students participated in the January conference of the S.C.M. of Canada on "The Christian Call to Action." Toronto students also took part in the S.C.M. National Council meetings and in a summer work seminar in industry.

VICTORIA COLLEGE S.C.M.

IN June, 1944, a group of 18 W.S.C.F. leaders met in Geneva for two days to discuss the future of the Student Christian Movement and the W.S.C.F. Among other conclusions, they stated:

"The Word of God at work in and through the S.C.M. creates and builds a Christian community. One of the characteristics of such a community is that it welcomes into its midst not only those members who confess Christ, but also those who are seekers. The S.C.M. is thus at the same time both a point of departure for missionary work, and a bridge leading to the Church."

During the college term 1944-45, the Victoria unit of the S.C.M. has sought, in co-operation with the whole Toronto branch of the S.C.M. and in fellowship with students throughout the Federation, to realize the function quoted in part above. "We have sought," the executive stated, "to relate our program closely to our aims, seeking to make it spiritual, social, intellectual and recreational." This year keen interest was shown in the various study groups sponsored by the movement, including groups studying the Records of the Life of Jesus, the Winning of Peace group, the Recreation Study Group, etc.

Two "Open Houses" were held in both the Michaelmas and Spring terms, and these served the purpose of drawing the Movement together in common inspiration and fellowship.

VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

THE Varsity Christian Fellowship is a branch of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, which originated in the Universities of Great Britain in 1877. The organization now embraces groups of Christian students throughout the world. Closely affiliated with the I.V.C.F. in Canada is the Inter-School Christian Fellowship, with branches in many secondary schools.

The Fellowship is founded on the firm conviction that God has revealed Himself in the life, death, and resurrection of His Son, Jesus Christ. It emphasizes the necessity of personal faith in Him, through which there is forgiveness of sin and a new and joyful life-purpose in the will of God. The aim of the Fellowship is to make this faith significant in a practical way, and to bear witness to the reality and power of the Saviour in every relationship of life.

Reliance upon God in prayer is the dynamie behind all of the Fellowship activities on the campus; prayer groups, open to all faculties, meet daily for twenty minutes during the noon-hour in both University and Victoria Colleges. Weekly Bible Study, Missionary and discussion groups help the students to understand more clearly the great truths of the Christian faith, thereby deepening their spiritual lives.

The high-light of this College year was the visit of Dr. A. Gaebelein, Headmaster of Stony Brook School, Long Island, who conducted a special series of meetings on the Campus. The Fall week-end Conference at Centre Island and the Missionary Conference in January are also to be numbered among the outstanding events.

JEWISH STUDENT FELLOWSHIP

JEWISH STUDENT FELLOWSHIP

IF you probe into your problem, you may understand it and so strike at its roots. It was this ideal which incited the Jewish Student Fellowship to band together in the spring of 1944.

Forming a representative body of Jewish student opinion throughout the campus, they have since then gathered informally at Women's Union to iron out their own interpretations of racial prejudices. Questions and answers are fired across the floor as students meet speakers, usually members of the Faculty. Meetings end with refreshments, dancing —and zealous members still discussing the question in hand.

No coterie, the executive embraces officers elected by the student body, plus representative councils chosen from faculties, fraternities, sororities and the Avukah Society. To keep the organization running without hitch, members divide themselves into six committees: educational, social, publicity, cultural, public relations and welfare.

"We have tried," says President Ben Orenstein, "to unify the contribution of Jewish students to campus life."

SO this is page 227: the reader is in mid-Torontonensis. What does he think about Volume XLVII? The staff who worked on it (and what blood they sweated only the Reordering Angel will ever know) are pretty proud of it. They're never tired of pointing out that it's Revolutionary.

Of course, there are bound to be a few bugs, which the Editorial Board will discover with horror when it emerges from its post-publication swoon sometime in August. Incoming Editor Bud McLean will do a lot better in '46.

On the whole, though, we can't discover that we've forgotten a thing—headlines, cutlines, folio numbers, name lists, photographs—photographs—YE GODS! We forgot to have our own photograph taken!

LACKING a School of Journalism as yet—though vociferous action by successive generations of Varsity editors has extorted official promises of action in the immediate future—the University of Toronto still manages to produce an impressive quota of publications; from 456-page Granddaddy Torontonensis to infant faculty bulletins that operate somehow without even a budget. Student-written, student-edited, often student-illustrated, they help shape citizens of the generation of the Printing Press: minds geared to reconcile the thirst for reading and the clamour of publicity with the taste for literature and the savour of universal culture. In the following pages, Torontoueusis presents the Printers' Parade.

PETTICOAT FLUTTERS FROM "THE VARSITY" FLAGSTAFF

Bi-Weekly Half-Pints Mark Difficult Year For News Department

At the Interfaculty Debating Union, St. Mike's debaters vote for Canada's secession. Museum-closeted students hear Orient-omniscient Bishop W. C. White discuss the Chinese language. Gleeful S.P.S. Parliament accepts U.C.'s war declaration. Upon its alumnus—ambassador Lester B. Pearson, The University of Toronto confers an honorary degree.

Across the campus news breaks with the seconds. To have a battery of newsgatherers ever alert and ready to record these happenings is the sweeping duty of a wide-awake beauty, Svelte News Editor Barbara L. Jones and her pair of assistants, Prolific Frank Rasky and Competent Barbara Hood.

In her best "Sonny-go-to-meeting" voice News Editor Jones stands vigil at the bruised assignment book in the U.C. newsroom, keeping tab on events—scheduled and otherwise—button-holing stray staffers, shooting them news-ward in an endless effort to make the tabloid's campus coverage complete.

FIRST WOMAN EDITOR IN HISTORY GUIDES STUDENT NEWSPAPER POLICY

Managing Department At Wits' End

McIntosh, McRae Mak' Ready

If a pressroom has an anthem it might well begin with the much-rehearsed refrain: "Type is not rubber!" Of nothing is the managing department more painfully aware than of this fact.

To juggle with the many galleys of type, to arrange stories in attractive, reasonably balanced, once in a while even symmetrical fashion on the page is the bromo-consuming responsibility of Managing Editor Ken D. McRae and industrious Assistant Mary McIntosh.

But the Managing Department's chore begins long before copy emerges from Shrdlu's maze of linotype machinery to be "made up". Editing of copy submitted by verdant Varsity cubs, checking of facts, re-writing a la style book; that too is the job of the beleaguered Managing Department. Long may they strive!

Mosbaugh Decries, Condemns, Expostulates; the Women's Editor? Horrors!—A Schoolman!

HORRORS OF WAR

Feminists exulted, downtown newshawks sent up photographers and crack interviewers, as Betsy Mosbaugh, Fourth Year Philosophy and English student at University College, last fall took over the editorship of The Varsity, the Undergraduate Daily and securely established a reputation for competence as the first woman editor in the paper's history.

Part of the editorial-writing burdens were shouldered by Assistant Editor Bob Grosskurth, IV S.P.S., whose office rose from the ashes of the now-unnecessary post of Women's Editor. Varsity gossip assigned to Grosskurth the responsibility for landing the paper in one controversial jam after another, leaving dialectical Betsy to pull it out. Grosskurth told interviewers it was the other way around.

THE VARSITY MASTHEAD

Bourgeois as ever, the staff at the Undergraduate Newspaper eschewed the posey, watch-the-birdie, staring-match-with-the-photographer type of picture, sprawled instead devil-may-careishly across the Women's Union Stage, chorussed "Take us if you dare". That he dared bespeaks his faith in the ability of his lens to take a beating.

Browbeaten into relaxing its policy of maintaining anonymity for campus hoydens, Torontonensis furnishes picture identifications in the "Hither and Yon" column opposite.

C.U.P. STAFF KEEP WIRES HOT

Their "beat" extends across a continent. They are as concerned about a student riot at Queen's as about a staff shake-up at the University of British Columbia. They are the editors of the Canadian University Press, covering the country for happenings of Torontopolitical interest.

Linked by wire with the university publications of the Dominion, they feed news out to other campi, draw it in for The Varsity columns. In the full-grown Fourth Estate their duties fall to a Wire Editor. CUPsters on the 1944-45 masthead have been pert Peggy Bates, demure Dorothy Harley.

EDITORIAL

We deprecate, deplore, and decry the people who say The Varsity is getting creaky at the joints. At sixty-five the ol' rag is as limp as ever. The staff have kept it that way. The staff never seem to grow old, or even up. Only editors grow old.

Now that our hair is white, and our crows-feet deeply etched, we can look back over a year of advance in the face of unprecedented obstacles. Obstacles like rising costs that cut us down to half-size twice a week, like war-crowded timetables that kept all but the reckless few from giving much time to The Varsity, like a heavily-feminized staff that forced us to stay in the cramped Women's Office for the second consecutive year, and bequeath our commodious Hart House quarters to Torontonensis.

But still 100 issues came off the presses. If next year sees only 99, may it be because the night staff went on a bender on Victory Night.

TORONTONENSIS

This ponderous portfolio of platitudes would be good for propping up one leg of the baby's chair if you have a baby with a chair lacking 1½ inches on one leg, but we can't think what else it's good for. The editor is notoriously irresponsible, the staff writers tasteless, the content inane. All these people should stick to writing Cats. We are revolted—but utterly. So there.

Speaking OF SPORT

Always be-Lytling is The Varsity Sports Department which daily appears 'neath this "stet" head.

Concerned with the athletic scene at the University is this department, chaperoned through 1944-45 by Mild Mickey Michasiw and Energetic Underling Jerry Ewins.

Delivering their daily dose of sportistics, sportraits, and plain sport news, covering spot sport events, Editor Michasiw and his collective cohorts have retained reader interest despite the slackened sport schedules.

Campaigning for resumption of intercollegiate athletics filled sundry columns to good advantage.

About his job, once observed, Michasiw in print: "The life of a sportswriter can be hell at times." But: Vive DeGeer; Vive Coleman! Vive King Coleman!

Sportswoman

That nightly clatter you hear floating from the Press windows isn't entirely the linotypes. Part of it is the sound of the Men's and Women's Sports Editors belabouring one another with brass rulers to settle which is to have the greater chunk of page 3.

Brute force generally wins, and women's sports reporting has been largely confined to the feature-style Sportswoman column. Pounded out alternately by Forthright Jan Murray, Slaphappy Peg Wallace, and occasionally by axe-grinding conscripts, the column digests the feminine sports picture, presents game write-ups, league standings, copious comment. And readers love it!

ADVENTUROUS ACTA

STUDENTS should live and not just think," runs a post-season statement of policy from the Acta Victoriana hierarchy. "and Acta should so represent them. Our efforts . . . were directed to making Acta live up to its name rather than its reputation."

Admittedly, Editor McMaster had his hair-pulling moments. Copy ran thin indeed for earlier issues, hit a new quantitative low in Issue 2, which The Varsity, anonymously tipped off, gleefully exposed as fifty percent the work of prolific, ghoul-ridden graduate ex-editor Marg. Gould. From behind a battery of exotic pseudonyms, Miss Gould bombarded readers with transcendental metrical imaginings, explained her anonymity to interviewers by claiming that she was not proud of the stuff, just wanted to help the harassed editors over the hump. Indignantly retorted McMaster, "We printed it . . . because we thought it was good; we select on a quality basis, regardless of authorship. If contributors choose to hide their identities, that is their affair."

As the flurry died down other contributors went quietly to work, turned out a third issue that reviewers found "uniformly excellent . . . well up to pre-war standards."

More unashamedly imaginative than its Trinity rival, more lightly written, more naively presented, Acta this season had something for every taste. And much of it, especially much of the poetry, was very good.

THE RAVING REVIEW

SOILDY written, soundly edited, the Trinity Review goes on amazing the campus at large with its ability to extract material for six issues a year from a decreasing enrolment in a relatively tiny college. Aiming "to provide a record of life and thought at Trinity and St. Hilda's Colleges as well as a bond with the graduates and undergraduates scattered throughout the world," the Review this year rejected experimentation, concentrated on maintaining former standards, kept Varsity reviewer up nights combing his thesauri for guarded adjectives.

Traditionally the butt of shallow campus wits who call its light verse decadent, its foolery frenetic, its stories elphantine and obscurantist, its death notices models of utilitarian prose, the Review went on unperturbably providing solid food for thought, freakishly provoked notoriety by championing the advanced and experimental muse.

Comment about its poetry on "whiskey bottles floating down the Mississippi" and "a gulf wherein proleptic evils walk" ranged from the weightily sarcastic (The Varsity) to the simply frenzied (the Colleges). "We persisted in this policy," said the editors, "believing we should be of service to anyone with something to say, however startling his way of saying it."

Meanwhile, more conventional verse, fiction, art, critical articles, carried on the expression of College thought.

EYEBROWS were raised. Gossips were stunned. Fuddydnndies said it would never work. But despite these sanctimonious protestations, the Undergrad Magazine flicked tradition aside and for the first time in its history was ruled jointly by a man and a woman.

In keeping with the University College belief in co-education, the college magazine was under the thumb of Co-editors Frank Rasky and Betsy Mosbaugh. Taking a midnight or so off from their labours at The Varsity, where both are believed to have written a little, the two editors pasted together a publication whose style and content were aimed at the great days when Editor Bob Phillips was around.

Traditions were tossed to the wind. The usually staid front cover was magically transformed when Artist John Straiton added a cartoon of a wan, Walt Disneyish student peeking around the U.C. entrance gate.

UNDERGRAD NOT UNDERGRADE

To be different, the contents were long on literature and short on year activities. Prizes were awarded to the writer of best short story (William Spinks), best article (Hugh Kenner), best poem (Bob Weaver) and best satire (Hugh Kenner again). The editorial page bore the picture of a cave-man immersed in thought, evidently thinking of the cave-shortage. And, for a change, there were no ponderous symposiums on capitalism versus Communism, the British Rule versus the Colonies or Joe Louis versus Primo Carnera.

Hard as they tried there was one hoary old Undergrad tradition the editors ultimately decided they could not shatter. As usual, the magazine came out late.

HYA YAKA HIGHLIGHTS

MIDST the mound of magazines that clutter dentists' offices across the Dominion, you might find a yellowed volume of Hya Yaka, year-book of the Faculty of Dentistry, which this year rolls from the presses for the forty-second time.

Compilation of activities in the Faculty during 1944 and '45, the queerly-christened* Hya Yaka features class, sport, and executive pictures, editorials, and articles by staff, students, dental nurses. The year book for nearly half a century has been providing for members of the dental profession many a happy moment from the tedium of teeth, reliving happy days at the College St. edifice.

Hya Yaka's stories since the outbreak of war have had a distinctly military flavour. Graduate dentists to a large percentage move immediately into the army dental corps, attending the cavities of Canada's servicemen and women.

Founded as a quarterly in 1903, the molar magazine grew rapidly, enjoyed a brief spell as a monthly. Now, however, with the war playing hob with dental students' time, it is a task to publish annually. This year accelerated courses landed the fourth year back in the infirmary in mid-February; fifth-year students had been meanwhile struggling short-handedly with more patients than ever before, recouping energies exhausted by a month's stint of O.T.C. (E.C.) training at Brockville last summer, fitting Hya Yaka's editorial labours into stray moments.

Similar difficulties caused a 4-month delay in 1944 publication. For 1945 the Hya Yaka editorial hierarchy had higher hopes.

* Legend calls Hya Yaka a corruption of a sweating clinician's remark, "Hi, you yank awhile," "Apocryphal" pooh-poohed the editors. "We never yank, we extract."

TALKING OF "TOIKE"

SHARPLY contrasted with the new-shoe-tightness of The Varsity's stylized columns is the slipper-comfort of Toike Oike, informal mouth-organ of the School of Practical Science. Tip-toeing gingerly past the "jaundice journalism" one might expect of a virulent School publication, well-stirred into its every story concoction is flavoring of editorialism which prevents it from honestly bearing the label "newspaper".

Blithely indifferent to calendars is this periodical whose publishing routine enjoys no regularity. Glorified publicity sheet for the more important School functions, Toike Oike goes to press just a discreet distance from some forthcoming School affair.

Its Freshman Edition hailed the incoming unschooled frosh, summarized laws governing their behaviour, set them hep to S. P. Status quo on the campus. Recording School's cravat-clipping prowess and announcing the freshman's formal initiation (at which he would become "a full-fledged Schoolman with all the privileges entailed"), the second issue made its nonchalant appearance a fortnight or so later. For the School Dinner, Toike Oike cast off its journalistic pretexts and disguised itself as a dinner menu. In leisurely succession have come the School Nite, Home, War,* Election and Graduation Editions. Also planned is a second Freshman Edition for the benefit of ex-servicemen who will enter an engineering refresher course this summer.

To demonstrate newly-acquired culture, Toike Oike also published a magazine in mid-March, soliciting literary contributions.

*With professional press conscientiousness, Toike Oike emerged within three days of war's outbreak between University College and School with complete coverage of events that had preluded hostilities. This issue, Schoolmen thoughtfully distributed at Whitney Hall's late-February formal.

MINIATURE TORONTONENSIS IS ENGINEERS' "TRANSACTIONS"

EDITING a yearbook is no cinch, Torontonensis editors will eagerly admit. Editing one in spare minutes snatched from a 36-hour timetable does not simplify matters in the least. But that is what has been required of the book-burdened editor of The Transactions and Year Book, annual publication of the Engineering Society.

A popular magazine panorama of events at School, Transactions has also defied numerous war-created difficulties (manpower shortage, paper restrictions) that threatened to trip up the publication in 1944. This year has witnessed the book's return to pre-war size.

Virtually a university in itself, School turns out a yearbook of only little less than the encyclopaedic scope of Torontonensis. Academic, sports, social and military highlights; club activities, "Society" meetings, dinners, dances, and technical papers, all gain display.

To graduates and undergraduates will go more than 2,000 copies of the year book, to be cherished in later years as they serve to supplement time-dimmed memories of the "Little Red Schoolhouse."

CAMPUS AT WAR

"To ensure a short war, plan for a long one".—Col. Cody.

IN spite of the grim fighting that lies ahead, we begin to see light at the end of the dark tunnel through which we have been passing during these past five years. Our great leader, Mr. Churchill, whose words have been like a trumpet of challenge and hope, has ventured the prediction that this year will see the end of the European hostilities. The length of the war will depend on the extent to which the Allied Nations, including ourselves, recover the sense of urgency and fling all their forces of men and material into the struggle.

It is never safe to underestimate the enemy's power; it is dangerous until it is destroyed. The only way to have a short war is to be prepared in strategy and effort for a long one.

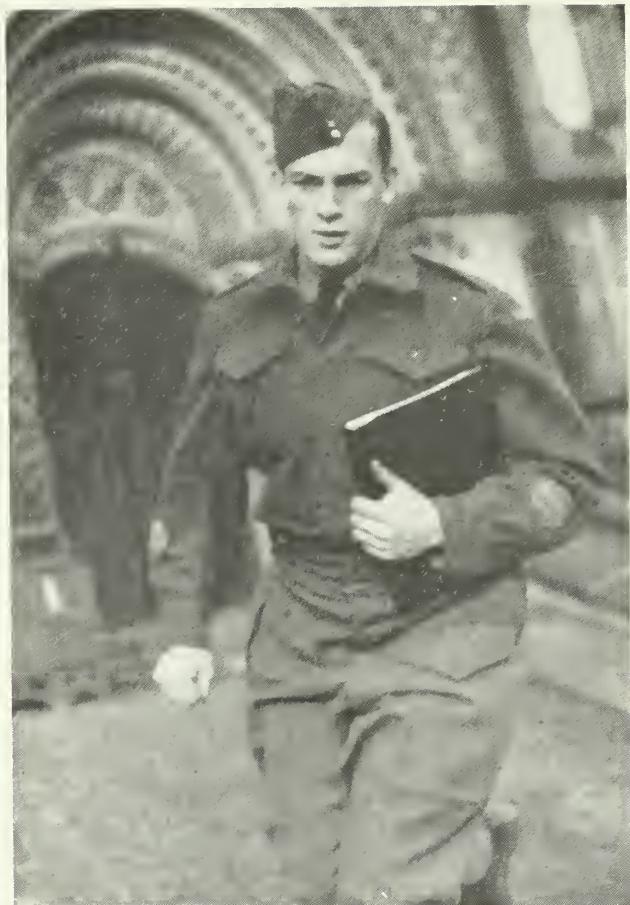

Our universities have made large contributions of trained men to every branch of the services, and in university laboratories have given of their best to solve technical problems with which only skilled scientists can deal. The Government authorities have given us specific and hearty thanks for all that we have been able to do.

The number of this University's graduates and undergraduates who have enlisted in the Active Service Forces is now about 10,000; the number of those who have made the supreme sacrifice daily increases. Already at the time of writing nearly 400 have died or are missing.

The several branches of the Service have been well represented on our campus. To the officers and men alike we offer our salutation of gratitude. To Lieutenant-Colonel Madill, who held the command of the C.O.T.C. from the beginning of the war until this spring, and to his colleague and successor, Lieutenant-Colonel Wilson, our special thanks are due.

Our universities have played a vital part in this great struggle for freedom and international decency; but this part has been concerned not only with the immediate necessities of the war, but with the fundamental purposes for which higher education exists. It aims to make everyone as complete a human being as possible—a good worker who can earn his own living; a conscientious citizen of a democracy for which we are all responsible; and a cultured individual who has knowledge of the best that has been done or said in human history. Aristotle, the great Greek philosopher, acutely said: "The state comes into existence for the sake of life; it exists for the sake of the good life".

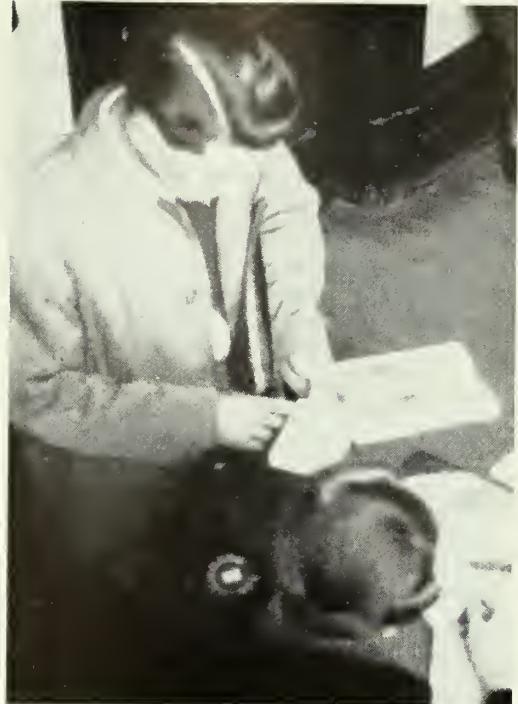

CAMPUS AT WAR

FROM the Honorary Colonel's message on the opposite page, readers may gain some conception of the magnitude of the University's contribution to total war. Scoffed at in the suddenly-realistic late thirties as outposts of ivory-towerism, the Universities of Canada have demonstrated through six years of conflict that learning intrinsically lies close to reality; that no institutions required less conversion of aims and methods to gear themselves to the task of salvaging civilization.

In the following pages some of the human story behind the statistics may be gleaned; the impact of war on the individual lives of the students of the University of Toronto.

Pulhems on Parade

"TAKEN out" by the blood-sweating S.A.C. office staff before the incoming editorial board has arrived on campus. The Varsity's eatless, utilitarian Special Military Issue informs incoming undergrads of current military regulations affecting students. Its columns set out the attractions and obligations of available service branches, outlines steps to be taken by the non-exempt.

Registration with the service selected is followed by a routine military medical. Navy and Air Force authorities have medical standards and examiners of their own; C.O.T.C. candidates say Ahhh and Ninety-nine to the temporarily augmented staff of army doctors at the 43 St. George St. Health Service headquarters.

Shrouded in shabby dressing-gowns, the students shuffle on paper-slippered feet into the doctors' offices, recount childhood illnesses, submit to thorough and intimate scrutiny, have Pulhems ratings stamped on registration cards to determine eligibility for training.

"GEE, DOCTOR, can't I even be a bat-boy?" Health Service head Dr. R. W. I. Urquhart listens in on a hop-skipping heart, assigns Pulhems rating. All examiners are qualified Army Doctors, use approved categorizing schedules.

MAJOR G. R. LANE hears the attestation oath of a C.O.T.C. recruit, assigns a regimental number in the Reserve Army of Canada. "I, Joe College, do solemnly swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to His Majesty."

In the Army Now

MEN entering the University with little or no Basic Training join the Second Battalion, take instruction in Military Drill, First Aid, Military Law, Map Reading, and the functioning of all Platoon Weapons.

On dreamy fall afternoons, the battalion forms up on the South Campus, just a minute's dash from overtime lectures. Colder weather forces retreat to the University Avenue Armouries. At Camp Niagara in June, the unit receives further training in Fieldcraft and Battle Drill, has a foretaste of genuine army life.

Though decline in the University registration of men, especially medically fit men, has forced the unit's strength down to a new low of 652, the Second Battalion maintains its own pipe-band, whose members split their allotted C.O.T.C. hours between basic training and pipe and drum instruction. Under the tutelage of Pipe-Major G. A. L. Ross, the 24 pipers progressed quickly to the point of no longer excruciating the musically alert, accustomed their less critical companions to strange new sounds.

NO "FLIES, flies, feeding on the pies"; in fact, no pies; but Quartermaster Stores have shiny kits of boots, anklets, trousers, blouses, great-coat, cap, badges, webb equipment, brush, button-stick, and sponge for every recruit. They look you up and down, and, miraculously, what they shove over the counter fits to a stitch.

"EYES LEFT", as they swing past the Memorial Tablet, tribute to the University's fallen in World War I. Intensive drill through the early weeks has disposed of the hayfoot, strawfoot, all-out-of-step-but-me stage before mid-November. The King's uniform sits easily on these seasoned young shoulders.

Change of Command

THE outstanding event of the year 1944-45 in the Contingent was the relinquishing of Command by Lt.-Col. H. H. Madill, V.D., after the ten most active years in the history of the Unit.

Some of the outstanding accomplishments during Col. Madill's tenure of office were: The acquisition of new Headquarters building at 119 St. George Street, the building of the Drill Hall and stores and lecture room building, without which it would have been impossible for the Contingent to function efficiently during the war; the training of over 3000 men who are known to have gone on Active Service, many of whom have obtained commissions, of these one hundred and thirty-five are known to have paid the supreme sacrifice, and ninety-five are known to have been decorated for meritorious service; the training of over 4,000 addi-

SINEWS, CORDS, and crow-bars creak as the Engineers assemble a pontoon bridge on the St. George St. drill hall floor. Training and practice produce neat, sturdy lashings, minimize fumbling. Men's lives may depend on their speed some day.

C.O.T.C. BAND

Continuing for the third year under the command of Lieutenant J. L. MacDowell, the members of this year's C.O.T.C. Band have completed an extensive period of training in preparation for their various contributions to the work of the Contingent in the University. Again, as in the past, musical assistance was forthcoming from Mr. Leslie R. Bell of the College of Education and Mr. William Dudley of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra.

The Band provided music for the Annual Remembrance Day Service, route marches of the First and Second Battalions C.O.T.C., and the Ceremonial Parade accompanying the change of Command of the Unit. The year's activities were brought to a most fitting climax at the Annual Concert presented in Convocation Hall, Sunday Evening, March 4th.

MODERN equipment, competent instruction, help turn out Canada's soldiers.

tional men, many of whom have doubtless gone on Active Service; and the establishment of University units of the Royal Canadian Navy and the Royal Canadian Air Force on the campus.

Command of the Unit was assumed by Lt.-Col. W. S. Wilson, E.D., former Commanding Officer of the 2nd Battalion, in January, 1945.

The activities of the 1st Battalion have been more diversified than ever, with the arrival of new and modern equipment for all arms of the service.

Training was carried on in the following arms: Armoured Corps, Artillery, Engineers, Signals, Infantry, Army Service Corps, Medical Corps, and Electrical and Mechanical Engineers.

A Board from Selective Service interviewed all graduating students in Engineering and Science early in the year, and determined the distribution between Armed Forces and Industry. Later all those appearing suitable for the Army were interviewed by Boards of Officers with the result that some 80 were chosen for officer appointments, mostly in the technical arms.

C.O.T.C. CAMPS — 1945

DURING past war years, many members of the Contingent were granted leave of absence from Camp Training if employed for at least three months in essential industry or farming.

This year permission to grant such leave has been withdrawn by the government, necessitating practically all members of the Contingent attending camp.

To accommodate Engineering and Forestry students, without a break in their summer's work, arrangements have been made to send the technical arms to various Active Force Training Centres—Artillery and Engineers to Petawawa, Signals and Electrical and Mechanical Engineers to Barriefield and Armoured Corps to Camp Borden.

First year men are also proceeding to Niagara Camp at the end of April, where they will be accommodated in barracks and will carry out Basic Training.

The regular C.O.T.C. camp is being held at Niagara the first two weeks in June, where the remainder of both 1st and 2nd Battalions will train as in former years; with the exception of II year Dental Students, who are being attached to the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, as a separate platoon under our own Officers, for camp during the first half of July at Niagara.

Although necessary administrative work has been increased many fold by this innovation, it is expected that much more interesting and valuable work will be carried out by the technical arms.

"BANG!" goes the Camp's Big Bertha, and some more imaginary Nazis bite the dust. Availability of increased stocks of equipment enabled C.O.T.C. men last summer to gain experience in modern warfare with such pieces of artillery as this. Petawawa will offer even better facilities.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

On the eve of the signing of a second peace treaty, the University mourned its dead of World War I. In the traditional and impressive ceremony held on the anniversary of Armistice Day, 1918, solemn tribute was paid to those who had given their lives for world freedom. In the presence of representatives of all faculties, the University's army, navy and air-force units assembled, carillon bells resounded from Hart House tower, and President H. J. Cody read out the names of those who had already been lost in World War II.

At right, C.O.T.C. bugler plays "The Last Post" to mark two-minute silence in honour of former students and staff members who did not return from the last war. UNIVERSITY NAVAL TRAINING DIVISION

ATTESTED on the divisional strength of H.M.C.S. "York", some 270 students are being prepared by the U.N.T.D. for eventual service in the Navy. Training consists of 110 hours during the academic year and 2 weeks of full-time training on the East Coast in the spring. Four hours of afternoon lectures weekly on Naval organization, customs, discipline, current history, operational tactics; navigation and chart work (for seamen); engine room routine (for stokers), make up over half the total. Practical work in squad and rifle drill, seamanship, and signals is given at "York" on Saturday afternoons.

Remembrance Day Service Parade, inspection at "York" by the Area Commanding Officer, and a January "Navy Ball" in the Royal York Hotel were among the year's highlights.

All graduating and Third Year stokers were interviewed by a Navy Technical Personnel Selection Board early in 1945, to determine eligibility for work as technical officers.

The final ceremony—turning in the uniforms. Disbanded U.A.S. men nostalgically rip out the whip-stitching on those chevrons.

UNIVERSITY AIR SQUADRON

LAST January saw the complete disbanding of the erstwhile University Air Training Corps, more recently the University Air Squadron. With the cessation of recruiting for RCAF air crew, no further need existed for elementary pre-service training for potential air force personnel. The 150 men affected by the disbanding order were absorbed, according to the extent of their army training, into the First or Second Battalion of the C.O.T.C., since, under National Selective Service regulations, they were required to continue their military training.

Wing Commander T. R. Loudon, Officer Commanding Number 3 U.A.S., expressed the hope that, to replace the U.A.S. after the war, students will be offered some form of air training similar to that formerly made available for Engineering and Mathematics and Physics graduates.

THE HEALTH of Canada's youth traditionally reposes on cod-liver oil as upon a rock, and this Day Nursery volunteer is taking no chances. Little Butch seems willing, other kiddies try to keep from squirming with hunger.

WOMEN'S WAR SERVICE

A MODIFICATION was made in the required women's war service plan for 1944-45. Fourth year students were permitted to participate on a voluntary basis. Third year were required to give service, Second year to take training or to give service and First year were still exempt. A number of the courses were dropped, those retained being Civic Day Nursery, Hospital Nurses' Aid and Dietitians' Aid Training, a Community Needs and Resources course, and Canadian Red Cross Corps training.

Students previously trained in any of these fields were placed in suitable agencies and gave most valuable service throughout the year. The Red Cross workroom and other Red Cross services, the active service canteens and various social agencies also benefited from the work done by women students.

A large number of students continued to give service through the Canadian Red Cross Corps, some 65 as members of the University Training Detachment and at least 30 more as regular members of the various Toronto sections. Recruits were required to complete the Basic Training course, including drill, and then gave service to some Red Cross project. This included work for one or other of the Toronto sections, or assistance at the Blood Donor Laboratory or Clinic.

THE DONORS never see them, and neither does the public, but these University girls work long hours to make the Blood Donor Programme a success. Worker at the left is rinsing needles, girls at the right assemble blood-receiving flasks, shove the needles into sterile glass containers.

The whole plan for women's war service has been most difficult to carry through but there is no question that because of it, hundreds of women students have given invaluable assistance where it was most needed during these difficult war years. The training received will almost certainly also prove of value to many students in their future life. The general programme has been in operation for three years, while the Red Cross Corps has functioned for five years. Plans for the future must depend upon the progress of the war.

The Committee responsible for the carrying out of the women's war service regulations in the University was composed of: Chairman, Mr. A. B. Fennell, Secretary, Miss M. B. Ferguson, and Mrs. W. A. Kirkwood. Miss J. Macpherson, Sister M. St. John, Sister M. St. Margaret and Miss A. E. M. Parkes.

The Committee and the women students owe gratitude to many university departments and outside organizations for assistance, in particular the Institute for Child Study, the University School of Nursing and various hospital Superintendents, the School of Social Work, the Health Service, the Faculty of Household Science and hospital dietitians, the Women's Voluntary Service Bureau, the Red Cross Workroom and officers in charge of many other Red Cross services.

The K.P. SQUAD at the Blood Lab, these volunteers have the thankless task of washing flasks, needles, tubing, in water that soon becomes a stomach-turning gory red. Programme's value in saving soldiers' lives is incalculable.

Sports in summer and winter are necessary to the O.T.'s training help them keep in condition for their arduous duties.

55 AND ALL'S WELL

IT was number 55 in the parade of annual School Dinners. The evening was Thursday, November 2, 1944. Almost five hundred hungry Schoolmen and invited guests sat down in Great Hall, Hart House, to enjoy the dinner.

Before the meal, the various years assembled in the common rooms and gave forth with traditional rafter-ringing melodies of Survey Camp style.

Guest speaker of the evening was Dr. William E. Wickenden, President of the Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland, Ohio, who spoke on "The Engineer in the Post-War World", and stressed the need for the trained engineer to meet the call of industrial expansion which should follow the close of the war.

Scholarships and prizes for academic effort in the preceding year were presented by Dr. Sidney Smith, President-Elect of the University.

FROSH BECOME "SCHOOLMEN"

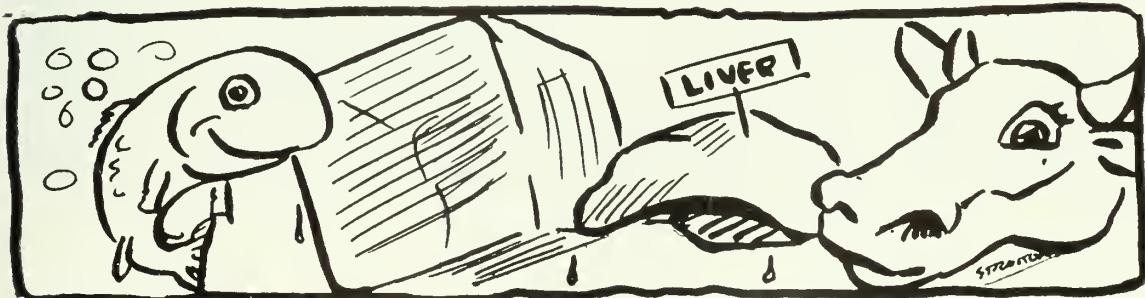

FISH, ice, cows' heads, liver, and a "tunnel of love" left their aromatic imprint upon the freshman class of Engineers at a mass physical fitness display welcoming them to the fold of School last Fall in Varsity Stadium for the second time during the war.

Following a peppy snake-dance from the "little red schoolhouse", the freshmen were subjected to a gruelling set of "calisthenics" by the sophs—who were few and almost too far between. Juniors and seniors joined in the fray to help keep freshmen in hand—and the sophs from being liquidated.

After a needed shower, all were ready for the big brawl in Hart House that evening, with Bert Niosi, Jack Evans, and Charlie Hannigan dishing out the downbeats, and the Sophs attempting to cultivate the freshmen's gals.

But the frosh, now being schoolmen, held their own nobly.

SCHOOL AT-HOME

DESS was again informal, in keeping with wartime proprieties, but the festive annual School At-Home held in the Royal York Hotel last January lacked none of the tinselled glamour of a formal occasion.

In a picturesque horticultural haven was set up a floral trellis in an adjoining room. Provided with corsages in this unique fashion, the Schoolmen's ladies "picked" their own.

Intermission entertainment featured such floor show artists as a dance team, comedian and an acrobatic team. Lucky number draw winners received record albums.

Included among the guests were delegates from the engineering faculties of several Canadian universities as well as those from the Toronto campus.

Patronesses of the evening were: Mrs. H. J. Cody, Mrs. C. R. Yonng, Mrs. Sidney Smith, Mrs. W. S. Wilson, Mrs. T. R. London, Mrs. W. M. Treadgold, Mrs. W. J. T. Wright, Mrs. C. G. Williams, Mrs. E. A. Aleutt, Mrs. R. C. Wiren, Mrs. H. H. Madill, Mrs. K. B. Jackson, Mrs. R. R. McLaughlin, Mrs. A. R. Zimmer, Mrs. L. M. Pidgeon, Mrs. C. F. Morrison, Mrs. J. W. Bain, and Mrs. J. R. Gilley.

NO PEARLY GATES

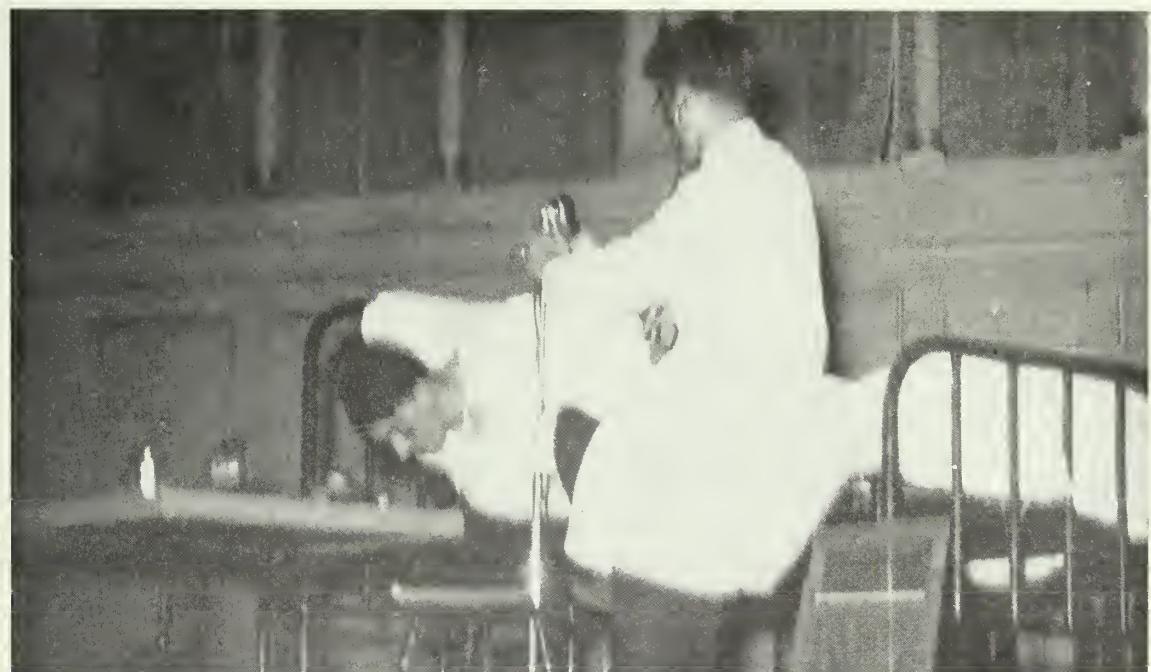

SKIT NITE held in Convocation Hall saw the Medical Society adhering to traditions of the past of providing a few breaks in the routine grind with the seniors performing their own version of "The Swinging Doors", or "Those Ain't the Pearly Gates, Bub!". Some really classy cheesecake was entered in the Typical Co-Ed Contest.

Head-lining the season was the annual Med's At Home held in the Royal York last November, supervised by Dong Rae, with the staff turning out in goodly numbers to provide the necessary chaperonage.

Queen City Yacht Club last September was the scene of a corn roast with dancing, singing, and plenty of corn staged by the fifth year. January saw a joint sleighing party under the auspices of fourth and fifth years. In the following month third year gave a buffet dinner and dance, and in February the Soph-Frosh took place in Hart House.

STRIKE UP the band, or maybe it's just the signal for the operation to commence. This bald-headed character at the Med's At Home is taking off one of the Faculty whose name, for the reverence we bear him, we shall not reveal.

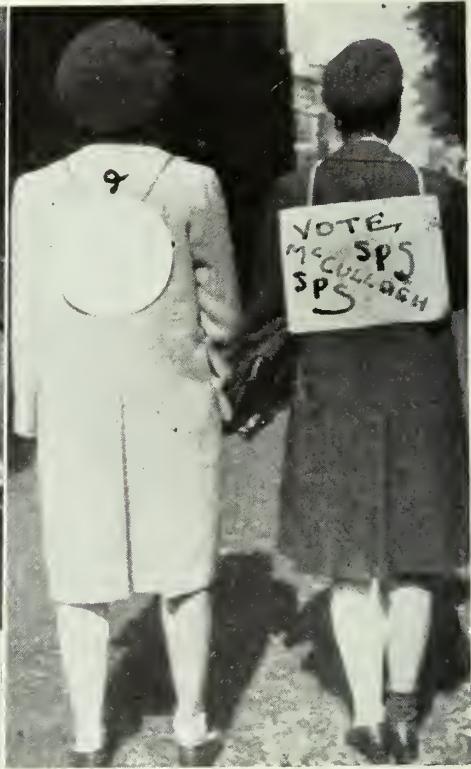

"WOOPS, DOCTOR, I dropped my false teeth!" The patient is decidedly getting the worst of it, and his every moan is broadcast to the breathless Meds At Home audience.

"7.60? CAN YOU TIE THIS?"—DEUTSCH

Most Camera-Caught-Co-ed of the year is lovely Loggie Klaus pictured here with a precious article of clothing that lately adorned Swoon-Swami Frankie Sinatra. Donated by The Voice to the I.S.S. Drive Sale, the crooner's cravat threw $7.60 into charity coffers. Clinging to the Sinatra neckwear is The Varsity's Ernst Deutsch.

SHIVERING P.H.E. students started off the International Students' Service drive on January 24, collecting pennies by the inch, foot or yard to raise $250 on the first below-zero day. A week before, the intrigued public had been let into the secret of the tantalizing "5566" posters which had dotted the campus ever since December and was ready to dig deep to "help those who can't help themselves".

UBIQUITOUS KLAUS FOR GOOD CAUSE

"Pulchritude poses for picture," wrote an alliteration-mania'd copy editor. But have it your way! Lined up at left for the leering lensman is a cute quartet consisting of Jackie Monaghan, Peggie Miller, Loggie Klaus and Joan (U.C. Queen) Cameron. Much-desired dates with the foursome were raffled at the I.S.S. Auction.

At the M.C. mike-side is Gingervating Gord Stulberg offering to the highest bidder a date with a Klaus named Loggie—who else? A determined Schoolman secured the privilege for $8. (As the bid continued to rise after the $4 mark, the Schoolman, bankrupt, offered T.T.C. tickets, finally succeeded in winning Miss Klaus when sympathetic bystanders passed the hat, boosted his offer to $8.)

Mercury dropped still lower, but nothing daunted, taggers weathered the elements, as well as the Schoolman who gave a dollar all in pennies. Skit Nite topped off the day with a really wowy show, girls, gags, and even the Bob Quartet's rendition of their impression of the famous people on the campus. Station WHY, hashed together the night before by Vic, was better than the best, the audience went wild. "Whitey" Belshaw and the School orchestra kept all feet tapping. School Nite scenes and excerpts from the U.C. Follies provided the audience with plenty of talented, etc., girls. The evening came to a riotous close with Hart House Gym packed with happy dancers.

Sinatra's tie, dates with winners of the typical co-ed contest, Whitey Belshaw's music score for "The Fool from School", and other items of interest drew further shekels from the pockets of students, egged on by enthusiastic co-auctioneers Al Siegel and Gord Stulberg. In the evening the regular Friday Pops concert, conducted by Sir Ernest MacMillan, brought the three days to an intellectual close.

FLUTTER-BOARDS develop that powerful leg-motion as P.H.E.-men take a class in Speed Swimming under the expert eye of coach W. G. Griffiths. Soon some of them will be swimming-coaches themselves.

P. & H. E. HIGHLIGHTS

THE envy of many an undergraduate who can't seem to squeeze in enough athletics, Physical and Health Education students come to college to learn to play—scientifically. Besides the swimming and track work shown here, they become experts at playing and instructing in every major sport.

Replying to jealous outsiders who call their course "a snap", P. & H.E. students point out that stiff anatomy and medical lectures cut into their course's entertainment value, that even in sports they have to work hard, concentrate on form.

IN TRAINING to chase their men, was our first thought. But P.H.E. girls boast they don't have to, would find jiu-jitsu tactics more useful. Here Track Coach "Hec" Phillips directs a Crouch Start.

Climax of P. & H.E. extra-curricular activities for the class of 4T5 was the annual At Home in Hart House, featuring the fine falsetto voices of "Four Foggy Fellows". Competing attraction was the cavorting of a troupe of professional-quality P.H.E. girl tap-dancers.

Thus the year slowly ebbed. As exams came, spirits ebbed too. Headquarters communiques reported the Class of 4T5 still "fighting to the bitter end."

"To the class of 4T6", ran their expiring message, "We pass a course still in infancy, enriched by our traditions. May it mature in your time."

SNOW!

Campus news-gathering services struggled on. Varsity staffers Rasky and Kenner locked themselves up in an office, surveyed cross-campus events via telephone, pounded out the half-page scoop of the year. Here Rasky and Editress Mosbaugh (left), driven from The Varsity's sanctum by lusty carollers, hold an editorial conference in the U.C. quadrangle.

AT THE re-union of 1995, the bowed, bewhiskered Class of 4T5 can recall in ponderous anecdote the Year of the Big Storm—the winter before they graduated.

On December 12 the campus went into a two-day truce, smothered beneath tons of snow, whipped by north winds into drifts three, four, even five feet deep, choking the doorways, stranding the professors, driving besieged residences to a diet of bread and Wheaties.

Two Toronto papers suspended publication. The Varsity, its Green Issue in the offing, came out triumphantly on time.

THE SOUTH AMERICAN WAY

FIESTA-FLAVORED was the 1945 edition of the University College Arts Ball held in mid-February in the Royal York Hotel.

Hips swayed in rhythm to the throbbing tempos of Latin-America as U.C. students danced to the music of Top Trumpet-Man Ellis McLintock and Company.

Co-Conveners Rose Rabkin and Bob Bell had worked hard. Committee members Joan Ebbels, Liz Anderson, Bob Marjoribanks, Alex Siegel and Ralph Shephard had planned the theme, designed suitable decorations, smiled happily as their project succeeded. Fiesta-ful students liked the dance!

Final cosmetics are applied before the departure of this U.C. miss for the Arts Ball.

VETS IN TRAINING

AT O.V.C. THEY LEARN WHAT MAKES DOBBIN TICK

THE legendary horse-doctor who blew patent pills down the horse's throat with a tube, and was cautioned by guffawing onlookers to remember that the horse might blow first, is vanishing before the march of specialization, the modern insistence on exact knowledge.

From their first year, students at Guelph's Ontario Veterinary College delve bone by bone and nerve by nerve into the complex structure of equine specimens. The horses, called "subs", are killed, bled, injected with formalin, and suspended by block and tackle from the ceiling of the lab.

THEY WERE FRESHMEN THEN . . .

Fido's insides were novel and even repulsively sausage-like when the Class of 4T5 posed for this picture. Grad pictures show how experience has hardened them.

"SUCH STUFF as dreams are made on" are the lassies who float through this St. Mike's student's bed-chamber on the opposite page, where Torontonensis daringly explores the student sub-conscious. At top is the dull, gray awakening; another day of lectures, lunches, frustrations.

It's the pigskin pastime portrayed above as St. Michael's husky squad takes to the Stadium field in an early rugby contest.

Busy members of St. Joseph's Sodality pose for one more picture—this one informal. To this organization falls the main social and non-academic business of St. Joseph's College.

'Tis Initiation Season for these lamenting Loretto lasses here assigned by imaginative and unrelenting sophos to the task of car-washing. Lamp-shade chapeaux provide just one of the accumulated indignities. Later, seasoned frosh will seek propitiation for their initiation embarrassment.

Watch out for this one! Would-be pharmacist, centre left, compounds chemicals in lab. under trusting surveillance of a cohort. At right, more mature pharmacists demonstrate the finer points of mortar and pestle trade. Edith Tuck, lower left, one of numerous women who have entered previously male-stocked Pharmacy since the war, smiles over favourite morning daily.

TORONTONENSIS COVERS AN AUCTION

A FADED U.C. flag, a combination bread board, mixing table, and picture frame were among the objects of frenzied bidding when Torontonensis went to the School Auction last November. Don Gibson, Master of Ceremonies cum Auctioneer, refused to try the pink flag on for size; Tangent MeSliderule was also present.

Slight excitement was caused when a khaki form was seen to come hurtling from the third floor of the School building, but the worried Schoolmen were soon set at ease when the inanimate form fell to the grass without even a splash.

At left appears School's Dinty McGinty, the only man alive who—wearing snowshoes—can jump out of a third story window and land in a bottle of Pepsi Cola. The dull thud some 30 feet from the bottle was ignored by most Schoolmen.

Shekels change hands swiftly as Schoolmen conduct their annual auction. By the boards go Whitney Hall, plumbing fixtures and intimate articles of clothing. Mock-auction M. C. Gibson pops into inset, calls for a bid on — well, you name it, if you can.

ON THE ROSTRUM

Interfaculty Debating Union

LIKE a hen collecting stray chicks, the two-year-old Interfaculty Debating Union has drawn all the debating societies on the campus under its wing, completing the flock this year with the addition of the worthy clubs at S.P.S. and St. Joseph's. The Union also represents debating societies in Victoria, University College, Trinity, St. Hilda's, St. Michael's, and Loretto.

Fostered by the I.D.U., four inter-faculty debates were held during the year. At each debate the four speakers represented different member societies.

In the political field, the debates investigated the possibility of permanent peace under the capitalist system and the advisability of Canada's withdrawal from the Empire. On a local plane, the speakers covered the ever-bitter controversy of the comparative importance of arts and science graduates and perhaps most timely of all, the value of compulsory undergraduate war training.

The Debating Union had hoped to revive inter-University debating by arranging an exchange with Syracuse University, but this will unfortunately have to wait until next year.

WORLD TO THE DOGS

A FACETIOUS attempt to prove that the world is going to the dogs defeated the government in the Victoria Debating Parliament's second session. Their vindication of the cause of Canadian unity had seen them through the first debate. Session three was a victory for the new government—upheld by the Interfaculty Debating Parliament—on the necessity of abolishing capitalism.

The tide turned in 1945 with the return of the original government. Their re-instatement went hand in hand with their disapproval of British policy in occupied countries. The advisability of a permanent military service was debated by the Victorians and a team from the University of Western Ontario at session five.

Subjects of local interest formed the raison d'être of two lively debates sponsored by the Debating Parliament to stimulate interest in the art of oratory.

FROM WAR TO WOMEN

“WAR is Declared!” screamed The Varsity’s most sensational front page of the year. It was declared by the U.C. Parliament.

Already outraged by School’s theft of the contentious School Cannon minutes before it was to have been returned to a humble Engineer’s deputation at the Arts Ball, the Parliament was further insulted by a surprise attack on its historic Common-Room meeting-place by a coterie of bumptious cannoneers. Its declaration of war followed promptly, and School’s acceptance; but onset of exams later forced an unsigned peace.

During the year, the Parliament came abreast of the times, allowed women to take part in its bi-monthly debates on topics ranging from the place of women in the post-war world to the continuation of Selective Service after the war.

Some twenty prominent student personalities were summoned before the Parliament’s opening 1945 session to receive the traditional knighthoods.

Experience speaking from the parliament floor is valuable experience for the annual springtime Robinette Debates, whose dragnet of prelims and semi-finals seeks to sift college debaters in all years, select the worthiest for the trophy. For this year’s winners, see photo below.

Women should go back to their kitchens and that’s that! So maintained Telford Georges and Monty Simmonds and their success with that debate topic won for them the Robinette Trophy.

SCHOOL DEBATES CLUB

VIGOROUS support to intercollegiate sport and tolerance of sweaters on the campus was given by the School Debates Club during the past year. Divorce laws and a co-ed Hart House were questions hotly debated by enthusiastic Schoolmen, and a lower year impromptu speaking contest kept interest high.

The return of the School Cannon to the hallowed walls of the Red Schoolhouse was the subject of an historic report from the floor of the House. Honorable mention goes to the notable members among the graduating students —Bruce Taylor, Peter Cahn, Fred Kahn, Pegeen Synge, Grant Boyd, Jim Pickard, Bill Walker and Bill Tamblyn.

The Club joined the Interfaculty Debating Union this year and upheld their high standard at the debates on the relative value of science and arts education and on undergrad military training. A joint meeting with the Medical Arts and Letters Society discussed the topical question of complete control of education by the Federal government.

The climax of the season was the impromptu speaking contest for the upper years. All debates have followed the Parliamentary system this year, and all members can look back on a very successful season.

HONOR PROVOST COSGRAVE

THE Ninetieth Anniversary Dinner of the Trinity College Literary Institute welcomed Provost Cosgrave as guest of honour last October. An illuminating review of the past history of the Institute was presented by the Provost, followed by a toast to its continued prosperity.

The banquet featured a debate conducted by Mr. W. Lyndon Smith and Mr. C. A. Ashley and two members of the House; the topic under discussion being, "That socialism cannot provide solutions for present and future Canadian problems". The motion was carried after a lively cross-fire of pros and cons.

Warden Bickersteth provided the topic for the second debate of the season, "That this House favours the wearing of conventional dress by students of the University". The question was debated hotly but was finally carried. From this the Institute went on to achieve further honour when its speaker was elected president of the Interfaculty Debating Union in November.

The three successive Governments of the House have provided two important innovations: serving of refreshments after every meeting, and as a justifiable expense, and cancellation of the morning papers as a wartime economy.

VIM AND VIGOR

A DEBATING contest, undertaken with vim and vigour by the various years, saw 4T5 and 4T6 the finalists in the major event of the year of the St. Hilda's Lit. The link with the Inter-faculty Debating Union attracted the interest of those imbued with the debating spirit, as did the annual debate against the Trinity College Literary Institute.

Trinity met St. Hilda's in their annual January talk-fest, with no pinches pulled. The topic: "Resolved that a male Undergraduate who gives his attention to only one girl during the time he is at college is not fulfilling his obligations to Society." The winners: the men (negative).

The outstanding quality of the year plays, their great variety and excellent show of talent, made it extremely difficult for the judges to decide on the winning production. Another important item in the long list of "Lit." activities was the presentation of the Nativity Play at the Dean's Christmas party, an item that has become a regular fixture at the College.

For the first time in its history the "Lit." meetings have been closed by selections from some of the talented musicians in their ranks. The annual "Lit." banquet brought a successful year to an end with the presentation of debating and dramatic awards.

RESIDENCES

WHAT did the freshman think of his first year in residence? He said he thought that it had been fine. He said that living amidst such an assortment of individuals could not fail to leave many pleasant memories. He did not know where else he might get the same fellowship and fun that he had found in residence. The freshman seemed typical. About him and about his "home away from home" is this section.

A college cross-section gathers at Urwick House for sing-song purposes. Poly-Sciman Roy Clark turns back to camera as Music Student Fay

DEMOCRACY, INC.

THREE is a fellowship in working together—even if it is in washing dishes or repairing furniture. And work together they do who live at the Campus Co-operative Residence Incorporated.

The Co-op is that much-mentioned thing—an experiment in democracy. That is its unique function in the University of Toronto, members claim.

Regarding itself as "cosmopolitan," the Co-op has recently become a co-educational residence. This year a second girls' house was opened. Represented in the Co-op's membership of eighty-two are all faculties.

Most racial groups have been represented at one time. "One of our principles is 'open membership' and 'neutralitity in race, religion and politics,'" Co-op members boast. Last fall the Co-op made its first big investment in the purchase of 24 Willcocks Street, one of five residences, expects further expansion in the next few years.

No vitamin-skimping in the Co-op kitchen at Rochedale House at 47 Willcocks. June Asselstine, Gwen Falls, Allan Grant here serve Audrey Thompson.

BOARD OF "73"

PERHAPS three feet high, four feet wide, prominently placed in the main entrance hall to stately, spacious 73 St. George Street, hangs a tack-pocked bulletin board. Eight months of each year it faithfully serves the denizens of this University College residence, announcing activities on the house agenda.

A corner of the board is devoted to occasional athletic announcements. Housemen of '44-'45 focussed a stellar spotlight on swimming, basketball and boxing. Colorful poster creations herald 73's celebrated house dances. Terse messages from officialdom post the date for well-attended, self-governed house meetings. Here too telephone messages are recorded ad infinitum, serving as 73's social barometer.

Posted early in September on the multi-useful board by House Dean C. N. Cochrane (ahead of the first punctual "frosh" arrival) is a list of residents, their names, home addresses, courses, assigned rooms at 73. Little-used in months thereafter, it nevertheless remains, informs visitors that 73 is the campus counterpart of home for a cosmopolitan potpourri of students that includes men from such far-flung centres as Berlin, Vienna and Budapest, also such cozily-convenient communities as Brampton, Brantford.

Only five-man quartet in existence is this "73" group shown below as the Farmyard Formal gave it opportunity to exercise tonsils.

TO LIFE AGAIN

NORTH House is back on Civvie Street!

Lend-lease living space for men of the Royal Canadian Air Force for the past three years, North House in September of 1944 once again opened to members of the University of Toronto. Immediately launched was a campaign to re-establish interrupted traditions.

To capable twosome B. H. Lloyd and T. E. Mumford went the sizeable task of reviving the North House social skeleton.

To President-Elect Dr. Sydney Smith, chairman of the Residence Committee, went an invitation to address a House gathering. Accepting one from Warden J. B. Bickersteth, house members took a conducted "cook's" tour of Hart House kitchen. The Warden agreed to return the visit.

Once-popular house dances re-introduced, mammoth South-East-North Hart House "stag" arranged, ping-pong tournaments planned, North House once again buzzed with its pre-occupation buzz, two-man Resuscitation Committee Lloyd and Mumford relaxed. The ten-man executive took over.

All business administration is handled by this elected executive, their decisions ratified at monthly meetings.

Tackling problems affecting all three houses, a representative Inter-House Committee consulted with the Residence Committee, had supervision over social and athletic activities undertaken by the group.

EXIT AIR FORCE

TRANSFORMED into an air force station for the entire college life of the present undergraduate generation, East House this fall stepped out of its wartime role and became once again a residence for men in all faculties of the University of Toronto. Late September inventory disclosed that the house roster was comprised largely of freshmen.

House officers elected, policy established, East House was reborn.

At the initial house meeting, Dr. Sydney Smith welcomed new members. Meetings since have been held monthly. At these, plans for house parties, Sunday evening at-homes, an inter-house dance, have been formulated. During the autumn term Whitney Hall and St. Hilda's College entertained.

Guided by Bob Bailey, East House coped the Interhouse Sports Trophy in basketball early in the cage campaign competitions and retained the prize on into February.

QUIET PLEASE!

ON facing and following pages are executive members of the U.C. Women's Residences, whose doings hit the headlines early in February when stringent anti-noise regulations were experimentally applied to cope with pre-examination nerves.

For weeks, Whitney Hall girls dropped only noiseless pins. The irrepressible Campus Cat told of finding groups of them sitting quietly on wooden benches, contemplating a Pure Idea called "Death in the Deanery".

"From bedtime till 10:45", the Cat went on, "the Dean reads them Peter Rabbit over a loud-speaker system. At 11, she tiptoes through the House and slugs those not asleep with a baseball bat".

Trapping of mice under beds, unless with specially-silenced mouse traps obtainable from the Office, was said to be another black-listed activity. "Several girls are nervous wrecks from hearing more mousetraps go off in the night", the Cat explained.

As the months wore on, the regulations were quietly eased. The 11 p.m. telephone ban, source of most masculine griping, was the first to be disregarded. By term's end, no one was regulation-conscious, no rules were being enforced. But the Hall was appreciably quieter than in January.

Looking back, the girls could see that the experiment had been chiefly psychological, no great hardship after the first few nights, and on the whole a decided success.

ST. HILDA'S COLLEGE HOUSE COMMITTEE

SINCE St. Hilda's is a college and not a residence only, it has its own institutions, of which the College Meeting is the most important, because it is the organ of student government. The College Meeting handles all entertainment funds and student assessments; its elected representatives organize Red Cross and Social Service work.

House rules and activities are discussed by the St. Hilda's College Committee before being presented at the College meeting to which all resident and non-resident women of College belong. The House Committee is made up of the Principal, Mrs. W. A. Kirkwood, the Head of College, and the Heads of the three lower years.

The Head of College, and the Heads of the years chosen for their academic standing. Automatically, the Head of College becomes President of College Meeting; the Head of Third Year becomes Secretary; the Head of Second Year becomes Treasurer.

MEN'S ATHLETICS

ATHLETIC DIRECTORATE

Secretary of the Athletic Association, unofficial historian of the University, and after-dinner raconteur extraordinary, Mr. T. A. Reed is caught by Hart House's prowling photographer Burwell smiling impishly over an unidentified document.

THE ATHLETIC DIRECTORATE

THE Athletic Association, one of the University's oldest organizations, derives its authority from the Board of Governors of the University under a constitution approved by the Board. Its history dates back to 1893, when the first definite organization was formed.

Prior to this a Gymnasium Committee had been appointed by the University College Literary Society to confer with the authorities on the erection of a gymnasium building by the University which the students undertook to equip and control. This committee did very valuable work in raising money for the equipment and incidentally saving the campus as a playing field for future generations of students.

In the spring of 1900 the present constitution was drawn up by the then Secretary, Mr. T. A. Russell (B.A. '00, LL.D.) afterwards and for many years a member of the Board of Governors. It is noteworthy that the same constitution of forty years ago operates satisfactorily, with certain amendments, today.

The Constitution of the Athletic Association:

Objects: Encouragement of athletic sport, promotion of physical culture, providing for rational amusement, maintenance of the highest standard of amateur sport.

Membership: Male undergraduates of the University and affiliated colleges who are proceeding to a degree, are in actual attendance upon lectures, and who have paid the annual athletic fee.

Management: Subject to the superior authority of the Board of Governors, all matters concerning the Athletic Association are under the control of an Athletic Directorate, composed as follows: The President of the University, Honorary President ex-officio who also appoints:

H. J. Cody, Hon. Pres.; W. E. Brown, Graduate Rep.; W. A. Dafoe, Faculty Rep.; S. Beatty, Faculty Rep.

R. W. I. Urquhart, Dir. Health Services; T. R. Loudon, President; M. G. Griffiths, Act. Dir. Athletics; W. A. Stevens, Dir. Athletics.

Two representatives from the teaching staff;

Two representatives of the graduates appointed by the Athletic Advisory Board;

Five undergraduates elected annually by representatives of the Athletic Clubs, the Faculties and affiliated Colleges;

An undergraduate appointed annually by the Students' Administrative Council; and ex-officio.

The Director of Athletics, the Medical Director and the Financial Secretary, all of whom are appointed by the Board of Governors of the University.

The Directorate's duties cover:

(a) The direction and control of the Gymnasium, Swimming Pool, the locker rooms, showers, and all that part of Hart House called the Gymnasium Wing, and the making of such rules and regulations as are necessary for their management and supervision;

(b) The responsibility for the administration of the programme for the University's requirements in Physical Training;

(c) The entire management of the Stadium, the athletic fields, the Arena and the outdoor skating rink;

(d) The supervision and management of all University Athletic Clubs.

A. C. Burgess, G. A. Lewis, J. W. Fielding, W. D. O'Malley, E. J. Wilford, D. M. Gibson.

Intramural Athletics

Intramural athletics are, subject to the superior authority of the Directorate, placed in the hands of the Intramural Sports Committee, which has power from the Directorate to make rules and regulations necessary for the administration of interfaculty athletic competition. It consists of the President of the Athletic Associations of the Faculties and Colleges, or a representative appointed by him. This Committee meets regularly throughout the session with the Supervisor of Intramural Activities as Secretary and advisor. Their actions and recommendations are reported to the Directorate.

Election of Student Representatives

Student representatives to the Directorate are elected annually by an electoral body consisting of:

Two representatives from each of the Athletic Associations of the affiliated Colleges, viz: University College, Victoria, Trinity, St. Michael's, Knox, Wycliffe and Pharmacy;

Two representatives from each of the Athletic Associations of the Faculties of Medicine, Applied Science and Dentistry; one representative each from the Faculty of Forestry and College of Education; Six representatives each from the Rugby, Track, Hockey, Basketball and Boxing, Wrestling and Fencing Clubs;

Four representatives each from the Soccer, Rowing and Swimming Clubs; Two representatives each from the Tennis, Lacrosse, Baseball, Golf, Gymnastic, Volleyball and English Rugby clubs; and the six undergraduates on the current Athletic Directorate.

In all matters in connection with Student Athletics it should be borne in mind that the interests of the students are the first concern of the Athletic Directorate and that any student has at all times the right to appeal to the Directorate on any matter affecting his individual interest.

THE GEORGE M. BIGGS TROPHY

THIS trophy, of sterling silver, placed in the gymnasium corridor, is presented annually to the undergraduate who has contributed most to University Athletics, from the standpoint of leadership, sportsmanship, and performance. It was presented by Mrs. Biggs in honour of her husband, George M. Biggs, Med '04, a prominent athlete during his college career.

This year, as in several previous years, the trophy was awarded jointly to two men, H. A. MacMillan and R. J. Delaney, both of Meds 4T4.

MacMillan, now a Naval Surgeon-Lieutenant, was the last remaining in college who had played on a Senior Intercollegiate Rugby Team. He was also a hockey star and a member of the Athletic Directorate.

Delaney, now an R.C.A.M.C. Lieutenant, was also a Directorate Member, a President of the Meds' Athletic Association, and had a great deal to do with Meds winning the T. A. Reed Trophy in 1943-44. He was a Track star.

BASKETBALL BLUES

THE top feature of the current season of Athletic Nights was the series of games played by the 1944-45 edition of the Varsity Blues Basketball Team. Owing to wartime travelling conditions, the team was restricted to city matches. In the nine scheduled games, wins were chalked up against Tip Tops and West End Y, senior teams, and against No. 4 Release Centre Malton and Uplands, R.C.A.F. stations.

The Blues rose to their peak of crowd-pleasing form in their showing against Detroit's Wayne University, our only American visitors. In a brilliant display, sparked by Captain Don Gibson and Harry Mayzell, the Blues held Wayne even from the floor with twenty baskets each, but threw away an advantage when they scored only six of twenty-one foul shots as compared to nine out of twenty scored by Wayne. For his fine play Toronto's Harry Mayzell earned a place on Wayne's All-Star opponent team, selected by Wayne's coach and players at the conclusion of the season.

The next Athletic Night proved that nothing is predictable in sport. Another capacity crowd saw the Blues humbled by the Trenton RCAF team, 32 to 22. Next, a 63-59 loss was sustained in a weird contest with York Belting. The Blues ended the season with a satisfying showing against Assumption College. Although on the short end of a 45-39 score, the regulars, consisting of Don Gibson, Joe Ryan, Doug Spry, Murray Thomson, Max Grossman and Harry Mayzell, as well as their alternates, made a host of friends.

TELEQUATIC MEET

A N Intercollegiate Telegraphic Swimming meet was held on March 1st. with McGill, Queen's, Western and Toronto represented. Toronto won the meet by a scant margin of two points; Toronto 29, McGill 27 and Queen's 3.

Varsity had three firsts (Peterson in the back stroke, Martin in the 100 yard free style, and the 200 yard free style relay with Lockhart, Moffat, Granfield and Turnbull), three seconds and two thirds. The results of each event were telegraphed by each University to the Registrar of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, who in turn telegraphed the winning times to the competing Universities.

Beer, Teskey, Turnbull, Martin and Peterson qualified for the War-time Colour Award in the meet, and we have the nucleus of a very fine swimming club for 1945-46.

POOL PARADE

THE accelerated wartime aquatic programme at the University of Toronto has, since the fall of 1942, been fulfilling the needs in functional swimming for an increasingly larger group of students. Operating simultaneously with physical training classes on the gymnasium floors, instructional periods are offered in learn-to-swim, basic and advanced intermediate swimming, basic and advanced life saving, speed swimming, diving and military swimming skills. Briefly, an opportunity was provided for every man to participate in the aquatic programme.

A trained group of instructors, staff and volunteers, to a total of over thirty-five, working with small groups, present the material in a very practical way. In one period it is not an uncommon sight to see the struggling non-swimmer sharing the pool with several life-saving groups towing subjects by proven methods, while others are breaking holds likely to be encountered in rescuing the apparently drowned.

After the flutter-kick comes next the arm motion. Coach W. W. Winterburn uses charts to demonstrate the do's and don't's of the crawl stroke..

The man behind the high-gear aquatic programme, Swimming Instructor W. W. Winterburn, in his familiar blue jacket, brings the P.T. Credit List up to date. Over the years he has made thousands water-wise.

TRACK AND FIELD

ANOTHER track, field and harrier season has been concluded, and it can be termed a successful one, not only in the numbers of participants, but also by performance. Equally as important as these two factors was the continuous interest and spirited competition shown by the participating students.

The outdoor season was credited with 500 entries and the indoor programme with 300 competitors, many of whom ran in 3 or more events to make a total of over 1,200 entries.

A correspondence meet with McGill was held in conjunction with our senior interfaculty meet. This meet was won by Toronto with a score of 79½ points to 63%. Notable among our performances was the high jump of Bill Kerr, of Applied Science, who equalled the existing interfaculty record set by R. O. Brett in 1940, at 5 feet 10 inches. Cam Burgess of Trinity won 3 first places and a second; Frank Fordyce, Applied Science, ran a beautiful half mile in 2 minutes flat, and a good quarter in 51 and 8-10 seconds. He was followed less than a yard behind in both races by Bill Fielding of Meds. School of Science won the meet from Meds, with Trinity a close third.

A dual meet was held with Ontario Agricultural College, which was won by Varsity. Kerr of School jumped 5 feet 11½ inches, and James of Meds ran the two miles in 10 minutes 43 and 61-0 seconds. These performances are both better than the existing interfaculty records. Goering of Trinity showed great promise by throwing the javelin 163 feet 5 inches.

The annual relay meet, won by the Medicals, was held with 5 races, in which 80 men were entered. The junior meet brought to light many promising athletes and was won by Meds over S.P.S. by a score of 47 points to 36.

The Indoor programme of 20 events extended over a period of ten weeks and included events for freshman, novices and seniors. The championship was won by the representatives from Meds, headed by George Lewis, but they were given a great battle by the Victoria team, who this year are to be congratulated for the effort made by their freshmen athletes. Vic bids fair to be a leading track and field college in a few years.

The crowning feat of the indoor season was the high jumping of Art Jackes of S.P.S., who jumped to a new indoor record of 6 feet and $\frac{1}{2}$ inch. This height is a quarter inch better than the Inter-collegiate outdoor record. Another good performance was that of A. D. Antoni of Meds, who ran the quarter mile in 54 and 7-10 seconds, just 5-10 of a second behind the record of George Lewis. In an exhibition high jump held during one of the Athletic Nights, Bill Kerr jumped 6 feet 1 inch against Jackes, who jumped 6 feet.

HOCKEY BLUES

ACE BAILEY'S Varsity Hockey Team returned to the camps this year—tailored to wartime travelling restrictions, but good, nonetheless. Gone are those long distance trips California-bound, but the renaissance will be a great help when Intercollegiate Competition does return.

Closely tethered around home, the Blues initiated the formation of the "Varsity Friday Night League" consisting also of the HMCS York "Bulldogs"; Victory Aircraft O.H.A. "B" Team; and Watson's A.C. of the Intermediate Toronto Hockey League.

Starting January 12th, games were held at the Arena every Friday evening.

In the league games played, the Blues split with Victory Aircraft, winning 5-3 and losing 2-1; trounced Watson's 12-2 and 5-1; and bogged down before the Navy, 7-1 and 7-2.

Varsity finished third in the league, Navy taking the championship in a sudden-death final with Victory Aircraft. Aside from the league games, the Blues beat both Victory Aircraft and Ostranders in exhibition bouts.

The team filled in for RCAF on one occasion, losing, after a hard-contested tussle, to Toronto Army, 7-3, in the Inter-Serviceman League at Ravina Gardens.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

A BUSY time was had by all involved in the intramural sports program for the year as, being the sixth war year, it presented problems of decreased eligibility, academic tension and fluctuation in registration. Due orchids may be presented to the Intramural Committee, the Standing Committees for each sport, the component Athletic Associations, the managers and officials.

Despite pitfalls, the student organizations, with Ken Carroll of Dents in the central chair, not only carried the program through to a hallelujah finish complete with whoopin' an' hollerin' but contributed to an already long list of big-time achievements. Perhaps most praiseworthy of these is that of "Heck" Phillips and his committee for indoor track. Twenty events were operated over a ten-week period, with over 300 race-crazed characters figuring in over 1,200 program entries. Individual efforts are detailed elsewhere in this section.

Another coup was the record-breaking entry of 80 basketball teams in the Intramural League. Out of this potential shambles emerged 215 games and only six defaults. Top that for an indication of the enthusiasm of the players and of the work done by the managers and executives!

Climax of the soccer series, one of the oldest of the intraunral sports, was when Meds tangled with Vic. Medicine copped the championship, on a 2 to 1 score, but not without two periods of overtime. An interesting sidelight here is the score card's revelation that only eight manager, and his team of such stars as Nels Kuhn, Bill Wade, Ed Currah, Lyle Furry, Doug Whittle, Ed Matthews and Art Staley, have reawakened intense interest in athletics at U.C. The Mulock Cup game, in which School lost both the cup and the cannon, was a highlight.

of the 25 players were Canadians of English-speaking stock. The others represented many nationalities and four continents—proof that Toronto has become a university in the true sense of the word.

Another group to be mentioned in awed whispers is Vern Purcell and his Athletic Board of University College. Reinforced with P. & H.E. students, U.C. dug into its Wheaties and became a college of champions. 1912 to 1944 is a long time when you're waiting for the Mulock Cup. George Haughman, the

The second major championship to the Royal College came through the efforts of the School of Physical and Health Education on the basketball field. Manager-coach Doug Whittle whipped his team into shape as crown winners. They had to be whipped, as there were 80 teams in the league, and the best of these were in the quarter finals. S.P.S. III coached by Vern Booth battled their way to the finals but succumbed in two straight games.

Up at Varsity the fans witnessed the best interfaculty hockey of many years. The main reason for this was the inclusion on the teams of members of the Varsity "Blues" team. There was not one default in all 73 games. The 23 teams involved played hard, fast hockey, and when the players were sorted out U.C. and Sr. S.P.S. were found to be opposed in the finals. In two straight games School showed U.C. that they had a better claim to the Jennings Cup.

St. Michael's College provided the dunking in a thrill packed water-polo season. Coach Frank De Marco and Manager Bill O'Brien saw their building and training of three years pay off when the Irish entry eliminated the favorites, Sr. School, in the semis. Sr. Meds, finalist as a result of a win over the Jr. School powerhouse, proved too much for the St. Mike's entry and won the tub-mug on two straight games.

Competing on the Junior Track, 160 men got the outdoor program off to a rousing start. Meds registered a convincing win in this affair. Sixty-nine men competed in the Relay Meet and 49 in the Senior Track Meet, won respectively by Meds and S.P.S.

The Tennis Tourney was one of the best in recent years. Superior atmospheres brought forth correspondingly good play. Team championship was won by U.C. with a covey composed of A. Younge, Bill Wade, Ian Morrison and C. Houser. Ian, playing for Trinity, defeated Young of U.C. for the Singles championship. The latter then showed versatility by teaming with Dimock of Trinity to defeat Joe Feyerer of Meds and Patzalek of Dents for the doubles crown.

Presented to the Athletic Association by Mrs. A. McCatty, is a new interfaculty swimming trophy in memory of her son, Winston McCatty, Trin. This trophy is to be presented annually for the 200-yard Breast stroke, the event in which Winston McCatty so superbly represented Varsity. Winner of the award for this year was M. Beer. U.C.I.

It has been possible here to give only the main frolics of the season. The two thousand participants in the program will have memories of certain games or tournaments, but focal point of interest—and of controversy—was the T.A. Reed Trophy for Intramural All-Year All-Faculty Takes-in-Everything Championship. Changeable registration necessitated a revision in the manner of awarding points. This was not completed until almost the last day of the term:

the standing of Colleges and Faculties listed here is the revised one. Congratulations are due the first four on their magnificent effort throughout the year.

ATHLETIC NIGHTS

AN ISSUE of The Varsity five years ago carried a glowing story on "Athletic Nights", hopefully predicting a huge crowd of 500 that Saturday. Issues of this past year bore statements of the Athletic Association explaining the regretful necessity for placing a top limit of 1250 admittees. The years in between have seen the walls of the Athletic Wing sporting a visible bulge, as the number of revellers soared to 2200 on red-letter nights.

The basketball team (whose fortunes are described elsewhere) and the square dancing were weekly attractions of the season. The undiminishing popularity of the latter was due largely to the hoe-down rhythm rendered by Jack Paterson of Emmanuel and his Kampus Korn huskers. Music of the more cuddly type was provided by Duncan and Thompson of Second Year S.P.S. with an improved and enlarged public address system in the Main Gym. The basketball team, playing against Wayne and Assumption in particular, lived up to the good reputation of their predecessors.

The "Lounge", or more technically the Wrestling Room, was again a popular spot. Quiet games, soft lights and well-stuffed davenport's invited a few minutes of relaxation. Table tennis, table hockey, ring toss, and quoits interested the more active in the boxing room. Energy was retreaded, when necessary, by trips to the Tuck Shop.

"Joe College" Night was the opener, with informality as the keynote and U.C., P.H.E. and Knox as co-hosts. The Varsity Blues started off on the right foot by defeating Uplands Air Force Basketball Team. At half-time, Stu Heffernan and his troupe thrilled the house with an exhibition on the "trampoline".

Three intramural water polo games carried the pool program along with a diving exhibition by Ken Tully, Canadian Junior Champion. Forestry, Emmanuel and Victoria combined with an international note, providing the setting for the visiting Wayne University basketball team, added thrills being provided by the six-year-old twin diving team of Hughes & Hughes.

Navy and Malton Air Force teams were brought out by S.P.S. and Wycliffe for basketball battles against "School" and the Varsity blues. Fencing master Charles Walters and Gymnastic Coach Charles Zwygard presented their protégés in their only appearance of the year.

School of Nursing as co-hosts with the Faculty of Medicine presented the banner show of the year with girl's basketball, water polo, and volleyball, then the Trenton R.C.A.F.-Varsity game. Coach Hector Phillips and his track stars ran the only male show of the evening.

Climax to the season was provided by the quartette of St. Michael's Trinity, and Dentistry with the theme of "Inter-collegiate Night", displays of intercollegiate and intramural trophies, copies of Torontouensis from way back open at pictures and write-ups of past glories, and intercollegiate yells and songs led by co-eds in Varsity, Queen's, McGill, Western, and Assumption sweaters were among the attractions that opened nostalgic vistas to many an un-hep wartime undergraduate.

Following previous years' practice, the $900 realized from the five nights was turned over to the Canadian Red Cross and the University Settlement.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE ATHLETIC BOARD

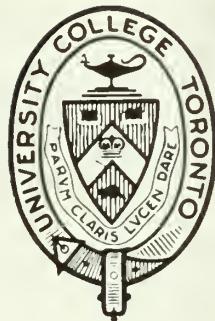

THE Athletic Board was fortunate this year in directing the most successful athletic program that U.C. has enjoyed in many years. The first success was recorded early in the semester when the U.C. tennis team won the Victoria Tennis Club trophy. The football team, "spirited underdogs" in the experts' opinion, came through in grand style to win the Mulock Cup for the first time in 33 years. Keeping up the 1944-5 style the volleyball team went on to win the Victoria Staff Cup and complete one of U.C.'s proudest fall seasons.

The hockey, baseball, waterpolo and baseball teams entered in the winter sports competition are all of championship calibre and it is hoped they will meet with the same success as did the teams in the fall sports.

Men of U.C. can justly be proud of their athletic achievements throughout the season of 1944-5.

Victoria College Athletic Union

THE influx of enthusiastic freshmen succeeded in reviving Victoria's traditional athletic spirit. With their continuous support added to the efforts of a few over-worked "old-timers", Victoria put forth a more determined, if not more successful effort.

While the larger percentage of men participating in college sports did not improve Victoria's standing in the T. A. Reed Trophy race, a much more lively spirit was evidenced throughout the athletic life of the college.

Whatever success was forthcoming, was due for the most part to the fine and enthusiastic work of the team coaches and managers, who ably handled and moulded the available material.

The retiring board of the Victoria College Athletic Union looks with increased hope at this crop of noble, young freshmen, who they feel sure will bear to new high honours the banners of Scarlet and Gold.

To those who helped make this possible the executive wishes to extend its thanks, and to the incoming V.C.A.U., its hopes for even greater triumphs next season.

TRINITY COLLEGE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

THIS association is composed of all undergraduate students enrolled in Trinity College, the theological class and the students of other faculties resident in Trinity College. The government of the association is vested in the T.C.A.A. Executive, elected annually by the students.

As a result of the co-operation of the Men of College a greater number of students participated in sports this year than ever before—averaging better than 95% of all eligible men.

The quality of sports in Trinity is high this year and many of our teams have won their groups and advanced into the play-offs. This is certainly a credit to Trinity—a college with a total male enrollment of 135. This year in particular we feel that Trinity deserves the T.A. Reed Trophy; and if our pace is kept up a Red and Black victory will certainly be assured.

Tennis has always been a strong point for Trinity and this year has been no exception. Roy Lau, a second year student, walked off with the university singles crown. In the doubles Frank Dimock of fourth year teamed up with Young of U.C. to capture the Victoria Trophy.

Trinity again distinguished herself in the Track realm. The team of Goering, Kirkwood, Hamley and Burland, walked off with the University Junior Harrier championship. In the Senior Harrier the Trinity quartet placed secoud, nosing out other large faculties. Cam Burgess and Jack Goering were two of the outstanding performers in the Jnnior and Senior Track meets at Varsity Stadium. This is the third year in a row that Cam has been individual star in outdoor track.

Trinity teams reached the semi-finals in swimming and soccer and all players turned in creditable performances. This year two hockey teams represented the Red and Black and both managed to do extremely well.

ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

DESPITE a small enrollment at St. Michael's this year the Athletic Association has carried on well. Besides an increase in the number of competitive sports participated in by the college, a greater percentage of the student body partook of intramural sports than in previous years.

This year another and allegedly fairer method of allotting colours has been organized. A new design of the major and minor "M" will be presented; and a new award, the "college numeraus" has been initiated, intended for students who although active in sports do not qualify for the "M". A further innovation of this year was the reorganization of the Athletic executive to cope with the swelling interest and participation.

The Fall term began with a strong, but apparently not strong enough, rugby team in the field. The cinder-scuffers deserve much credit: although this is the first year a full track team has been entered in university events, they stood fourth at the end of the season. Tennis and golf teams also made their debut this year. During the Spring term the Lacrosse and Hockey teams garnered many valuable points in the Reed Trophy competition. Of the five volleyball teams, one reached the play-offs, to be nudged out by Sr. U.C. The College was well represented by the Basketball, Baseball and Water polo teams, the latter being defeated only in the finals.

Although this year has not been outstanding in athletic accomplishment, it has been in the enthusiasm shown by the students. This success is due to efficient Nick Maneini, able head of this year's Directorate and to Coach Frank DeMarco who spent considerable time and energy in the interests of St. Michael's athletics.

WYCLIFFE COLLEGE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

THE aim of the executive this year was to create interest in all branches of sport and to provide for every student, regardless of his ability, the opportunity to take part in intra-mural games. To a large extent this aim was reached. We suffered as a result of the smallest number enrolled in many years; we have no string of victories to record but we can say that a large percentage of the student body took part in athletics and a remarkably fine spirit was shown by all.

Teams were entered in harrier, track, tennis, golf, soccer, volleyball, baseball and swimming. Enough turned out in basketball to make two teams: the prospects for our "A" team are bright. Our hockey team is in a good position to win its group. Wyycliffe entered 50 per cent of the total number of men who ran in the senior harrier at High Park.

MEDICAL ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

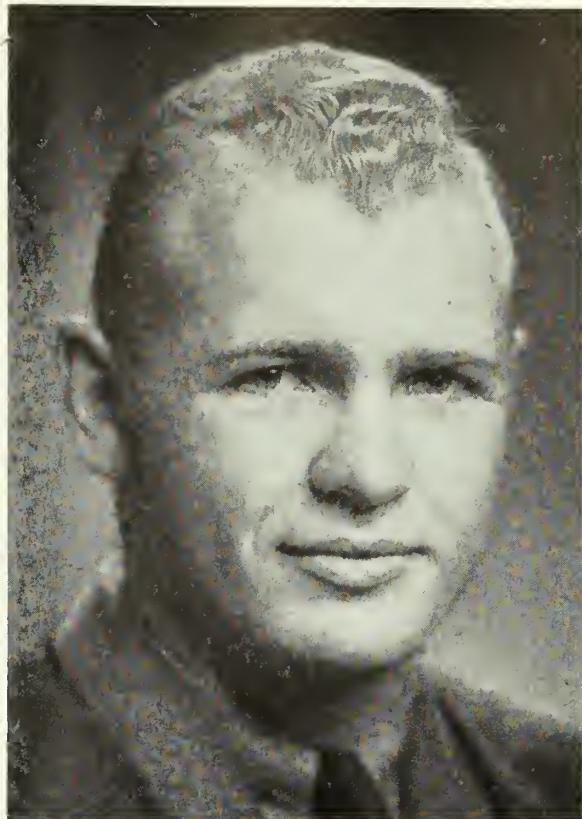

UNDER the guidance of the Athletic president, George Lewis, Medical Athletics have come through this year with an effort which is worthy of high praise and a credit to the faculty. Yet this was all done in spite of a speeded curriculum and a limited amount of time.

Once again Meds stood high in the race for the T. A. Reed Trophy. Starting the fall season with no fourth year enrolled, our ranks were further depleted after Christmas when our sixth year graduated; thus the full weight of representing Medical Athletics fell on our first three years and our fifth year. However, these four years did more than their share of work, and were successful in bringing five inter-faculty titles to Meds: Junior track, relay track, indoor track, soccer and waterpolo.

Our lacrosse team lost out to S.P.S. in a bitter final series. The expanded program in soccer teams for the first time, and this year we were able to field a strong experienced senior team which won the Arts Faculty Cup: and our junior team reached the semi-finals before being eliminated. By a similar building program, strong teams were fielded in track, lacrosse and waterpolo.

Thus another successful year for Medical Athletics has passed, a year in which thirty men were awarded their Medical "M"'s and twenty-five were awarded the Varsity "V". Thank you, George Lewis, and your executive for a swell job.

Meds Athletic Stick

THE Athletic Stick is an award given annually by the Medical Athletic Association to the most outstanding athlete in the graduating class. The winner is chosen in consideration of four qualities: Sportsmanship, athletic ability, leadership, and personal application to duty.

This year the Stick goes to one of the most outstanding men in the field of athletic endeavours that the Faculty of Medicine has ever had, namely George Lewis. Throughout his career at university, George has participated in numerous sports; however he will be remembered particularly for his prowess in track events, boxing and rugby. Both in the indoor and outdoor track meets he consistently placed among the winners, while in the indoor track he set a new record for the two hundred and twenty yard dash.

In boxing he twice won his own weight championship, and in rugby he excelled in the backfield positions. By leadership and personal application to duty, George virtually by himself carried the burden of leading Meds to their high standing in the race for the coveted T. A. Reed Trophy. But he didn't limit his activity to Medical Athletics alone, for in his final year he was a member of the Athletic Directorate of the University itself.

Above all George will always be remembered by his many friends, as one who had the prime requisite of a true athlete, sportmanship. We all do, and will miss you terribly George, but here's wishing you good luck and every success wherever you may go.

DENTAL ATHLETIC DIRECTORATE

ATHLETICS in the sixth year of the war, especially in an accelerated course, are becoming continually more elusive. Dents students have had to put forth considerable effort to make time for sports but were very fortunate in having a Faculty that would assist to the large extent that they did.

The Directorate of this year was one of the most active in the past five years. These men, in addition to their own sports, carried on extensive administrative work and were the backbone of the whole intramural sport organization.

This faculty has done well athletically in the past year. In Gold they had the individual champion and the second place team. The winter sports were greatly overgrouped but the teams fought hard. In hockey they tied for group leadership; the basketball and hockey teams led their group. There were also several men tied up in the wrestling program. (Speaking figuratively of course.)

This record has been possible only by complete co-operation between students and Faculty; and it is one of which Dentistry may be justly proud.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION FACULTY OF APPLIED SCIENCE

THE Athletic Association of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering has been in operation since 1902 although it carried another name before incorporation of S.P.S. as a faculty of the University of Toronto. The executive consists of a president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, an athletic representative from each year and a publicity director. These officers are elected during the spring at the time of famous (if not notorious) School Elections.

Besides trying to produce championship teams, the Association endeavours to give each of her men an opportunity to participate in his favourite sport. Evidence of this attempt may be seen in the presence of 24 volleyball, 24 baseball and thirty basketball teams, all from School, in Mac McCutcheon's Intramural sports program. As the year draws near its fateful end it appears that School will get eleven championships out of the eighteen possible, with finalists in three others.

This may place the T. A. Reed Trophy out of reach for S.P.S. but few on the campus will deny that she is still the going athletic concern of the University.

PHENE MEMORIAL TROPHY

Verner Maleolm Booth, 4T5, is the eighth winner of the Phene Memorial Trophy, as well as of the coveted Bronze "S". Only twiee before has a single sportsman risen to the high ideals of both awards.

The Phene Cup is presented annually to the man on the Senior School Rugby Team who has, in the opinion of the other players, shown the best conduct and team play during the year.

BRONZE "S"

To Vern Booth, player on 18 Sehool Teams and two Varsity Basketball squads during his four years at eollege, the graduating engineers have this year awarded the Bronze "S", their highest athletic honour.

An indoor and outdoor track star par excellence, a Rugby and Baseball player in all four years, member of the 1943 Sr. School Mulock Cup winning team, and in his first two years an intramural basketball player, Vern has aehieved a remarkably extensive record while holding the respect and admiration of his team-mates.

Klaus Kuehnbaum congratulates his Ping Pong victor and Pharmacy champion Marv Grimshaw. Grimshaw holds the cup. At right Ping Pong again provides the picture as the All-University Table Tennis Tournament gets into full swing.

PHARMACY ATHLETICS

THE past year was a very successful one for athletic activities, in that a large proportion of the class of Pharmacy participated. The baseball team, with capable Ted Gardyian as manager, led their group and may go far in the play-offs. The basketball team was also a worthy representative of the College, won many a hard-fought fray and is at present in the finals.

Nathan Moses was our sole representative in Tennis and Squash; he succeeded in reaching the quarter-finals in the former and finals in the latter.

From the standpoint of student participation, table tennis was the most successful of all. The competition was glutted by practically the whole class of Pharmacy. After weeks of elimination games, the final skirmish took place between Marv Grimshaw and Klaus Kuehnbaum, with the former emerging as victor after a closely contested campaign. Our Athletic Representatives, Ted Gardyian and Marv Grimshaw, are to be sincerely mitted for their splendid efforts during the past year.

“FOREMOST in aggressive sportsmanship!” was the traditional boast of O.V.C. undergrads when the college was still on Toronto’s mother campus. Removal to Guelph diminished that reputation not a bit. Sparkplug of the extensive Vets’ Athletic programme is the College Athletic Association, in which every student is automatically enrolled.

Prewar years had seen Varsity Basketball and Hockey teams from O.V.C.: two winters ago, as the war went into its next-to-final stages, the Athletic Directorate anticipated the recent move of the Toronto organization, extended a cautious feeler into city leagues. In the winter of 1943-44 an O.V.C. team breezed through the Guelph

City Hockey League to cop the cup in the class B finals. Last winter Vets stormed the city league again, had a firm grasp on second place standing as this section of the Torontonensis went to press, anticipated a repeat of last year’s triumphs if late-season form could have been maintained.

G. C. Cilley, Jr.
President.

War-fostered inter-year sports continued to mushroom, with softball, hockey, basketball, ping-pong, and bowling as major activities. Playoffs following the schedule decide the champion year in the college, spice the inevitable Sunday-tea artificially of inter-class competition, spur student athletes to a friendly but competitive frenzy. But wait till intercollegiate sports are back!

THE BLUE AND WHITE

AS the University goes into its second century of teaching, it gropes back into the past to lay hold of the traditions whose memory is fading and whose protagonists are gone or near the end of life. Most significant attempt to pin down the past since Librarian Wallace's 1927 History of the University is Mr. T. A. Reed's recently-published The Blue and White, "a record of fifty years of Athletic endeavour at the University of Toronto."

Secretary of the Athletic Association since 1914, a meticulous detailist, an infinitely patient rummager among files and memoranda, and blessed with an abundance of informative friendships and an active historical sense that can bring the past to life, Mr. Reed was exactly the man for the job he undertook.

He has compiled a volume of 320 pages, firmly footnoted, rich in anecdote, and profusely illustrated. It discharges in some small measure the University's debt to the men who established athletics on her campus and paved the way for the intricate Intramural juggernaut of to-day.

The first few copies, earmarked for distribution by the author, included one, sumptuously bound in blue morocco with gold edges and hand-tooled decoration, which is now the property of retiring President H. J. Cody: whose fifty years with the University of Toronto embrace exactly the span surveyed by the book.

The Directorate

Direction of women's athletics in the University falls into three groups—the college and faculty athletic associations, which recruit, train and maintain their respective intramural teams; the Athletic Clubs, each of which organizes and directs one of the sports, particularly regarding intramural competition, through an executive composed of college and faculty representatives; and the Women's Athletic Directorate which is the final authority on all University athletic matters.

The Directorate is responsible for all major policies and regulations, for example in regard to health and safety, finance, eligibility, standards of play, etc., and in normal times deals with intercollegiate matters such as rules and regulations, appointment of coaches and managers, schedules, travelling arrangements, hospitality, etc. The Directorate maintains and equips all intercollegiate teams and makes all awards of University Colours and trophies and adjudicates in any case of athletic dispute within clubs or associations. The Directorate is composed of Faculty and graduate members and six undergraduates, five of whom are elected by an electoral body and one who is appointed from the Students' Administrative Council.

Women's Intramural Athletics

ALTHOUGH Varsity had no Intercollegiate teams this year, the Intramural teams were ably recruited and the various tourneys carried through by the Club Presidents and their Executives.

Tennis was brought to an efficient and early October close by Margaret Alexander, aided by her ally, the weather. The championship was also efficiently copped by Marg, when she defeated Dorothy Jane Sanders, another Saint, 6-4, 6-0. A third St. Hildian in the semi-finals clinched the cup for that college. The fourth semi-finalist was Betsy Mosbaugh of U.C.

The undecided championship of the year was the feature attraction on the baseball diamonds, when weather and practice difficulties conspired to hold up the schedule. Nine teams were entered, to the surprise of everyone and Janice Murray. The quality of the play has improved since last year, and next year, spared the presence of a "Great Snow," the batters should really make it a top sport.

Basketball featured a minor miracle this year when P.H.E. Freshies battled their way to a championship, strewing the campus gyms with defeated teams. Lois Dowson of P.H.E. arranged the practice and games schedule for twenty-four teams, which, as the largest field on record, involved more work than ever before. Other interesting features were the entering of a Pharmacy team and a coalition Meds-SPS group; and a round-robin system of declaring the champion.

Again Joan Campbell, President of the Swimming Club, handled the Swimming tournaments and meets, and again she did a masterly job. Another again comes when we note that for the third year Barbara Hinchcliffe of Victoria captured the swimming cup, and Vic for the second time in history won the team championship. Pat Paterson of St. Hilda's took the diving cup.

At the end of the hockey season a determined St. Hilda's team went out on the ice hoping to defeat Vic I in retaliation for a loss of two years ago, but came out on the short end of a 1-0 score. It was the best game of the year, and terminated the best season of many years. Vic's championship squad didn't have a single loss. Most of the credit for such a season can go to the tireless efforts of "Barbie" Wilson and the others on the Hockey Club.

While mayhem occurred at Varsity Arena, a more ladylike version of the same thing happened at St. Paul's one evening. The game of badminton took its toll of the misfit in Marcia Keating's tournament, at the end of which both spectators and players were sobbing wrecks. The suspense of watching Doris Clarke of P.H.E. whip Janet Hughes of U.C. to take the championship was only equalled by that of seeing the same Doris, with Helen Sheppard, also P.H.E., take the St. Hilda's team for the doubles title.

Volleyball really came into its own in the past year, under the guidance of Helen Halliday of P.H.E. The standard of the play was so good by the end of the series that the game in which Vic finally defeated P.H.E. was worthy of a cup. As there is at present no volleyball trophy, they had to be content with the glory, which was not inconsiderable. No prophesies are needed about volleyball, as it seems that it is here to stay.

Bowling under Polly Mutz engaged 136 devotees during the year, and then late February its novices and experts gathered up at the Midtown Alley to knock down the pins in the annual tournament. U. C. it seems nicked the most pins the most number of times to gather in all but the individual championship. Ruth O'Shaughnessy of St. Michael's took the individual plum.

The sport that wasn't, was skiing. Due to travel restrictions there was little that "D.J." Sanders could do, but she did that. She inquired of all those who knew, and a few who didn't know, to see if anything could be organized. Summit was a little too far, and the University Ski Club was nine miles farther than that, so that the idea of organized skiing was abandoned. There were still some hardy girls who trolleyed and hiked to their happy hunting grounds.

U.C.-P.H.E. Women's Athletics

THE Athletic Year, 1944-45, has proven a very successful one for U.C. and P.H.E. For, although we may not have come out ahead in every sport, there was certainly plenty of enthusiasm shown by all the teams participating. As a result of this spirit U.C. was able to enter a fourth basketball team and a second baseball team into the various schedules.

To the victorious individuals and teams, our congratulations! They may be justly proud, for competition is keen in every sport. P.H.E. Freshies had perhaps the most difficult task when they tried, and succeeded in beating all the other teams on the campus to pocket the Basketball championship and emp. Jean Hartmann, also of P.H.E., won the golf tournament for the second straight year, while Doris Clark of P.H.E. won the badminton singles for the second year and with Helen Sheppard, teamed to win the doubles championship.

U.C. and P.H.E. both did well in baseball, but as the final game could not be played the championship was not decided.

In Volleyball U.C. and P.H.E. both entered teams, and the two P.H.E. teams got to top berths. In the end, however, the P.H.E. team, the A team, was defeated by Vic, to come out in second place.

U.C. won the bowling championship by having the top team score, although they did not capture the individual title.

In the swimming meet, P.H.E. placed second, while U.C. came behind in third place.

Victoria College Women's Athletic Association

The Association this year has had an active and enthusiastic following. Every woman undergraduate of the college automatically is a member, and in her hands lies the true success of Vic's athletics. This year the hands were capable, and the executive was able to foster competition and keenness in the college and within the university. With Volleyball, Swimming and Hockey championships finally ours, we feel happier, but as fun and skill has been the keynote in the past year, without these championships it still would have been a happy year.

Not so happily our tennis material has graduated, and so in the first sport of the year we were gently eased out. Baseball was enthusiastically received and Vic fielded two teams, which fought heroically with the other colleges, but finally were eliminated. Only after a very close match was Lois Lloyd forced to concede the golf championship to P.H.E.

Basketball saw Vic heartbreakingly close to the championship when two of her four teams, Vic II and Vic Sr. A., got to the semi-finals and were eliminated by a P.H.E. squad. For the third year Vic captured the Hockey crown, and for a second time Vic won the Swimming. Barbara Hinchcliffe won her third university aquatic championship. Volleyball, one of the baby sports, attracted championship material to the Vic team, and with these players the title was sure.

Within the sphere of the college we held, for the second year, the amazingly successful Splash Party, and have played challenge games with Vic grads and Dons.

The Athletic banquet saw nine graduating girls receive Vic athletic pins, awarded for their skill and sportsmanship, while at the Athletic Tea, closing the season, the College and University awards were made.

ST. HILDA'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

IT HAS been a great year for St. Hilda's in the field of Interfaculty Athletics, but there were a few heartbreaks. The final fall of our beloved hockey team to the Vic steamroller in the finals was perhaps the worst. However, congratulations to the team are in order, and although sometimes the cheering section was not as loud or as large as it might have been at lunchtime on those "nippy" January days, we were very proud of them.

But first things first. Tennis. The thrill for the fans, especially Saints fans, came when we watched Margaret Alexander smash her way through to the finals, and in them, through "D.J." Sanders to the University Women's Championship. With a third Saint in the semi-finals, we were well represented. Congratulations all!

The number of Basketball enthusiasts among us reached an all-time high this fall, and from these, three well-organized and well-groomed teams were chosen under the capable management of Mary Cockram. Although none of the teams reached the final matches at Hart House, they put up many good fights. The Freshie teams shows great promise.

Those Saints who played on the Soft-ball team will have many pleasant memories of the Battle of Trinity back-Campus. The sport seems to be catching on and should be even more successful next year. Perhaps Saint Hilda's will be more successful, too.

The Saints didn't outswim many people at the Hart House meet. Pat Paterson and Carol Manning out-dove the rest of the teams from Varsity and Pat became the Diving Queen of the Campus, with a silver cup to show for it, when she gained the highest number of points.

It has been said that badminton as a recreation has fallen upon evil days, but the shortage of birds and courts did nothing to cramp the style of Carol Trow, Betty MacDonald, Dorothy Jane Sanders, and Pat Paterson. Carol won the Saint Hilda's cup, and with Betty got to the finals of the University doubles tourney.

Bowling was taken much more seriously this year, and, under Sid Moorhouse's management, a carefully planned college tournament was run off prior to the University tournament. By averaging the scores and choosing the four highest, a team was chosen, which looked to be of top calibre, and was. In the University high score match, our team missed out.

Volleyball seems to be getting more and more popular around St. Hilda's, and there were more than enough to choose from, in making up teams. Of the two the A team showed most teamwork, and thus got farther.

St. Hilda's graduating class has, by its co-operation and love for the college, made the past and present year's activity successful. The recognition received from the University has shown their place in the Athletic picture of the University as well as of the College.

VICTORY IN EUROPE!

V-E DAY — victory in Europe Day — came upon a campus in term-end turmoil. Engineers were settling down for their second week of training at C.O.T.C. Camp, the Faculty of Arts was gasping midway through its May examinations, lectures and organized activities had ceased. Toronto-nensis was half-way off the press. What would have been earlier in the year the Signal for a delirious uncorking of campus high-jinks was merely the occasion for a few flags, some brief words of thanksgiving, and a distracted but somehow refreshed return to work.

For two weeks the University had awaited the news of peace. Plans for a one-day lay-off had been readied. Chaste posters notified Great Hall diners that on the day following the official announcement of Victory in Europe the Hall would close, hinted that stocks for bachelor lunches had better be laid in.

With the increasing certainty that Victory would be declared before the Arts examinations could finish, mounting rumours were quelled by a proclamation from the Caput. Students with examinations scheduled for the official holiday, it announced, would write them in the evenings of the two days following.

The first week-end in May saw workmen on ladders hammering and chiselling over the Hart House main doorway, Assistant Comptroller Cowan directing proceedings with his pipe. They were preparing mountings for a special display of flags.

* * *

As General Jodl on the other side of the world was striding stiffly into Eisenhower's school-house headquarters, screened by a blanket news blackout, Arts Students fought off excitement, bent over their books for Monday morning's exams. As Monday's examination candidates breakfasted, a few heard the German radio's declaration of surrender. It was nothing new. Peace rumours had been in the air for days. They gathered up their registration cards and last-minute notes, and set off for the examination rooms, talking the usual harried pre-examination chatter.

At 9.36, with examinations for the morning smoothly under way, came A.P.'s now-famous gun-jumping announcement of the surrender.

Church bells, sirens, cheers of repatriated veterans stationed on the campus, pierced the ominous calm of the examination rooms in S.P.S., the Botany building, the C.O.T.C. Drill Hall. In relatively soundproof Examination Hall, only the drone of a few stunting aircraft penetrated to quicken pulses. The toilers wrestled with question after question, fought off the tensening, invidious atmosphere.

* * *

Into the noon sunshine, examination finished, they flocked out by hundreds, grabbed early editions from friends, gobbled the huge headlines. Two open flappers, under wraps since 1939, careened around the campus, their springs creaking loaded with cheering flagwavers.

The carillon chimed out through the sunlit May air, its tones swelling across the campus, across the city. Its booming medley of patriotic airs, climaxed by a thunderous God Save the King, expressed the relaxed feelings of University officialdom, struck an answering chord among the flocking students.

Hart House closed at 2, the library at 5; those who wanted fun went downtown for it. The flags of five Allied Nations fluttered over the Hart House main door. Firemen appeared to stand guard over the alarm boxes. And the afternoon examinations went quietly on, reinforced by promises of special consideration "in view of unusual circumstances of stress and anxiety."

Tuesday, the official holiday, was sunlit and peaceful as a Sunday. On Wednesday, the camps came back to work. Germany was beaten. The strain of two weeks' waiting was dissipated. But joy was muted by continuing exams, the spectre of Japan still to be tackled, the memory of the University's 350 fallen.

FRATERNITY ROW

THIS is about fabulous Fraternity Row—Toronto's historic Greek-letter street and its off-shoot avenues.

It talks about The Fraternity's role on this campus. It cannot explain that role but it tries.

It hopes to show by means of picture and story how The Fraternity functions. It aims to show how, through invigorating "impact of youthful mind on youthful mind", The Fraternity can and does develop those intangibles: personality, character and leadership.

With your permission then, down Fraternity Row!

ALPHA CHI OMEGA, established in 1885 at DePauw University in Indiana, has grown through the years until it now includes more than sixty-five chapters scattered throughout the United States and Canada.

On this campus, the Beta Iota Chapter is a homogeneous group of active girls each of whom has different interests and ambitions. Peggy Garnham, from Caracas, is in Moderns; Barb Coltman would like to go into Medicine when she graduates; Marg Beedham is doing well in S.P.S.; Terry Gilchrist in Fine Art; Anita Goggio in Sociology; Mary Manson, President, in Home Economics; and Marg Bremner in Medicine.

This year activities included a Pledge Dance at the Royal York, a Formal Dance at Dorothy Dooley's home, a Banquet at the Granite Club, a Christmas Frolic for the Creche kiddies, Founder's Day Tea, Initiation and a Birthday Luncheon in April.

The post-examination House Party means a blissful lazy week of lots of bridge and gab-fests on above mentioned topics, at the end of which the fraternity members return to Toronto arrayed in different degrees of sunburn from light pink to fuschia.

This year the fraternity will push seven new B.A.'s out into the world, namely: Mary Manson, Gertie Muller, Nancy Irvine, Carol Good, Loggie Klaus, Gwen Reid, and Barb Coltman.

FOUNDED on the University of Toronto campus in 1927, the Alpha Alpha Chapter of Alpha Epsilon Phi has grown speedily. This year's active membership totalled 22 with 16 pledges in addition.

Members were: Edna Brill, Connie Edell, Annette Eisen, Erniece Frankfort, Alfreda Geldsaller, Cecelle Goodman, Lyla Hands, Eileen Hertzman, Elaine James, Ruth Kert, Dorothy Oelbaum, Shirley Rapp, Shirley Schipper, Corinne Shendroff, Ann Silverstein, Jacqueline Singer, Sadie Smith, Helen Sorne, Evelyn Swartz, Florence Swartz, Shirley Weiss, Eleanor Wolfe.

Pledges included: Frances Abrahms, Reva Bloomenthal, Sybil Cadesky, Erniece Jean Freed, Maxine Freed, Maxine Freed, Zelda Friedman, Sheila Godfrey, Dorothy Greenberg, Ann Levine, Gloria Pearlman, Anita Polver, Ruth Roher, Naomi Rosenberg, Selma Vise, Dorothy World and Helen Zeidel.

Alpha Epsilon Phi's social schedule for the year included a successful charity tea, regular meetings featuring special speakers and discussions, a "mother and daughter" tea, pledge party, pledge magazine, and the initiation party.

It's the "Pose that Refreshes" caught here in the living-room of Alpha Epsilon Phi's frat house. Eighteen of the Alpha Alpha Chapter's active members assemble for the photographer.

ALPHA KAPPA KAPPA

AT the AKK house will be found chaps from all parts of Canada—from the rolling plains of Saskatchewan to the mosquito infested swamp of Southern Ontario.

Among those graduating this year is President Tommy Irwin, the man with the motor twins—cycle and car. Well dressed Mel Kumkel (see candid page) and Pinky Probert, the lad with the Johnson's Baby Powder complexion, also will graduate. Zeke Yandel, the frat's official date bureau, will certainly be missed by Jim Carson when they both leave. The pride and joy of the graduating class is Jimmy Thompson, "the only man who could make up his mind".

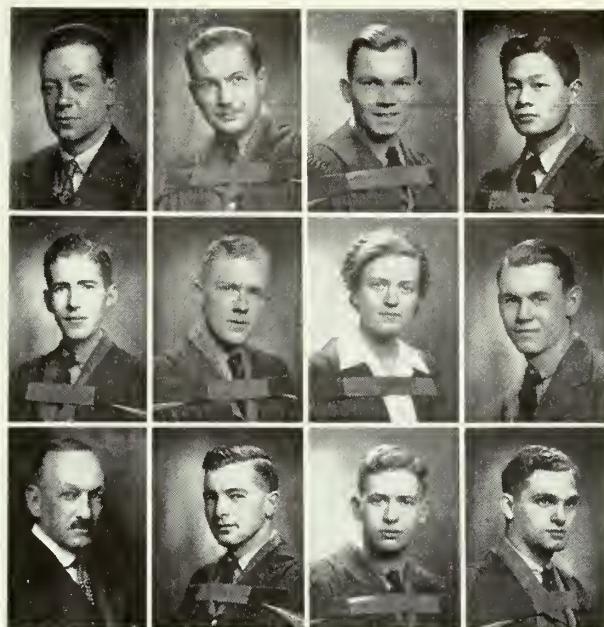

"Alas, poor Yorick!" While COTC-clad pseudo Hamlet gazes pensively at the obvious, friend appears absorbed with microscope. Both lads miss pretty picture on wall—or are used to it.

The cameraman breaks into breakfast at AKK house along Fraternity Row and discovers Fred Hogarth, Bill Graham and Irwin again, standing behind Bill Paul, Fashionplate Kunkel, Owen Coons and Archie McKinlay.

"AKK" they call it. To the passing Greek student the brass plaque adorning their house announces "Alpha Kappa Kappa". The camera here takes you through the portals of AKK and gives you a glimpse of the fratres at home. Bill Paul, Tom Irwin, Owen Coons and Mel Kunkel provide the bedroom scene at the left above. Lloyd Probert, Bill Blastorah, Don Finlayson and Clare Baker gaze from their corner at right. Comfort of Alpha Kappa Kappa quarters can be seen as Motorized Tommy Irwin, Lloyd Probert, Florian Yandel, Nairn Stewart and Mel Kunkel lounge below in the living room.

OPEN to medical students of exceptional academic ability, Alpha Omega Alpha is an Honour Medical Society.

Founded in 1902, the Society's Alpha of Ontario Chapter was organized four years later at the University of Toronto, where it has since played an important part in the career of its student members.

Graduating members of Alpha Omega Alpha during 1944 were: W. Allemand, J. V. Basmajian, R. M. Bremner, T. Y. Chang, K. F. Clute, P. O. Crossweller, E. V. Duggan, D. A. Gibson, W. R. Harris, H. Kalant, S. S. Nash. Their impressive graduation ceremonies were staged in late December.

RUSHING and pledging of new members provide the big event of any fraternity year. Alpha Phi this year welcomed as initiates Tut Ankenman, Peggy Gall, Peggy Head, Grace Kellough, Jackie Keens, Margery McLeod, Peggy Miller, Ann Sheppard, Barbara Tiffin, Joan Western and Nancy Wyatt.

Alpha Phi's contributed to U.C. Follies' success: On stage were Liz Anderson, Libby Falconer, Jeanne Wormith, Peggy Miller; Joan Corbett and Mary Brackley in the choruses and Skit-star Veronica Nisbet; behind scenes were Barbara Brooks, Joan Snyder and Joy Wecker who worked on costumes and scenery.

Instigated at U.C. this year was an art exhibition and musicale. Credit for its organization goes to Alpha Phi's Jeanne Wormith and Martha Corson. Mary Horan and Nancy Wyatt added a painting and a piano recital, respectively, to the successful evening.

In addition to the required work, Alpha Phi donated its charity money to the I.S.S. drive, sent a parcel to the Chaplain's Service Fund, assisted weekly at the Red Cross Canteen at Christie Street Hospital, began a new project: the making of garments for Europe's children.

Though social gatherings were war-few, Alpha Phi's social event of the year was the annual Initiation Dance held on March 10 at the Royal York Hotel. Toronto Xi Chapter also sent two delegates—Mary Brackley and Barbara Brooks—to the first Alpha Phi Convention in four years held on March 23-25 at Syracuse, N.Y.

A YEAR of serious work and many varied activities has finally come to a close for men of Beta Sigma Rho. As the fraternity historian closes the scrapbook and reflects on what is now past, he cannot help but look with pride at the outstanding achievements within the fraternity this year.

Installation of a new chapter on the University of Western Ontario took place in Toronto conducted by New York's Grand Chapter and Toronto's Eta.

"Even as we look back," writes the BSR historian, "a new year of school and activities looms before us. Those who were graduated this year are going out to take their places in the bigger fellowship of man as individuals and as part of a nation and a world. In a few years we who are left shall join them."

"Let us make sure that we will be prepared."

BETA THETA PI

LIFE at Beta Theta Pi's Toronto Chapter is fun! Witness the assorted countenances of cheer displayed in the candid shots alongside. A Senior fraternity and undisputed fore-runner in many frat-related fields, Beta Theta Pi's total world membership is more than 5,300.

House Manager is he who squeezes tomatoes at the groceteria, casts a shrewd appraising eye at potatoes, generally attends to the fuel needs of an active fraternity, cares for the calory content of fraters' diets. House Manager is also he who poses above in dainty, frilled and polkadotted apron on Beta Theta's back steps (for novelty) in line of dish-washing duty. "A House Manager's job," was the suggested Beta Theta caption to the picture, "is never done!" It says here,

Show in a suspicious semblance of informality, this is the oft-serenaded "wooglin, wooglin Beta Theta Pi". Thrice-photographed above are the imposing front steps to Toronto's Beta Theta house. Between the steps and the camera in the three photos are groups of 21, 11 and 23 members of the spirited Theta Zeta Chapter as they pose and smile in willing anonymity for the frat cameraman. Actual active membership in 1945 was 23. It would seem that someone's in there twice.

THETA ZETA YELL

Theta Zeta, Theta Zeta!
She's the pride of all the Betas!
Phi Kai Phi, Phi Kai Phi!
Wooglin, Wooglin!
Beta Theta Pi!

Frat spirit is forged in creation of a lively, welkin-wearing yell. The Theta Zeta Chapter of Beta Theta Pi has such a yell the length of Fraternity Row resounds to it during initiation season. The remainder of the year it is confined to the frat house proper.

WAR CONTRIBUTION

In the past year the Armed Services have claimed five members of Theta Zeta Chapter: A. R. Askin, J. A. Beament, J. D. Clarkson, D. R. Mason and D. J. Ritchie. But this loss has been partially balanced by the return of P. D. Read and R. B. Stapells.

FACULTY

All Betas hate to leave college, but some are so attached to the University that they have become professors. Members of the faculty now are Ernest Edgar Cleaver, Thomas Eakin, Beverley Hannah and Arthur Fitz-Walter Wynne Plumptre.

BEТА THETA PI is a fraternity that features "firsts".

A pioneer organization in the true sense of the word, it was the first to adopt a truly national point of view, the first to appear at thirty-two campuses throughout the United States, and its magazine, The Beta Theta Pi, the first fraternity periodical, has been published continuously since December 15, 1872.

Founded at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, on August 8, 1839, Beta Theta Pi had eight constituent members at that time, led by the "moving spirit", John Reilly Knox. It was the sixth in order of founding and the first to originate west of the Allegheny Mountains.

In its 105th year of activity, Beta Theta Pi has 112 chapters on its rolls. Of these, 90 are still active with some 5,300 members in all. Canada claims two chapters: Theta Zeta founded at the University of Toronto in 1906 and Gamma Omicron established in 1936 at the University of British Columbia. Total membership in the Toronto chapter is 351, while active membership at Toronto in 1945 was 23.

THE active members of the Tri-Delts look with pride upon their alumnae sisters in the armed services, two of whom are Dr. Jean Davey of Canada Alpha, and Betty Blair. Dr. Davey, now in Ottawa, is head of the medical services of the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F.; while Betty is overseas with the Y.M.C.A., one of the first girls accepted to do recreational work for the organization, and the first to go overseas in that capacity. Other triumphant Tri-Delts include: Hazel Campbell, with the Army Show, who has won distinction as elocutionist with the Doris Clark, scholarship - winner, troupe; another versatile member, University badminton champion, and star basketball player; Helen Halliday, scholarship student also.

THE D.G.'s have played a very active part in campus life this year. Many of the girls had prominent parts in the U.C. Follies and participated in such sports as basketball and hokey. On the patriotic side, quite a few of the girls were in the Red Cross transport. On Friday nights the girls all help at the Red Cross Lodge at Christie Street Hospital.

The most important event of the Delta Gamma year was the province convention on the weekend of March twenty-fifth when the Toronto Chapter played host to delegates from Syracuse, Garden City, Montreal and Cornell.

A much looked forward to event will be the Annual House Party on the week-end of May twenty-first, when the twelve new members will have a chance of getting to know the older members. Fern Cottage at Atherley will be the scene of the party this year.

Under leadership of President Mary Eleanor Jordan, Delta Gamma conducted a successful pledge dance, initiation banquet in addition to regular meetings. Membership in the DG frat now comprises 38 active members. The local chapter was organized on the Toronto campus in 1913.

Hungry D. G. girls wait outside their house for tardy sisters who are holding up luncheon.

FOR 47 years the "Dekes" have been prominent on Toronto's campuses.

Alpha Phi, Toronto chapter of Delta Kappa Epsilon, has come to assume a major position among fraternities at the University of Toronto. This year the fraternity has 19 active members: 10 seniors, nine fall-initiated freshmen, and three pledges.

Proud of its war record, the local chapter has 125 members on active service. Six members of Alpha Phi have been killed in action in this war. Preserving the fraternity's strength even through the trials of war has been the Council of Delta Kappa Epsilon established in New York City. Here headquarters manages to maintain close relationship with her far-flung chapters.

Founded 101 years ago at Yale University, DKE fraternity has since that time grown in strength until today it is one of the leading international fraternities. Today there are 47 chapters, some of which are inactive due to the exigencies of war, and over 20,000 members, past and present. DKE chapters are strongest in New England and also extend throughout the United States and Canada.

SUNNY WEST VIRGINIA saw the birth of Delta Tau Delta one autumn-tanged day in 1858 when a lively group of students at Bethany College, West Virginia, united to form the initial chapter of what has since grown to become among the top fraternal organizations of the continent.

Sole representative of the fraternity in Canada is Toronto's own Delta Theta chapter which was granted its charter in 1926. Prior to that time the Toronto chapter had functioned as a local fraternity, organized in 1905 as Psi Delta Psi.

SPRING elections at Delta Tau Delta at 91 St. George Street saw School's Frank "Whitey" Belshaw, 4T6, dynamo of School Nite, take over the presidential gavel from retiring president, composed, engineer Norman Jull 4T5. Bob Schneider 4T6 succeeded Dave Peppall 4T5 as the chapter's vice-president.

IT HAS been an active, successful year for Phi Chi medical fraternity, installed on the Toronto campus in 1920. Most publicized activity was the re-decoration of the single-turreted chapter house on the corner of St. George and Harbord Streets. Professionals were called in to rejuvenate the den and dining room; the medicos, themselves, hilariously took on the task of "Flighting" the bedrooms, assisted by nineteen new pledges from First Year Meds, caseined to the eyebrows. The result: most satisfactory, we are told; the Phi Chis are justly proud of their attractive quarters.

IN the wake of graduations, failures and/or calls of the services, the fall of '44 found the ranks of Kappa Sigma temporarily depleted. The year was successful, however: the bulging program of social activities will long be remembered by those now graduating.

Kappastimes for the year included the friendly Spring Formal; the Alumni banquet at Haddon Hall; Bankers' Night, when "Klondike Gold" flowed like water around tables of faro and roulette; Alumnights, which broke up slightly before arrival of the milkman; and the Graduation banquet, held in honor of the five graduating members. These were Dana Collings, Watson ("Steve") Stephens, Gordon McGorman, John Goudey and Russel Marshall.

SECOND largest college fraternal organization on the continent is Lambda Chi Alpha, embodying prior to the war 106 active chapters.

Admitted in 1927 was Epsilon Epsilon, thriving chapter of the University of Toronto. With entrance of the local chapter in that year Lambda Chi Alpha became an international fraternity.

While some fraternity houses have been forced by present war conditions to curtail their activities and even temporarily to close down, the original Canadian chapter has carried on "exceptionally well", reaching its present size of 200 members, of whom 20 are active undergraduates. Toronto Lambda Chi's are justly proud that almost half of their membership is on active service.

Until January of this year, the Toronto chapter had been the sole Canadian representative of the fraternity. At the beginning of the new year Epsilon Rho was installed at the University of Alberta, Edmonton. Epsilon Rho, formerly Alpha Chi, was founded as a general fraternity five years ago. Today it maintains an active body of approximately 25 members.

It's party time on Fraternity Row as Lambda Chi Alpha's transcendental photographer aims his lens down upon these four party scenes. Much mock mazzina is in evidence as the top group concentrates on a game cf—we never could figure out what!

This Lambda Chi Alphan is flashed as he lifts—'twixt thumb and four fingers—an onion from the plateful that is prominent in this buffet array. The party must be almost over.

Torontonensis' aerial cameraman looks down on this most inevitable of all party scenes as this keyboard duo provide accompaniment for a choral workout.

From our vantage point this would appear to be dancing. Nine couples shown in the throes of terpsichore as Lambda Chi Alpha's houseparty heads into the ayems. Expiring late-leaves will soon summon the Lambda Chi chosen co-eds home. Meanwhile, exit photographer.

Popular pastime along Fraternity Row is pool. Nu Sigma Nu's posh billiard room is the setting for this candid shot of "fratres in domo". The cigar-chewing Meds-man straddling the table at the moment concentrates on a not too difficult shot.

Decidedly a pleasant atmosphere prevails here as banqueting Nu Sigs apply themselves to food. Streamers, candles on table, fruit-heaped trays and charming chapeaux suggest some special occasion. What? That's your guess.

An octet of Nu Sigmen assemble here before the piano for an enjoyable sing-song. Bridge-player MacKinnon has forsaken the card game for this lyrical pursuit. Toronto's Chi Chapter was established in 1902.

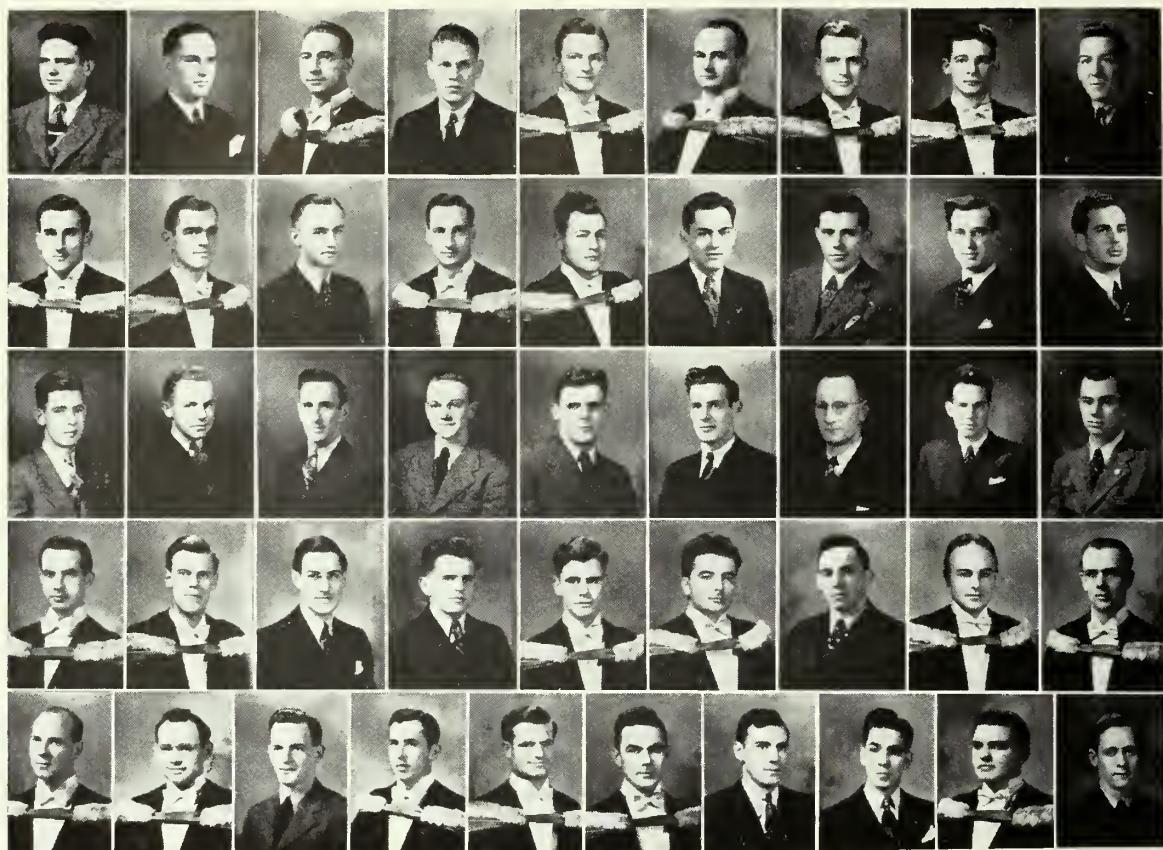

Musical novelty is the ocarina—or "sweet potato"—being piped vigorously above by a pair of virtuosos giving an impromptu recital on the tear-shaped instrument. Nu Sigma Nu follows the careers of her fighting doctors on all war-fronts.

More music by the melody-minded Nu Sig lads as a fresh trio takes over at the piano. Nu Sigman in foreground isn't having any, instead masters a diverting puppet pup. Such is life at Nu Sigma Nu, where there is always "a doctor in the house".

UNIQUE in fraternal organizations is Omega Tau Sigma, an international professional fraternity established in 1913 "for the purpose of extending goodwill and fellowship of the veterinary profession".

Veterinary students of any nationality are eligible for membership which is extended by invitation only.

The Delta chapter of the Ontario Veterinary College has regular meetings every two weeks in local halls at which guest speakers are invited to deliver addresses on various topics.

At the conclusion of business meetings, bridge and sing-songs are popular forums of recreation. A successful banquet and dance was held this year at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The dance was semi-formal and open to both members and non-members of the fraternity.

The other outstanding event of the year was the "Vie" dance for fraternity members, held in the Tourquoise Room at the Wellington Hotel. Truly informal, the girls were required to wear skirts and sweaters and their escorts, bow-ties and sweaters. During intermission the new pledges presented an entertaining skit and a prize was awarded to the chosen "sweater girl".

AN ENgrossing (?) game of bridge in progress behind locked doors and dimmed-out windows absorbs interest of players. For high steaks?

BEST FRONT of the year: C. Cilley, winner-extraordinary of the Angora Girl competition. He was acclaimed the contour de force of the evening.

"HARK, WATSON! What have we here?" We dig, dig, dig, with solicitude, care and assorted scalpels. Some spectators are blasé, some detached, some just blank. Animule gives no indication of his views on the subject.

HANDSOME HERO of the Frosh variety sits nonchalantly gazing into space. Chewing his cud, no doubt.

THE activities of Phi Delta Epsilon attempt in every way to carry out the frat's objectives. During the school term meetings, tutorials, and seminars are held at frequent intervals at the chapter house. Speakers both from the medical profession and other walks of public life are invited to address the chapter from time to time. These talks are usually followed by a period of active discussions.

On the social side, the Phi Delt's have had a wide range of social functions which have been enjoyable even though restricted by wartime conditions.

Phi Delta Epsilon was founded by the late Dr. Aaron Brown of New York in 1904. Alpha Sigma, Toronto's chapter was chartered in 1924, to promote good fellowship, equality and unity among its members and to encourage the highest standards of ethics in the practice of medicine.

THERE IS pensive pulling on pipes and precarious teetering of chairs as this quartet concentrates on a rubber of bridge at the Phi Delt frat house. "Dummy" in centre seems distracted. Frater participants remained unidentified at press time.

Phi Delta Epsilon's Executive for the year can be identified in the group photo opposite; they were: J. Teichman, Consul; D. Postel, Vice Consul; M. Langer, Chancellor; H. Weizel, Historian; E. Myers, Marshal; and H. Green, Houseman. To them, Phi Delta owed gratitude for a year of solid achievement, satisfying fraternity living.

At right appears Mel Langer, this year's Chancellor, newly elected consul for the new season.

AN OLD saw perhaps, but it's opening night at Phi Delta Epsilon during initiation. Bemasked seniors surround the hapless initiatee. Mock operation over, this senior Phi Deltman turns to await "Next, please!" But there is more than "cutting up" to life at Phi Delta Epsilon: here Meds members gather for an informal discussion. The bones are authentic, not cube-shaped.

PHI DELTA THETA

It takes seven to make a bridge game. Phi Delts take their bridge seriously judging by the concentration registered on the countenances of players and kibitzer. Jim Craig and friend in the corner have lost interest, are turning their attention to The Varsity.

DESPITE shortages of help, shortages of rationed foods, along with further enlistments in active service, the active members in the Toronto chapter of Phi Delta Theta have striven, in the past year, to regain the title of the "Fiddle-Y-Thates up on Bloor Street" on the Toronto campns.

When college started in September, Toronto's Phis numbered fifteen. Since then, three of these have enlisted in the services, but nine freshmen have been initiated into the fraternity.

The social events of Phi Delta Theta have been carried on on a larger scale in the 1944-45 season than they have been for some years.

The Christmas Party was the first of three memorable affairs—it was made memorable by all attending, although an ordinary, annual affair. On Feb. 7, a very successful Alumni Banquet was held at the Royal York Hotel. Berret Herrick, Beta Province President of the Fraternity General, was the guest speaker, addressing about fifty alumni and all of the members of the active chapter. The annual chapter "Formal", held on Feb. 28, was the last of the large social events. It was held in a very formal setting—the Toronto Hunt Club—but in informal dress.

The athletic activities of Toronto's Phis, as Phis, embraces only two sports, water polo and hockey. Traditional fraternity soph-frosh games were played in both sports. Athletic activities ended late in February with an exhibition hockey game between the fraternity team and the Vic Women's Team.

THE thirteenth oldest fraternity on the American continent, Phi Gamma Delta has a total membership of over 38,000. The local Phi G chapter, Tau Kappa, has been on the Varsity campus since it was first established here in 1923. This past year president Beverley C. Price, pictured at right, has given able leadership.

Right from the start, the Phi G's have had their own fraternity house which they bought at the time of the chapter installation. In recent war years, the boys have had to pitch in, do their own upkeep work to preserve their commodious quarters.

Active service representation from Phi Gamma Delta is high; well over sixty of its members are serving in the armed forces. Because a great many undergraduate members left university in 1941 to join the army, navy and airforce, wartime membership has been considerably below normal. But the graduate chapter has come to the rescue by being especially active and ready to render all assistance possible to the undergraduate group. This year, a rigorous rushing campaign during spring and fall was organized, resulting in thirteen new pledges entering the fold. New men have learned the ropes in remarkably short time, and every member is confident of prosperous days ahead.

For relaxation, the Phi G brothers indulged in rushing parties at the house, graduate smokers, and their traditional Norris Dinner, familiarly known as the "Pig Dinner". Here the undergrads had a chance to meet and swap stories with the grads of the chapter. Christmas time was the occasion of festive house parties held in the fraternity house.

One of the most picturesque fraternity houses on the campus, the Toronto headquarters of Phi Gamma Delta is reproduced here as depicted by the pen of artist, W. A. Salter.

Pi Beta Phi has grown in the 78 intervening years until today there are a total of 87 active chapters.

In 1908 was a chapter of Pi Beta Phi chartered at the University of Toronto. Membership during the past year totalled 43.

SIGMA Chi Fraternity was founded at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in 1855, by seven students who had formerly been members of another fraternity.

When pressure was brought to bear on them to vote a fraternity brother into an office for which they felt he was not the most suited candidate, they rebelled, withdrew from the fraternity, and founded Sigma Chi, under the ideals to which they so strongly adhered.

Today Sigma Chi is the largest international fraternity in the world, boasting over 100 active chapters in colleges and universities in United States and Canada. Owing to the popularity of its fraternity song, "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi," written in 1922, it is probably the best known of all college fraternities.

The year 1922 also marked the entry of Sigma Chi into Canada when a chapter was given a charter at the University of Toronto. A strong and active student body since its inception, the chapter house at "95" is well known for its spirit and hospitality.

Toss-up of an inter-fraternity basketball game in the Hart House gymnasium. Pi Lambda Phi is shown here in a tussle with Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity.

TWENTY years in growing, Canada Kappa Chapter of Pi Lambda Phi Fraternity now numbers forty-six souls, with ninety-nine alumni brothers working for George.

At the installation banquet, held February 12, 1922, at the King Edward Hotel, Supreme Rex Louis J. Pratt presented the chapter's charter. This consisted of Messrs. Greenberg, Waldman, Hutner, Levinson, Beckner, Levine Lehrman, Sher (both O.A. and J.), Weiner, Weiss and Willinsky. (Nope, no song.)

Some of the sensational alumni are Lieutenant Colonel David A. Croll, former mayor of Windsor; Squadron Leader Albert Glazer, D.F.C.; Major Eddie Goodman, who was wounded in France, and Flying Officer Daniel Jacobs, recently killed in England.

The mid-day meal in the frat house, at which Messrs. Rotenberg, Shane and Levine appear to be cleaning up.

President Laurie Woodruff does a neat job of combining a smile for the birdie and trying for a tricky shot. Evidence seems to be against luck with billiards as laughter gains upper hand.

NU CHAPTER of Psi Upsilon, the largest active chapter of the fraternity in years, boasts particularly of its scholastic record. The revived system: each man is responsible for a number of stdy hours per week and fines are imposed if this is not carried out. Psi Upsilon, proud of its three Rhodes' Scholars of the past, hopes to have others in the near future.

The yearned-for Yule party this year successfully closed the Michelmas term. On January 15 the presidency of Psi Upsilon was handed over to Laurie Woodruff from John Macpherson. Among Psi Upsilon alumni are some of Toronto's most distinguished sons: Dr. E. Burton, head of the Department of Physics and an internationally known scientist, William Hanley, successful lawyer and Olympic Game competitor. T. Hanley, noted doctor, athlete and scholar, and Lt.-Col. McDowell, V.C., D.S.O.

"She was only a bird in a gilded cage—" Sad soulful song being rendered by aspiring swooners seems to electrify lads in the back row, as elongated shadows behind heads give illusion of hair standing on end.

Owls roost on mantlepiece while Psi U's roast in front of fireplace in comfortable living room of fraternity house on St. George. Bill Sinclair and John McPherson graciously have moved aside to make room for crest of frat pin, just above mantlepiece.

Banquet time at Psi Upsilon. Amid festive decorations, Psi U's make the most of gala occasion. All are too intent upon obtaining nutriment to be startled by photographer's flashbulb.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

One of the oldest and strongest fraternities of Jewish college men is continent-spanning Sigma Alpha Mu whose Toronto Chapter has a membership of 33. Companionship is the key to success of frat life as illustrated on these pictorial pages. Doubly "brothers" are Goodwin and Howard Garfunkel shown at top left. Standing before the piano next door is Schoolman Ruby Appelbaum, sole frat graduate this year. Below at left, armed with the ever-present paraphernalia of an engineer are Ralph Milrod and Al Rosenberg.

MIDDLE ROW: W. M. Kerrigan, D. R. Steele, J. D. Porter, J. A. Stenhouse, J. E. K. Foreman, T. M. Perry.

FRONT, SEATED: M. E. Grass, H. C. Porter, C. B. Wrong, R. G. Brooke.

THETA deltachi of the year was the foundation of the Educational Foundation, imbued with the purpose of assisting deserving undergraduates in financial need and donating scholarships and awards. Funds are drawn entirely from voluntary contributions, many already made. President of the Foundation is Supreme Court Justice Love of Rochester, New York.

The traditional formal supper and dance was held in February. Two Brothers, Bill Kerrigan and Jack Foreman, who took part in the School Nite show, returned from the fray carting the KCR bar for a souvenir.

Brothers of the Toronto house are: J. E. K. Foreman, J. D. Porter, T. M. Perry, D. R. Steele, W. M. Kerrigan, R. G. Shelley, B. H. Gosnell, R. E. Watts, J. A. Stenhouse, E. W. Dafoe, W. H. Reid, C. B. Wrong, M. E. Grass, L. N. Furry, J. F. Devaney, H. C. Porter, B. R. Bennett, R. G. Brooke, J. M. Fletcher, and pledges W. Carter and W. J. E. Beverley.

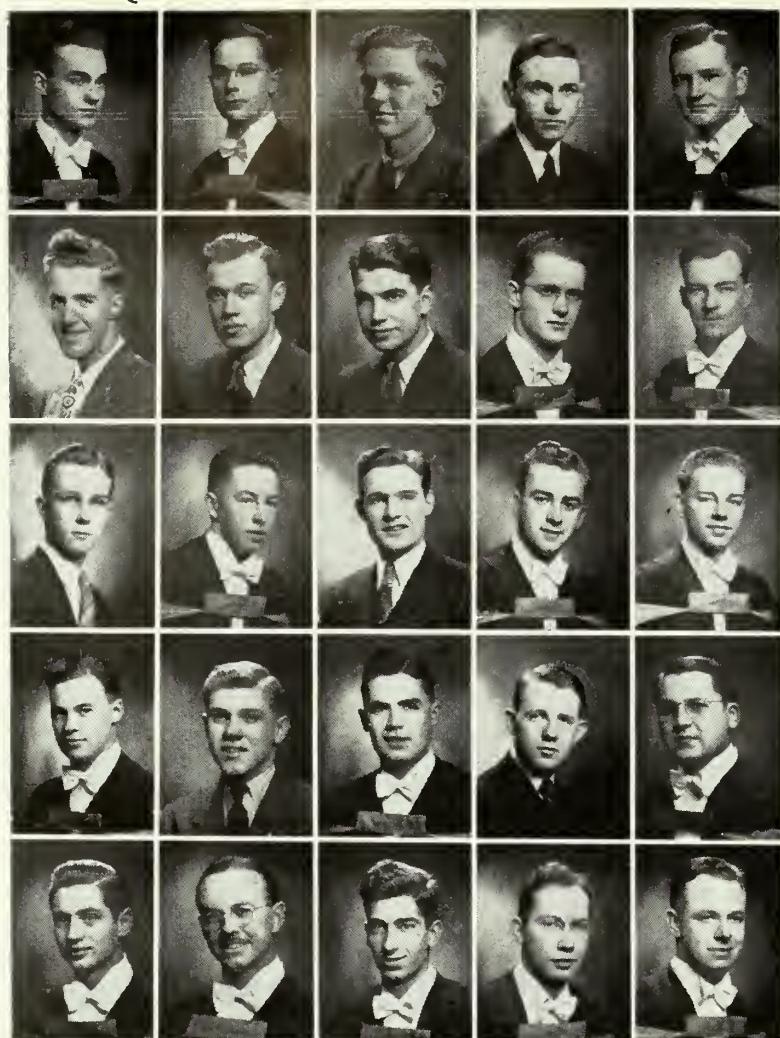

Proud possession of the 'Theta Delt' house is the K.C.R. bar stolen from the 'School-Nite' props by several members of the cast. The boys find it a useful piece of household equipment, from time to time.

The formal supper and dance was the 'piece de resistance' of the social season. Elaborate decorations and beautiful women helped to make this event the most successful in many a year.

AVISION of the FUTURE . . .

*"For I dipt into the future, far as human eye could see, Saw the Vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be:
Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly
dew
From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue.*

*Far along the world-wide whisper of the south-wind rushing warm
With the standards of the peoples plunging through the thunderstorm
Till the war drum throbbed no longer and the battle flags were furled
In the Parliament of man, the federation of the world."*

LORD TENNYSON

We at Northern Electric are fully occupied in producing materials for the National War Effort and look forward to the days when our products will again bring comfort and happiness to a nation at peace. We believe that Tennyson's prophetic lines give true direction.

Sending machines "OUT OF THIS WORLD"

Altitudes above 40,000 feet — where some of your newest planes must operate — create a different world as far as electrical equipment is concerned.

Atmospheric pressure may be only one-sixth that at sea level. Temperatures often reach 60 below zero. Under these conditions, strange things often happen to electrical equipment which operates perfectly at or near ground levels.

To test the effect of the cold, dry, rarefied air of the stratosphere on electrical machines, Westinghouse engineers are literally sending them "out of this world". Sealed in a high altitude test chamber, they are put through a complete stratosphere flight cycle — closely simulated as to conditions and time.

Typical of the important results achieved is a new treatment for generator brushes, developed in co-operation with a brush manufacturer. Tests in the high altitude chamber proved that the new brushes would give more than 600 hours of flight service — whereas ordinary brushes often ground themselves to pieces in one or two hours. Equally important, this high altitude treatment is being applied to ground-level machines with considerable success.

Finding practical solutions for new power problems is the everyday function of Westinghouse Engineering.

Looking Forward

*"Ever over the top of the next brown rise,
I expect some wonderful thing to flatter my eyes"*

So sang our Canadian Poet, Sir Charles G. D. Roberts.

Yes, youth looks ever forward; and it is the hope of this Bank that, with our long experience and wide facilities, we may assist along the road to success the young builders of the days of peace.
